BREAKDOWN PRONOUNCED EXTREMELY SERIOUS

Ex-President Lies Helpless And Dazed at Home After Being Carried From Train

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—William Howard Taft, until yesterday chief justice of the United States, lay helpless in his home here today while physicians were on the verge of abandoning hope for him.

Drs. Thomas A. Claytor and Francis R. Hagner, in a pessimistic statement, said Taft's condition was "extremely serious" and there was "some doubt" that he would recover.

The physician said Taft had suffered a general breakdown of his circulatory system, complicated by a bladder ailment.

FEVER, PAIN LACKING

In medical terms, the former chief justice is afflicted with arterio sclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, and myocarditis, an allied disease. "He has no fever and suffers no pain," was the only cheerful statement in the physicians' bulletin, which pointed out that he had suffered from high blood pressure for years.

Taft will not be moved to a hospital, the doctors said, but Dr. William Sidney Thayer, of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, has been called into consultation. The Taft family has not yet sought to gather the more distant relatives.

Ex-President, Shrunken, Dazed, Carried From Train

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—William Howard Taft, dazed, shrunken and pale, returned today to the Capitol where he served four years as President and, until yesterday, as chief justice of the United States.

Relieved of his robes of office, relinquished to Charles Evans Hughes, the former chief justice was carried from his train, indifferent to and apparently unconscious of his surroundings, and whisked away by automobile to his home, where he was placed in bed, while hundreds of visitors thronged the lawn.

'VERY SICK MAN'

His train arrived in Union Station at 7:05 a. m., but it was 25 minutes more before Dr. Francis Hagner, his physician, and others had virtually carried the former president from his Pullman seat to his automobile.

Taft came from Asheville, N. C., where he had gone in search of strength three weeks ago. Before leaving he spent 10 days in a hospital here. The southern climate did not buoy his condition as he expected and this prompted him to send his resignation as chief justice to President Hoover yesterday.

WIFE AT SIDE

The train came in on a lower track. Taft was too weak to mount the steps or even to be carried any great distance, so Dr. Hagner had the car in which he was riding shifted to a track at the street level. Meanwhile Mrs. Taft remained beside her husband. Miss Gertrude Manifold, his nurse, also was in constant attendance.

Taft seemed dazed as he was carried from the train. There was a set stare in his eyes as though he was hardly conscious of what was going on. His huge

Very Rich, Very Happy, Perhaps,
But, Beware the Idle.
Why Shaw Eats Cake.
Question for Pump Oajere.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HODGE, Cal., Feb. 4.

THE rich in this happy land—VERY happy for some—are richer than they ever were. The Treasury Department tells you there were 496 Americans in 1928 with annual incomes above one million dollars. The total on which they paid income tax was one thousand seventy-three millions.

AND, as you know, this represents only a fraction of the really big incomes. There are men with incomes above one hundred millions each. Their money is in great corporations. The latter reinvest their earnings and hand stock dividends instead of cash to the big controlling stockholders. On such dividends, in accordance with Supreme Court decision, the really rich men pay no income tax.

ONE man, with much more than a hundred millions income, paid, as shown in reports once published, only six millions income tax. Without the stock dividend device he would have paid forty millions, at least. A lot of salary earners and professional men made up the difference.

OF THE supermillionaires, 24 have more than ten millions a year each. With all that money you would expect to hear of some remarkably and interesting things done but money and imagination do not often go together. Imagination prevents accumulation.

ACCORDING to Treasury figures, we have now about 45,000 millionaires among us. Unfortunately we have, for every millionaire, about 100 men out of work, earning nothing. The supermillionaire class should do some serious thinking about the unemployed.

FIVE MILLIONS idle and unhappy, among 120,000,000, can be "handled" easily, but beware of the second idle five millions. The first five million idle are, with due respect for some unfortunate, the least able.

OR THEY are elder men, excluded from work by our cold-blooded industrial system. They are not the rebellious hard hitters. Five millions more of the idle would mean danger, and a third five million would mean disaster.

IN BRITAIN they give a "dole"—enough cash from the public purse to keep all the idle from actual hunger. They think that cheaper than a revolution, and they are right. Fortunately this, the richest of nations, need have no dole, and no idle, except among the lazy and incompetent, if the great fortunes that run the country will use their brains, or hire someone to think for them.

SO MANY ways of making a living. One woman started selling coffee well made and has millions. In this part of the world a Negro woman started a small eating shanty, cooked well, and her business, taken over by white people, is worth millions.

ARLAND DICKSON, who runs the Dickson Mound mink ranch, has just shipped seventy-five of the small fur animals, getting $2,925 in cash for them. Not much in Wall street, but a great deal on a mink ranch. The Fulton Democrat tells about that.

FOR brains and ingenuity there are always openings and success. What is wanted is something that will give a decent living to any man or woman willing to do honest work. Even the average man has a right to live, or should have.

At Lady Astor's, George Bernard Shaw gave Dwight Morrow, and other American naval conference delegates, his views on the conference. He said the next naval battle would be a fight between America and England and "your conference is called to decide that you will fight twelve instead of fifteen miles apart, with smaller boats and smaller guns."

DELEGATES were surprised at the amount of chocolate cake eaten by Shaw, a large cake, all for him. That comes of a vegetable diet. Unable to get his supply of calories and protein food, condensed in meat, Shaw must absorb great quantities of substitutes. Not good for him.

AT NEW YORK'S Cooper Union Institute of Technology, 150 trained chemists are taking "an education for the educated," course in chemical engineering. Scientific knowledge increases so rapidly, that men determined to keep up, must go back to school, at intervals or read intensely.

AT THE beginning of this century, serious chemists agreed that the science of chemistry had gone about as far as it could be expected to go, ever, and in the last 30 years, chemists have learned 10 times as much as they had learned in the thousands of years before 1900. There is no limit to knowledge. The earth will last

Witness Against Ex-Judge Fired

LOST JOB AS HE 'TELLS' AT TRIAL

Star for State Grilled by Defense in Somerset Rum Ring 'Protection' Case

The government's star witness in the prosecution of former Judge John A. Berkey and 14 other politicians and alleged bootleggers of Somerset County submitted to a stiff cross-examination in Federal Court today.

The defense sought to discredit the witness, Claude A. M. Welsh, who had testified that Berkey profited from the sale of "protection" to bootleggers and slot-machine operators.

Before he returned to the stand Welsh was notified that he had been fired as a clerk in the Somerset prothonotary's office, presumably for his alleged dealings as go-between for Berkey and the bootleggers, of which he testified yesterday.

POLITICS CHARGED

Percy Allen Rose, chief counsel for the defense, accused Welsh of telling Berkey's friends that the charges were aimed to kill the political ambitions of the jurist, who intended to "run for the State Senate."

Welsh denied the accusation and added that Berkey had sent Judge Norman Boose, of Somerset, and six other persons to him to ask him the same question.

ARRESTED BY FEDERALS

The defense brought out that Welsh himself had been arrested by government investigators last July on a charge of having knowledge of the alleged conspiracy. Welsh testified that when he was arrested the government officers told him the men they really

WALL ST. TAKES DESERT MIDAS

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Walter (Death Valley) Scott, eccentric prospector, who is building a $2,000,000 home in the desert near Tonopah, Nev., today declared he had lost a $6,000,000 fortune in the stock market.

"I've been cleaned out in the stock market," he said. "Yes, sir, I've been taken to a cleaning. Six million berries. Oh, well, that's not so bad. I'll earn it back."

"Death Valley Scotty," as he is more familiarly known, passed through Kansas City Saturday with the explanation that he was en route to Paris to make "whoopee."

Today he was traveling west, his Paris trip abandoned. Upon reaching Chicago, he said, he was told by a business partner that he had lost heavily in speculation.

RINGLING'S SHIP SINKS, 16 SAFE

SARASOTA, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Four passengers and a crew of 12 were landed safely when the palatial yacht Zalophus, owned by John Ringling, circus magnate, struck a rock and sank in 12 feet of water, two miles south of here early this morning.

C. V. Moore, a member of the crew, suffered a broken arm.

Captain Albert Rowan said the yacht struck an uncharted rock in South Pass, en route to Usepha Island, near Fort Myers.

Samuel Gumpertz said a wrecking crew had been ordered from Tampa to raise the boat, which was built in 1923 at a cost of $200,000.

Besides Mr. Gumpertz, the passengers aboard were Mrs. Gumpertz, their niece, Miss Lizette Gumpertz, and William Greve, president of the Prudence Bond Company, of New York.

JUDGES EXPLAIN CUT IN HANSON SENTENCE

Controversy Among 3 Jurists Revolves on Meaning of 'Concur' and 'Conference'

The whole controversy revolving about the modification of the sentence of William T. Hanson, convicted slot machine operator, today was resolved into the meaning of the words "concur" and "conference."

Visiting Judge William T. Darr, who modified Hanson's sentense, so that Hanson was freed after serving 16 days of a four-month term in jail, declared he had conferred with Judge Josiah Cohen and Judge Thomas J. Ford and both had said "whatever you do will be satisfactory to us." Judge Ford interpreted his relation with the case as concurrence in the modification. Judge Cohen maintained that he had not formally concurred in the modification and did not consider an informal talk with Judge Darr as being a conference.

Judge Darr said he modified Hanson's sentence after he verified statements made in court to the effect that Hanson for a year and a half before his arrest had not been engaged in the slot machine business and that others arrested with Hanson had been given much more lenient sentences.

DRYS GO FREE AFTER GUNPLAY

The quickness on the trigger and the laxity of prosecution of prohibition officers is emphasized in the wounding of two and the killing of one of the officers, when they attempted to halt and search an automobile at West Point, Ga. The investigation showed the officers, not the youths, were the aggressors. The latter were fined $200, but the case later was quashed. Here is the story:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — The story of how quick-on-the trigger prohibition agents pursued three youths in search of liquor and their aggressiveness in "gun play" that cost the life of one agent and wounded two others is revealed by the Atlanta Georgian reporting to the Washington Herald. After the men had received a light sentence a new trial was granted which resulted in the case being nolle prossed.

The name of Grady Cobb, federal prohibition agent, of Macon, Ga., figures in reports of three killings received by the Washington Herald in its recent nation-wide checkup of prohibition enforcement casualties.

A posse of officers led by Cobb on July 24, 1923, attempted to search an automobile occupied by Buck Hamby, Frank Jones and Roy Williams, young men of West Point, Ga. Cobb and Hamby were wounded in the gun battle that ensued, and Gordon Andrews, a member of Cobb's posse, was killed. The agents with Cobb, in addition to Andrews, were Tobe Emory, Garland Ernest and Marion Hogan.

The ensuing court action indicated the officers and not the three young men whose car they attempted to search were the aggressors.

This case was investigated for the Herald by the Atlanta Georgian. The Georgian's report states:

"Cobb, Emory, Ernest and Hogan tried on charge of assault to murder. A verdict of guilty with a recommendation that the offense be treated as a misdemeanor was returned. Sentence of $200 fine or three months in jail was assessed. A new trial was granted, but the case subsequently was nolle prossed."

GIRL KIDNAPED AT CHURCH MEETING

Abductor Escapes in Auto; Mother Declares Admirer, Miner, Took Daughter

A 21-year-old girl was called from a Baptist church meeting and kidnaped by a young admirer in Library, the girl's parents reported to authorities today.

The girl, Ethelinda David, was attending a church membership committee meeting in the office of the Pittsburgh Coal Company when a boy interrupted the meeting to tell her that a man wanted to see her outside.

Five minutes later the man sped away with her in his auto.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Evan David, said the kidnaper was a young miner with whom Ethelinda had kept company more than a year ago. He disappeared last summer and recently returned to the Library district.

Ethelinda lived with her parents and two younger brothers and a sister. She was wearing a fur-trimmed black coat, a purple dress, light stockings, light-colored galoshes over black patent leather slippers. She has dark hair, brown eyes and a dimple on the right cheek.

John D. Presents Roses To Girl Musician

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—For a youthful musician whose talents have won his admiration, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., has greater rewards than the customary dimes.

Twice within three days he sat attentively on the front seat at piano recitals given by Miss Helen Pugh, of Asheville, N. C. After the second concert he presented her a large basket of red roses.

Each time Mr. Rockefeller refused to sit in a seat reserved for him in the middle of the hall, insisting on a front row chair so he could "watch her fingers."

Brahm's "Lullaby" seemed to please him most. With his face resting on one hand and his eyes closed, he beat time with his fingers on the printed program.

Lindy, 28 Today, Laughs At Accident in Glider

LEBEC, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Col. Charles Lindbergh observed his twenty-eighth birthday anniversary today by planning another flight in the glider he piloted yesterday to a safe landing near here after it had lost an aileron in midair.

Laughing like a schoolboy at the conclusion of a particularly successful prank, the flying colonel, having landed safely in the fair, crippled craft in a mountain valley, was highly pleased at the incident.

Lindbergh was launched into the air in a test flight preparatory to an attempt planned by Hawley Bowlus, the sailplane's builder, to establish a new world gliding record, and had reached an altitude of 300 feet when the aileron on the left wing broke loose and fluttered to the ground.

The colonel's head jerked sharply to the side as the aileron, an essential part of the control apparatus, broke free.

He attempted no immediate landing, however, but sailed serenely on, dipping gracefully over the hilltops, finally to disappear into a valley.

When observers reached him the colonel was standing beside the undamaged craft on a little knoll, laughing heartily.

The colonel said he had "a little difficulty in landing" and that "it was an uncomfortable feeling when I saw it fail," but said he was not alarmed because he had confidence in construction of the craft.

HOUSE MEMBERS HUNT JOKERS IN ENFORCEMENT REFORMS

MAGISTRATE PROPOSAL ASSAILED

...s Plan to Accord ...mmissioners More Power Is Under Fire

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—President Hoover's second proposal to tighten national prohibition enforcement was under fire in the House today as Drys and anti-Drys alike sought "jokers" in the administration bill conferring police magistrate powers on U. S. Commissioners.

The first measure on the President's program, the transfer of the Prohibition Bureau to the Department of Justice, will develop a serious battle later in the week over the control of industrial alcohol. Stiff opposition has been aroused by a provision dividing responsibility between Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Attorney General Mitchell in the control of industrial alcohol permits.

The President's plan to turn the U. S. commissioners into federal police magistrates has brought considerable controversy in the House. Both factions have professed to see in it a series of "jokers," by which wrongdoers will be deprived of their constitutional rights to a trial by jury while placing an unfair club in the hands of federal district attorneys.

Chairman Christopherson (Rep.), of South Dakota, of the House Judiciary sub-committee, which is handling the bill, has decided to call George W. Wickersham, head of the President's Law Enforcement Commission, to further explain the measure. Wickersham will be asked whether the section giving federal judges the right to over-rule commissioners would eliminate jury trials in event an accused wrongdoer was acquitted in the lower tribunal. It was pointed out that every person, dissatisfied with a commissioner's ruling, must appeal within three days for a jury trial or lose that right. A person acquitted, it was added, would naturally avoid such an appeal but the bill would give the federal judges power to set aside the commissioner's finding in favor of a conviction. Under such cirsumstances, the accused would lose his right to a trial by jury.

READY TO AMEND BILL

If such "jokers" do exist in the bill, Christopherson said he was ready to amend it to guarantee the right of trial by jury in all cases. Wickersham may smooth the way for such a peaceful termination of the controversy.

The transfer bill was expected to pass the House before the end of the week. Debate will start on it Thursday. The only row will come over the industrial alcohol permit section. Some of the extreme drys and many anti-drys have demanded that Mitchell take over absolute control of the permits. Business interests have insisted that Mellon retain entire control. Some of the other drys favor the division of authority. The House itself will have to render the final decision.

wanted were "the higher-ups." The charge later was dropped.

After an argument the defense was able to gain an admission from Welsh that he "knew what it meant to be a government witness" and that a government witness could not be prosecuted for his testimony.

Welsh added that, following his arrest, Berkey advised him to "hold my ground."

"Berkey said: 'If there is a federal investigation I'll go to the pen and I'll get you three good attorneys,'" Welsh testified.

SLOT MACHINE STORAGE

Welsh, on the stand eight hours, stood by his story through the grilling cross-examination. He was followed by Lester Wagner, sheriff of Somerset county, who told of slot machines being stored in the basement of the Somerset court house, and of seeing Foster Ziegler, a defendant and alleged bootlegger, in an auto loaded with slot machines outside the court house.

"What are these for?" Wagner said he asked Ziegler.

"There's been some trouble and we're going to store these," Zeigler replied, according to Wagner.

ACCUSES JUDGE

Direct accusation that Berkey had knowledge of every move of the alleged Somerset liquor ring was made by Welsh.

Ziegler, described by Welsh as a bootlegger; Victor Glessner, Harry S. Sellers, Ed Darr, John Clark, Emmet Buckman, James McIntyre, Ed Sheeler, John Sherman, John Gress, Peter Hanlon, William Dittman and Berkly, all defendants, were linked by Welsh's testimony yesterday.

DEFENDANT ILL.

John E. Custer, a real estate agent of Hooversville, and J. C. Tucker are the other two defendants. Tucker is ill and was unable to be in court yesterday.

In describing the ramifications of the alleged liquor ring, Welsh said it was first organized to secure funds for Berkey's campaign for re-election.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Horvath McGranahan, attractive young private secretary, was sought today in the hope that she might be able to furnish information revealing the trail of Dr. Ernst Watzl, Cleveland chemist, since his burned automobile was found near Pottstown, Pa., last November 6.

Mrs. McGranahan has been missing for about two months. Investigators believed that she had access to the private correspondence of Dr. Watzl and thus might be in a position to tell why he disappeared, either by force or his own wishes. Since the discovery last week that letters accompanying insurance payments were written on the typewriter the chemist had with him when he left Cleveland, authorities have been satisfied that he is still living. A search for him in New York yesterday failed of results.

PITTSBURGHERS URGE CANAL AT HEARING

Burke and Other Delegates Tell Army Engineers Project Is Feasible

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—With representatives of a half dozen Western Pennsylvania and Ohio cities in attendance, hearings opened before the Army board of engineers today on the proposed Ohio river-Lake Erie canal.

Pittsburgh alone sent a delegation of some 26 of its leading citizens, headed by James Rae, president, and James Francis Burke, general counsel, of the Chamber of Commerce.

Burke made a plea for factions to get together on the proposed waterway to the Lakes. Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio need never engage in commercial conflict, he said, because they constitute an industrial empire.

"Efforts to enlarge nation-wide access to their products should be mutual," he asserted, "and should never be weakened by controversy."

Burke said the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce would regard it as deplorable if, after a third of a century of effort, "anything short of an absolute demonstration of the economic unsoundness or engineering impossibility of this enterprise should cause its abandonment."

GREATEST TONNAGE

The Commerce Chamber, he said, speaks with authority for the greatest tonnage producing center in the world, adding:

"It would be even more regrettable if its progress were halted as a result of sectional selfishness or misunderstanding."

Burke was followed by W. H. Stevenson, chairman of the Lake Erie and Ohio River canal board, who reviewed reports of the army division engineer to show that the proposed project had been pronounced feasible from an engineering point of view. Succeeding Mr. Stevenson were George M. Lehman, Mr. Rae and R. Templeton Smith, representing the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau.

A communication from three Pennsylvania congressmen asking that no final action be taken on the Lake Erie-Ohio River project until an investigation is made of the proposed French Creek route through Northern Pennsylvania to Erie, was read.

The three congressmen, Representatives Strong, Cochran and Shreve, coming from the territory which the French Creek route would serve, claimed that this waterway could be constructed at half the cost of the other and would be only half as long.

U. S. TO RECALL HAITI MARINES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—President Hoover today announced his intention of appointing immediately a commission to determine "when and how the United States can withdraw from Haiti." The personnel of five or seven persons will be announced before the end of the week.

"I have no desire to be represented abroad by Marines," the President said in making known his decision.

The primary question Mr. Hoover will charge his commission to investigate is how American supervision may best be withdrawn from the island republic. The second question is what shall be done in the meantime.

"Certainly we shall withdraw our Marines and officials sometime," the President said. "There are some people who wish for us to scuttle over night. I am informed that every group in Haiti considers that such action would result in disaster to the Haitian people."

TAXI MECHANIC STRIKE DENIED

continued working today, and spokesmen did not divulge whether or not they would follow the policy of the other workers.

POLICE AS ESCORT

When two cars were sent out from the Yellow Cab garage today, police at the request of the cab company furnished motorcycle police escorts. The two cars were said to be manned by imported drivers.

In a joint statement issued by Paul L. Houston, president of the Green Cab Company; Walter S. Laird, president of the Yellow Cab Company, and E. S. Higgins, vice president of the Parmelee Transportation Company, they denied that the workmen had walked out.

"There is no strike on the part of any of the shopmen. Between 50 and 60 men are at work. Any reports that the mechanics have joined the strikers are not based on fact," the statement read.

DEADLOCK CONTINUES

When the original strike of the cab drivers occurred, the repair and tow car crews were put on two shifts. Both crews alternated daily because volume of work was not sufficient to give employment to all at one time.

Declaring that the Yellow Cab Company would begin drastic action to enforce respect for the court injunction prohibiting interference with the operation of cabs, William Rinaud, claim agent for the company, told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today that assault and battery informations would be sworn out against all who attacked drivers or threw bricks through cab windows.

HELD FOR ASSAULT

The statement was made during the hearing of Chlorice Frech, 28, of 81 Magee street, an alleged striker, who was held for court on an assault and battery charge after he is alleged to have thrown bricks through a Yellow cab at Grant street and Oliver avenue a short time before.

Henry A. Bell, 42, of Charleroi, Pa., formerly employed as a deputy sheriff by the Yellow Cab Company, was arraigned in Central Police Court today along with Harry Priceler, of Martins Ferry, O., and Benjamin Hornsfer, of Penn avenue and Thirtieth street. Priceley had complained that Bell stole $48 from him in a Water street restaurant Sunday. Bell was held over by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. The other two were discharged.

U. S. NAVAL DELEGATES DENY ROW

No Internal Dissension in Group, Members Assert; Progress on Tonnage

By HARRY R. FLORY
International News Service.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Definite progress was made by the five-power naval disarmament conference today in bringing about a harmonious outlook among the various delegations as to how to proceed with the delicate question of limiting armaments.

During the course of a two-hour meeting at St. James Palace this morning, the way was paved to bring Italy into alignment on the Franco-British compromise proposal for limitation. A spokesman for the Italian delegation declared that the compromise, with the changes embodied in the British counter-proposal, is far more satisfactory than it was before and "less calculated to engender competitive building."

DENY DISSENSION

While some members of the American delegation were engaged in the palace conversations, others busied themselves denying the truth of a report appearing in the London Daily Telegram that the delegation was torn by internal friction.

"We are not differing any more than you would reasonably expect," one member of the American delegation told International News Service. "As a matter of fact, all the delegations, as well as their individual members, have a very harmonious outlook."

Ambassador Hugh Gibson and Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams represented the United States at this morning's committee meeting at St. James Palace. The French compromise proposal, with the British suggestions, which would provide for a half-way measure between global and categorical armament allotments, as well as permitting transfers among the various categories, was discussed in some detail.

American and Japanese Delegates in Conference

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The naval delegates of the United States and Japan got together this afternoon for the first of a series of heart-to-heart conversations regarding naval ratios as effecting the two countries.

At the invitation of Henry L. Stimson, American Secretary of State, Reijiro Wakatsuki, chief of the Japanese delegation, went to the secretary's hotel where they secluded themselves with the idea of talking over the problem of the number of 10,000-ton cruisers Japan shall have in relation to the totals of the United States.

The American position was to stick by the famous 5-5-3 ratio evolved at the Washington conference for capital ships.

ARNOLD SERVED IN WIFE'S SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Papers in a separate-maintenance suit filed last October by Mrs. Mildred Avery Arnold against Lieut. Leslie P. Arnold, army around-the-world flier, were served yesterday at the home of his present wife, Priscilla Dean, motion picture actress.

Lieut. Arnold also was served with an order to show cause why he should not pay for the support of his first wife pending trial.

The order set the date of his appearance in the Long Beach Superior Court for February 24.

The flier married Miss Dean in August, 1928, considering himself divorced from Mrs. Mildred Avery Arnold, having obtained a decree in Atlanta, Ga., in 1925.

Last summer, however, the first Mrs. Arnold succeeded in having the Georgia court set aside the decree. Arnold is appealing.

Withers to Fight For Loretta Young

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—Grant Withers, film player, today prepared to fight annulment proceedings filed by his bride's mother, following his elopment with Loretta Young, 17-year-old actress, to Arizona, where they were married.

The mother, Mrs. Gladys Belzer, wished the marriage annulled because her daughter was not of age. While Arizona statutes say that parental consent is necessary for a girl under 18, they do not provide that the marriage of a girl over 15, but under the age limit, is void or voidable.

Burns Fatal to Mother, 2 Boys Left Orphans

Three-year-old Harry Hoffman and his brother, Eugene, 2, are motherless today. Yesterday in the kitchen of their home at 5179 Brown's place, they saw flames sweeping over their mother, Mrs. Sarah Hoffman, 25. Today she died in Homeopathic Hospital.

Mrs. Hoffman was hanging the clothes when fire from the stove ignited her dress. To save herself and protect her children from the flames, she ripped her dress from her body.

She ran to the doorway and shouted to neighbors as the children stared helplessly.

Besides Harry and Eugene, Mrs. Hoffman leaves her husband of five years, Harry, a bricklayer.

BROWN GETS GOVERNOR BACKING

Senator Amenable to 'Trade,' Philadelphians to Confer With Leader in Florida

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4.—Francis Shunk Brown, former state attorney general, will be the choice of the Republican organization of the state for the nomination for governor, his firends believed today following a conference of local G. O. P. chieftains with Senator Joseph R. Grundy at Washington.

While it was reported by the visiting chiefs — Councilman Charles B. Hall, Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham and James M. Hazlett—that the newly appointed Senator did not commit himself to Brown's candidacy, it was intimated that he would be amenable in the event William S. Vare, Philadalphia leader, withdrew his announced candidacy for the senatorial nomination.

In an attempt to bring this withdrawal about, the Philadelphia trio now plan to visit Vare at his St. Lucie, Fla., home and confer with him.

GAUGE BROWN'S STRENGTH

Within a week the Philadelphia politicians believe a definite plan will be outlined by the local organization and when the State leaders confer regarding the gubernatorial aspirations of the various candidates, the Quaker City board of strategy will line up solidly behind Brown, with Ralph Beaver Strassburger, of Norristown, for lieutenant governor.

"Feelers" are to be spread throughout the state to gauge Brown's strength and reports will be made on the results to Grundy, Gov. John S. Fisher and W. L. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, former Republican state chairman.

VARE VIEWS HIDDEN

Hall and his colleagues, politicians who have always been close to Vare, were unable to promise Grundy definitely, it is understood, that Vare would retire from the senatorial race and leave the field clear for Grundy on any sort of a deal.

Yesterday's was not the first parley in Washington on Pennsylvania politics.

On the day previous, it develops, Senator Grundy participated in a similar conference held between Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, W. L. Mellon and Gen. W. W. Atterbury, Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania.

PINCHOT MISSES TRIO

General Atterbury, who was sponsored for his place on the national committee by Vare, is generally regarded as being in favor of the selection of Brown as the party nominee for the governorship. He returned to Philadelphia after the conference. Former State Chairman Mellon returned to Pittsburgh.

Former Governor Gifford Pinchot narrowly missed meeting the Philadelphia trio as they emerged from their conference with Senator Grundy.

Pinchot had been in a meeting with Senator Brookhart and left the Capitol just as the reporters were returning inside after their curbstone interview with the three Philadelphians.

"Are you a candidate for governor?" he was asked.

Community Buying Talk Heard By 400

About 400 persons were present last night at a meeting held in the Fort Pitt Hotel, under the auspices of the Community Builders, Inc. H. B. McNeil, presided. The organization plans to promote community buying by consumers in this district. The manufacturers, jobbers, wholesale merchants and retail dealers who attended the meeting last night decided to conduct a publicity campaign in newspapers here and also to utilize a local broadcasting station to promote their work. Joseph T. Burns was named chairman of the committee on constitution and by-laws.

COUZENS WAITS BRIDE'S RETURN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—When Margaret Couzens—now Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning—returns to Washington and introduces her husband to her father, the enormously wealthy senator from Michigan, they will receive a cordial welcome.

Parental displeasure at his daughter's elopement with the 26-year-old bank clerk, whom the senator never had met, has changed to admiration for the girl's pluck in choosing to avoid the tedious round of social activity incident to an official Washington wedding.

"She took me at my word," the senator said, "when many times in the past I expressed my distate for the details of big weddings."

He went on to say that Margaret, or Margot as she is known to her friends, had been quick to remind him of this attitude when she told him of her marriage by long distance telephone.

Margaret is 19, and her disinclination for society life had led her to avoid the customary debut party.

She had consented before her marriage, however, to a ball on February 12, which, while not so designated, was to have been, in a sense, her coming out party.

Her marriage has not changed the plans for the dance, but Washington society is laughingly saying that the party is to be young Mr. Chewning's debut, rather than Margaret's. He will be presented to hundreds of friends of the family at that time.

BLONDE, DAGUE SING HYMNS

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 4—Confined to their cells, Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, have turned to religion for solace.

The only visitors permitted to see them are their attorneys and relatives. Irene has been more fortunate than Dague, for her sisters are near, and Donnie, her son, is permitted to see her frequently. Dague had not had a visitor other than his attorneys. Not a member of his family has appeared.

Irene was a participant in the week-end religious services in the women's department. At her request they were held in front of her cell. She joined lustily in the singing, Dague took part in the services in the men's department.

D. L. Cowles, ballistic expert of the Cleveland police department, is here to compare bullets found in the body of Patrolman Carl Sherman, who was shot to death near here nearly a year ago, with those fired from a gun that Irene and Dague were alleged to have used. Sherman's slayer never has been apprehended.

M'FALL TO AID WASSON CASE PROSECUTION

Disbarment Hearing Against Former Judge and Calvert To Be Secret, Board Rules

Attorney William B. McFall, Jr., has been appointed to assist in the prosecution of complaints against former Judge Henry G. Wasson and Attorney George H. Calvert, who are to face the Board of Governance of the Pennsylvania Bar on a disbarment action.

Official announcement of McFall's appointment was made last night by Attorney Charles F. C. Arensberg, chairman of the Committee of Hearing Masters of the Board of Governance.

HEARING SECRET

The hearing will be held tomorrow in the rooms of the Allegheny County Bar Association, ninth floor, City-County Building, and none but those concefned directly with the case will be admitted. All others are barred by a ruling of the Board of Governance.

The petition asking disbarment of the two former leading lawyers at the local bar was made to the Board of Governance by Attorney W. Clyde Grubbs, representing Martha K. and Blanche Hibbert. The two women are sisters of Mrs. Eleanor H. Davidson, multi-millionaire widow of Frederick C. Davidson, former president of the Union Drawn Steel Company, of Beaver Falls.

Mrs. Davidson was adjudged mentally unable to handle her own business affairs in 1921, following the death of her husband who was drowned at Atlantic City. The charges on which Wasson and Calvert's disbarment is asked are based on their alleged maladministration of her $3,000,000 estate.

BIG FEE APPEALED

Mrs. Davidson lives in a palatial home near Glenshaw, under constant medical care.

Attorney Arnold M. Replogle and the law firm of Thorp, Bostwick, Stewart and Reed recently was awarded a $100,000 fee in connection with their services in bringing about the recovery of funds and, subsequently, the resignation of Wasson and Calvert as trustees. This fee was objected to by the sisters and an appeal from Judge James B. Drew's decision awarding the fee has been taken.

'TORCH' SLAYER LOSES APPEAL

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Henry Campbell Close, middle-aged arch-bigamist, and former advertising man and pseudo physician, under sentence of death for the murder of Mrs. Mildred Mowrey, of Greenville, Pa., whom he married bigamously, was denied a new trial by the Court of Errors and Appeals here. His only hope now lies in an appeal to the Board of Pardons for commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment.

Close's appeal was based upon insanity, his attorneys declaring the prisoner's mental condition was "confused and blurred" when he fired a bullet into the head of Mrs. Mowrey, and set her body afire last February 23.

Towel in Patient After Operation Brings Death

EDMONTON, Alberta, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—A coroner's jury has decided that Mrs. Ruth Olsen, 27, died at a hospital here January 29 as the result of a towel, 16 by 26 inches, being left in her body after an operation January 26.

The attending physicians, Dr. H. E. Chatham and Dr. A. M. Crawford, were exonerated by the jury. Mrs. M. Rivey, a nurse, testified that she did not count the towels, as she thought they never were used internally.

The jury recommended prosecution of no one.

STRAWN HITS POLITICIANS

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Until such a time as "public officials quit trying to play politics with us," Silas H. Strawn said today, the citizens' committee, which he heads, will not lend financial aid to any of the local governments.

"While the peril from the money shortage has been increasing," Strawn said, "Mayor Thompson and certain other public officials have been trying to play politics by befogging the true conditions with attacks on the reassessment and whatnot."

Of the three governments that are "broke" and behind in meeting their payrolls and other expenses, Cook county is the only one thus far to pledge co-operation to the Strawn group. President Caldwell of the school board and Mayor Thompson have raised objections to the Strawn relief proposals.

Unless something was done today, which appeared unlikely, it will be another week before any action can be taken.

CUT GLORIA'S ROYALTIES

TRENTON, N. J. Feb. 4.—Gloria Caruso, daughter of the late Enrico Caruso, lost approximately $167,000 in her late father's phonograph royalties by a decision of the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals.

A year ago, Chancellor Walker had awarded to the child a two-thirds share in about $1,000,000 in royalties, payable by the Victor Talking Machine Company to the dead tenor's estate. Other heirs were awarded one-twelfth shares apiece. Caruso had died in Italy.

A contest was immediately filed by Mrs. Park Benjamin Caruso, Gloria's mother, and also by three other heirs—Giovanni Caruso, a brother and Gloria's two half-brothers, Rudolpho and Enrico, Jr. They declared they had accepted Italian law, which gave Gloria only half of the royalties and gave the other heirs one-eighth each. In decision their contention was upheld, under a rule of international law which declares that the country of domicile, at time of death, has control of the estate.

Sleuths Seek Clerk And Missing Funds

Detectives today were searching for Harry Pryon, 19, of 506 Madison avenue, a clerk in the John Bright shoe store, at 507 East Ohio street, who disappeared yesterday, detectives said, after he had been sent to deposit $323 of the store's funds in a bank.

Investigation disclosed, according to detectives, that the clerk had not reached the bank. His failure to return prompted store officials to notify police.

WIFE LOSES IN 20-YEAR LOVE SUIT

Jury Denies $300,000 Balm After Wealthy Film Man Defends 'Other Woman'

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—It took a jury here just 20 minutes to decide that Mrs. Mattie Dean Hutchinson, Chicago society woman, was not entitled to $300,000 or any other sum from Mrs. Edith P. Taylor, the "other woman" in a 20-year love affair with Samuel Sheffield Hutchinson, wealthy film distributor.

The jury, composed of eight middle-aged married women and four married men, returned judgment in favor of Mrs. Taylor yesterday at the close of the trial of Mrs. Hutchinson's $300,000 alienation of affections suit.

ONE HOLDOUT

A man on the jury held out for judgment in favor of Mrs. Hutchinson, but under California law a three-fourths majority of jurors is sufficient to decide a civil suit.

In summation of their cases opposing attorneys attacked the women in the case.

Mrs. Hutchinson described from the witness stand her early life with Hutchinson; how she worked by his side in a drug store to make sufficient money for him to go into business with her brother-in-law, A. C. Roebuck, formerly of Sears Roebuck Company, and later how she endeavored to win a social position that would bring him honor. She said she did not become suspicious of Hutchinson until late in 1927.

HE PREFERS MRS. TAYLOR

Mrs. Taylor said she met Hutchinson while she was a student at Valparaiso, Ind., in 1908. She said she asked him to marry her, but that he replied he was "not the marrying kind."

Mrs. Taylor also testified that she did not know Hutchinson was married until after she had borne him a daughter. The daughter, Jane, now is 16 years old. Hutchinson testified that he was the father of the girl, and "proud of it."

Both women testified they still loved Hutchinson.

Hutchinson sketched his career briefly.

"Mrs. Hutchinson did not care about me," he testified.

"Everything was all right with her as long as I brought home money enough.

"Mrs. Taylor was thrifty, considerate and kindly, and those are the characteristics I admire."

31 Students Offer Blood To Save Professor

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Thirty-one students of Pennsylvania State College within the past three days have volunteered to give some of their blood in an effort to save the life of Dr. Oswald Frederick Boucke, head of the department of sociology and economics. Dr. Boucke is critically ill in a Clearfield (Pa.) hospital, where last week he was operated upon for the third time for a kidney ailment.

Seven students went to Clearfield, but none of them was able to meet the exacting tests for the type of blood wanted. Yesterday the Department of Bacteriology examined 24 more volunteers. Four of this number were found to have blood similar to that which is desired, and they left for Clearfield to undergo further tests. The four students are Kenneth Fitzsimmons, Chester, who was graduated last Friday at the mid-year commencement; H. A. Corre, Portage, a senior; Richard McGuire, Wormleysburg, a freshman, and Thomas K. Powers, Williamsport, a sophomore. The mid-year college vacation started last Saturday and fewer than 200 students are here now.

Dr. Boucke has been on the Penn State faculty for the past 21 years. He is known nationally as an economist.

Boy, Owner of $10,000,000 Skyscraper, Dies at 17

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Alan E. Lefcourt, 17, son of A. E. Lefcourt, multi-millionaire real estate man of New York City, died in a Baltimore hospital yesterday of anemia.

He had been undergoing treatment about four weeks. His condition became worse Sunday and his father arrived this morning. When the youth was 12 his father gave him a $10,000,000 office building in Lower New York.

Alan E. Lefcourt

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Alan E. Lefcourt, 17, became probably the world's richest property owner of his age five years ago.

Young Lefcourt received from his father, A. E. Lefcourt, who has built more than 25 skyscrapers in New York, a deed to 16,000 square feet of property in Thirty-fourth street, adjoining the southwest corner of Madison avenue, on which Mr. Lefcourt said at the time he would erect a 30-story building. The total cost of the project was estimated at $10,000,000.

Mr. Lefcourt said that his reason for turning over the property to his son was a desire to turn the boy's attention to real estate and to train him in handling large real estate projects and thus be able to continue his father's work.

"My son is just an ordinary boy," Mr. Lefcourt said. "But I want him to have all the advantage that I myself was denied when I was his age."

Mr. Lefcourt, who was born on the East Side, earned his first money as a newsboy and later left school to devote all his time to operating a bootblack stand, before entering the garment industry, in which he made the money he later devoted to his real estate operations.

LEAGUE DELAYS DEBATE ON DOPE BAN

Lack of Time to Curtail Consideration of Report in Open Sessions; U. S. Silent

By JAMES L. WILLIAMS, JR.
Universal Service Special Cable

GENEVA, Feb. 4.—Not before next Thursday will the League of Nations' advisory committee on traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs start its discussion in open session on the sub-committee's report on the plans for the limitation of manufacture that are to be submitted to the League Council.

Although the report has been finished it was announced that it will not be translated until "a time" today after which it must be approved.

ACTION DELAYED

By postponing until Thursday the discussion on the report on limitation of manufacture the full committee is evidently endeavoring to rush the report through as the members hope to adjourn on Saturday or Monday.

No indication has yet been given by John Kenneth Caldwell, the American observer, on the attitude toward the proceedings of the current session. It is believed that he may be under instructions to report upon the report to the home government which can then notify the league how to tackle the limitation of production.

HOPE IN BILL

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—For years we have been doing little but talk about the narcotic problem, and now the Porter bill gives us a chance actually to do something about it," Dr. George Parrish, city health officer, said.

"It is a good bill, a very good one. It is most welcome after all the discussing and fighting and accomplishing very little.

"Drug addicts are sick persons. It is true that eventually they frequently become criminals, but in the first stages of the habit they are subjects for medical treatment and not criminal prosecution. That is why I am particularly glad to see that the Porter bill approves an advisory committee of doctors to consult with the proposed narcotic bureau on the matter of legitimate use of drugs and preventive measures.

"With its recognition of the medical profession, its provision for a separate narcotic bureau administered by experts, and its rigid licensing regulations, the Porter bill will sweep away a lot of useless amateur effort and get the thing on an official basis.

Nominated for president by the Republican National Convention in Chicago June 10, 1916 and resigned from Supreme Court the same day.

On November 7, 1916, he received 254 electoral votes for the presidency, against 277 for Woodrow Wilson.

Served as secretary of state in the cabinets of Presidents Harding and Coolidge from March, 1921, to March, 1925, acting as chief delegate for the United States at the Washington arms conference.

Appointed by President Coolidge as a member of the Permanent Court of International Justice of the League of Nations in September, 1926.

Acted as chairman of the United States delegation to the sixth Pan-American conference in Havana, 1928.

Hughes Pleasing To Both Sides In Dry War

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(INS)—The opposing dry and anti-prohibition armies in Congress today professed satisfaction with the appointment of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the United States.

Senator Sheppard (Dem., of Texas, father of the Eighteenth Amendment, said:

"So far as I know, the appointment will make no change in the court's attitude toward the prohibition law."

The liberals were just as pleased, one of their senate leaders saying confidentially:

Mr. Hughes has never taken a position on the effectiveness of the prohibition law as a temperance measure and has never been classed as a dry.

"In addition to that," this leader added, "Mr. Hughes declined to serve as chairman of the President's law enforcement and observance commission, indicating he had no desire to get mixed up in the prohibition mess."

chief justiceship of William Howard Taft.

Hughes' nomination was sent to the Senate late yesterday and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, which is expected to take it up at its first meeting probably early next week. Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, chairman of the committee, says no opposition to confirmation is in prospect.

SELECTION SURPRISE

Hughes will assume office as soon as the Senate acts and after he has resigned as a judge of the Permanent Court of International Justice of the League of Nations. The Supreme Court now is in recess. It will reconvene February 24.

In selecting Mr. Hughes for the high post President Hoover surprised many officials who were certain that a change would elevate Associate Justice Harlan Fiske Stone to the post. Stone is a close personal friend.

The White House announced that the President had conferred with Hughes during the last two weeks concerning his taking over the post should Taft retire. Few of those connected with the White House knew of these conversations.

CAUSES COMMENT

With the court sharply divided, 6 to 3, in many vital constitutional decisions in the past three years, the first appointment to the court of Mr. Hoover occasioned unusually wide comment among lawyers and officials. Occasionally the court has divided, 5 to 4.

The majority of the court, including Chief Justice Taft, Justices Vandevanter, McReynolds, Butler, Sutherland, and Sanford, have frequently been at odds with Justices Holmes, Brandeis and Stone.

The appointment of a justice in sympathy with the three dissenting justices, it was pointed out, might have vitally affected many close decisions of vast importance.

The cleavage in the court has found its chief expression over methods of valuing public utilities and the extent to which states can go in enacting legislation without violating the Federal Constitution.

FAVORS MAJORITY

Arguments of Mr. Hughes in many important cases before the high tribunal in the last two years have indicated he believes in the tenets of the majority of the court.

In one of the most important cases before the court in the last decade, Mr. Hughes appeared as attorney for the Interboro Rapid Transit Company, of New York. In this case he maintained the theory that the Federal Constitution's protection to business was sufficient to overthrow the 5-cent fare contracted for by the city and subway company.

In another important case—the Chicago-Great Lakes diversion suit—Mr. Hughes served as special master and was in part overruled by the high court.

At the present time his second report to the court, complying with its instruction, is pending, and set for consideration on March 10. Attorneys for Illinois and the Chicago Sanitary District and six opposing Great Lakes states have filed objections to the report. It is expected Mr. Hughes will not participate in the court's deliberations.

Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., plans to resign as solicitor general when his father becomes the chief justice. His duties carry him frequently before the Supreme Court and he feels it would be an impropriety to plead government cases before a tribunal of which his father is the presiding officer.

Choice as Chief Justice Delights Hughes

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Charles Evans Hughes, nominated by President Hoover as chief justice of the United States, will accept the appointment as offering the greatest opportunity for service that could be offered by the government.

His face wreathed in a smile he displayed evident pleasure over the appointment when he greeted newspaper men at his law offices in lower Broadway.

He said he would issue a formal statement as soon as he received formal notice of his appointment but that he would resign at once as a justice of the world court.

He explained that his election as justice of the world court had merely been to fulfill the unexpired term of John Bassett Moore and his term would have ended in September.

Shortly before announcement of his nomination Mr. Hughes had issued the following statement in praise of retiring Chief Justice Taft:

"I regret much deeply that Chief Justice Taft is unable to continue in office.

"His work as Chief Justice has fully crowned a great career and will have an abiding influence. It was both the fine quality of that work and the spirit in which it was performed evincing not only the most conscientious industry and judicial independence, but an intense loyalty to the institution that have given great satisfaction to the country. Freed from the exactions of the office, it is hoped that he will find his days lengthened and that his heart will be cheered by the tributes of esteem and warm affection which he will receive in abundant measure from his grateful fellow countrymen."

TAFT HELPLESS, CARRIED HOME IN DAZE

body was noticeably shrunken from his illness.

A porter and a railroad policeman assisted the nurse in getting Taft to the rear platform. Here, he was placed in a chair and carried down the steps. It was a painful process. Half-way down the few steps, his helpers came to a rest, more for his sake than theirs. Taft thrust out a pale hand and grasped the rail. When they continued the downward move it was necessary to release his grip from the railing.

DOCTOR WORRIED

Meanwhile, Mrs. Taft, Dr. Hagner and W. W. Micheler, the sick man's secretary, stood on the platform and watched anxiously. It was most evident they were worried.

When at last Taft was lowered to the platform he was placed in a wheel chair.

"It's a tight fit," said Dr. Hagner, with a smile, and a flicker passed over the face of the man who has been known as the most jovial personage in public life.

He was wheeled to the exit where his car was waiting. There the photographers were stationed, flash guns affixed to their cameras, because of the half-light of the dawn. Even the booms of the flashes, literally in his face, failed to startle Taft, or arouse his interest.

NERVE-WRACKING TASK

The task of getting America's greatest statesman and jurist into his automobile was another nerve-wracking affair. He had to be lifted from the wheel chair and gently pushed and pulled into the rear seat.

Mrs. Taft, Dr. Hagner and Miss Manifold, the nurse, got in with him, and the limousine pulled away for the Wyoming avenue home.

When Taft reached his residence he was taken to the side entrance where he had installed an electric elevator several years ago. Dr. Hagner again experienced difficulty in moving the feet of his patient so that he could leave the automobile, and he literally was carried into the house.

Three Wanted for Gas Station Robbery

Three men were being sought today by North Side police for the robbery early this morning of the Hespenheide Gasoline service station at 1501 Irwin avenue. The robbers entered the station and ordered William Keller, 65, of 40 Mt. Vernon street, attendant, to open the cash drawer and give them the $30 it contained. Keller told police the three drove off in an automobile they had left standing in front of the station.

Grease Starts Fire In East End Store

Fire resulting from ignited grease on a freight elevator shaft caused only slight damage today at the J. G. McCrory 5 and 10 Cent store, 6023 Penn avenue, firemen reported. The flames were extinguished by store employes before the arrival of firemen.

ON SUNDAY in Los Angeles, the old-fashioned Chinese celebrated their New Year's day old style. Modern China takes over our calendar, new year and all. Some Chinese think that may offend the gods. Conspicuous in the celebration was the "Chinese Lion" carried on men's shoulders, doing a fantastic dance, on a rope-enclosed platform. The dance lasted for hours. When it was over, the lion collected money and food. He was not a real lion, of course. Old fashions are vanishing. It is thought China's new year lion will never dance again, in this country.

Policemen in fast automobiles, equipped with receiving apparatus, dash to the scene of the crime, and often capture the criminals fleeing with their plunder.

Army Reserve Corps, has again been appointed Greene County chairman to receive enrollments for the Citizens' Military Training Camps. Isherwood has served in this capacity for the past nine years. Thirteen enrollments in the C. M. T. C. corps have been alloted to Greene County.

Night Riders Freed Of Blame in Death

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Feb. 4.—County officials have abandoned the theory that Arra Williams, Virginia Negro, whose body was found frozen in an ice float at Bellaire, O., last week, met her death at the hands of night riders. The presence of tar on the body which caused suspicion to be pointed at a secret organization, was caused by being drawn through clumps of bushes, on which coal tar had been spilled, it was revealed at the inquest.

Seek Lone Burglar In Theft of $65

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 4.—A search was being made today for a lone robber who last night held up the Nease Auto Supply Company store in Washington, Pa., and escaped with $65 taken from the cash register. Charles Bennett, the night attendant, was in charge when the robber entered and took the money. The robber escaped in an automobile.

MAWSON PARTY CHARTS COAST

By SIR DOUGLAS MAWSON

Commander of the British Australian and New Zealand Antarctic Research Expedition.

By Radio via London.

S. S. DISCOVERY, Antarctica, Jan. 28.—(delayed)—The last several days we have been busy running the marine section of the expedition in full detail from the Enderby Land coast into the deep basin of the southern ocean.

This necessitates the conducting of a number of stations at successive stages as we draw away from the land. Today's position was Latitude 63.50 South, Longitude 54.16 East, placing us almost directly due north of Cape Anne, Enderby Land. Our operations are being conducted at a depth of 5,354 meters.

Special features of our discoveries have been the richness in nekton (small swimming marine organisms) in the waters 1,000 meters below the surface, and the large quantities of fish seized, some of which are of quite extraordinary form.

Today we found an abundance of blue whales, one of which we shot as it lay almost full length out of the water.

Misses' Evening Frocks

Which Look Toward a New Season, While Serving the Present One

$25 $39.50

Here are the new frocks which are making the wistful, young thing exclaim, "How evening fashions have changed! . . . I shall just have to have a new dress for the dance next week."

. . . Frocks with the new skirt lengths, varying according to the formality and informality of the occasion. Frocks with higher waistlines, and with lower decolletages. Frocks which look toward a new season, while serving the present one. Frocks with the beloved little cap sleeves, for dinners and informal dances, along with the most formal types for "grand" occasions.

. . . Of crepe de chine, crepe-with-tulle, taffeta-with-tulle, plain chiffon, chiffon in natural flower patterns, lace in black and colors, and the very, very new printed cotton net.

Annual Sale of Sample Glassware and Lamps

—in the BASEMENT

This morning we placed on sale thousands of pieces of glassware and lamps at amazingly low prices. They are all samples bought by us from several of the largest of the manufacturers who participated in the recent National Glassware Exhibit in Pittsburgh.

In addition to obtaining substantial concessions from these makers on their entire sample lines, we eliminated all freight charges, usually a big item. Most items in the sale are new, shown for the first time to the public anywhere. Being samples, they are mostly one-of-a-kind and the best specimens of the makers' craftsmanship. Some of them are actually priced less than usual wholesale cost.

A truly rare opportunity to obtain smart occasional glassware or a beautiful new lamp or two for your own use—for gifts, prizes or favors, at most unusual savings.

Included are glassware sets and single pieces in wide variety, as well as floor and table lamp bases, some with shades . . . and separate shades, most of them of silk, plainly tailored.

. . . Horne's, Basement . . .

A Fashion-Thrift Feature

Printed Frocks

In Sizes for Everyone

$10

This is a Fashion-Thrift feature group, which includes sizes for all who may be concerned:

Average-size Women Large Women
Small Women Misses

The prints are as widely diversified as the size range. All of them in good colorings, in designs which are in the best of taste, and with black or colored grounds.

The frocks have been simply designed, so that the prints may stand out as the note of interest.

. . . Horne's, Second Floor . . .

Silk Handbags

$2.95

New fabrics as well as new designs . . . are the unmistakable means these handbags choose of proving their newness. Small pouches of plain-colored silk with a loop dangling from the slide fastener the only ornament . . . envelope bags of flat crepe with vivid colored leather bands decorating the flaps . . . and black moire and jacquard silk bags in small, afternoon models. Other plain silk bags have a colored metal frame that will blend with pastel costumes.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

Valentine Favors

Dainty, feminine novelties from the Ribbon Section . . . offer new suggestions for your Valentine party favors . . . and all of them are quite inexpensive.

Heart-shaped handkerchief cases, of red satin, lace or ruffle trimmed, 50c each.

Lace-trimmed garters of red ribbon, 50c. Favor sachets in tiny baskets or tulle bags, from 35c to $1.00.

Ribbons for tying Valentine gifts and prizes . . . red satin, from 15c to $1.00 a bolt . . . white ribbons with red Valentine motifs, 40c to $1.15 a bolt . . . Red tulle ribbon with gold designs, 15c to 50c a yard.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

Chiffon 'Kerchiefs

For Every Frock

50c

It's quite fashionable to wear a gauzy chiffon 'kerchief tied to your wrist in the evening . . . fluttering from your pocket or sleeve at afternoon teas and bridge parties!

Those for evening are in plain pastel shades, with delicate corners or inserts of lace. For more informal wear there are printed ones, in the loveliest color harmonies, with hand-rolled edges. And their price is so low that you may carry a different one with every frock!

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

New! Shell-Like Bracelets

Now that fashion has concentrated her attention on the sleeves of the new frocks . . . even making some of them three-quarter length, bracelets become a necessary adjunct to the ensemble.

These new bracelets of colored segments of simulated prystal—assume the designs of buckled wrist-straps, clusters of shells, or wide bands that alternate harmonious colors. In pastels and deeper hues, $1.75 to $3.50.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

Snapshot Enlargements

45c

Many of your favorite snapshots would be well worth framing, if they were enlarged and clarified. The enlarging process brings out the finer details that are sometimes almost unnoticed in a small snapshot. So bring in your favorite negatives while these 8x10-inch enlargements are specially priced at 45c each.

Go Easy on that Old Heirloom

When several friends drop in and the supply of living room chairs is none too ample, what ingenuity and diplomacy a hostess has to use to see that everyone picks out just the right chair . . . to see, especially, that the "old heirloom" is not singled out by the heaviest man in the party.

Now is the time to look at your living room searchingly and critically, to see if there is not a chair or two that should be replaced . . . or another chair added. As a real incentive we feature—

Three Chairs in the Furniture Sale

At $45

Large occasional chair with all-walnut frame, covered in red, green or rust tapestry. Note the high back. $45.00.

(Sketched below)

Small pull-up chair with all-mahogany frame, covered with damask (assorted). Note neatly carved legs and arms. $45.00.

New Silks Designed for the Occasion

The type of prints, this season, very definitely determines the occasion for their use. Chiffons for evening frocks blend their pastel prints so that the design seems gradually to appear out of the background . . . chiffons for afternoon show a similar blurring of design in other colorings. The printed crepes for street or tailored frocks are almost geometrically placed, but when used for afternoon frocks, the more flowery patterns are chosen. For sports wear, rajah is printed with bright designs widely spaced on white, natural or light-colored grounds.

Crepes and Chiffons, $2.95 and $3.95 yard.
Printed Rajah, $2.55 yard.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

36-Inch Rayon Taffeta

75c Yard

One of the outstanding fabrics in the Wash Goods section, this color-fast, lustrous rayon taffeta . . . with that rich satin-like finish that makes it so suitable for pillows, spreads, negligees and hangings. The colors include many pastel shades suitable for boudoir furnishings, gold, blue, and black.

Washable Rayon Pique, 85c Yd.

The sports-like weave of pique with the slight lustre that the rayon imparts makes this rayon pique a fashionable fabric for sports frocks, ensembles or for home dresses. Beautiful printed designs on light-colored grounds are shown in the new colors.

UNIONS BATTLE FOR STRIKERS

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 4 —A battle for control of the non-union striking miners employed in the Elk Lick and Glendale mines of the Valley Camp Coal Company, subsidiary of the J. A. Paisley Corporation of Cleveland, was launched here today between the United Mine Workers of America and the newly-organized National Miners Union.

The National organization won the first victory when a mass meeting was held this morning in the old Lutheran Church Building at which time Joseph Tarr, of Illinois; Charles Guynn, of Lansing, O., district organizers and Sender Garling, of Pittsburgh, editor of the Coal Diggers, were speakers. Guynn was arrested at Martins Ferry, O., in company with two others and tried for Communist activities under the criminal syndicalism act. He was sentenced to serve from one to 10 years in the State Prison, but is now out under bond.

Van A. Bittner, of Clarksburg, W. Va., is in charge of the United Mine Workers' activities and Joseph Angelo, of Bridgeport, O., a veteran of many strikes, is actively in charge. He claims to have many members in the union now working under non-union conditions pending final decision to unionize in the state.

The National organization decided to ask for a flat hourly wage of 58 cents an hour for coal loaders. The company had announced a cut to 45 cents which caused the strike. The cut is also effective at the four Elm Grove mines operated by the company east of Wheeling.

FOUR CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 4 —(AP.)—Four children of William Hoover, one a baby of 6 months, were burned to death when fire destroyed the Hoover home six miles northeast of South Bend, yesterday.

Mrs. Hoover entered the blazing home to save one child, but before she could rescue the other youngsters the frame cottage was enveloped in flames.

Three other children of the Hoover family were on their way home from school when the house burned.

Chic Frock for Small Miss

Pattern 1837

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Just as stunning as can be—but very easy to make—this frock with simple blouse and pleated skirt. The clever neck and the short sleeves are bound in contrasting color which is repeated in the narrow leather belt. Note the straight French panties which have replaced bloomers to a great extent, particularly with tailored dresses.

For Pattern 1837 we suggest linen, pique, broadcloth, gingham or pongee, in solid color or white printed in gayly colored designs. The binding may be made of fabric or of braid. Red and white combinations are lovely.

May be obtained only in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 requires 2⅝ yards of 36-inch material and 1½ yards braid.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

The NEW WINTER FASHION BOOK is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

SUES HUSBAND FOR $500,000

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4—(AP.)—Dr. St. Louis Estes, wealthy health lecturer formerly of Chicago, yesterday was charged with wife desertion in a suit filed in Superior Court by Mrs. Clara Estes, who asked separate maintenance for herself and three children. She asked $500,000 alimony. In a companion suit against Dr. Esther L. Moran she asked $500,000 for alienation of her husband's affections.

Mrs. Estes charged that her husband had lived with Mrs. Moran since 1924 and that he was the father of the other woman's six children.

Dr. Estes was declared in the complaint to have an income in excess of $100,000 annually and accused of supplying Mrs. Moran with a luxurious home, servants and automobiles.

Real Estate was and is and always will be a good investment. Turn to the Classified Section for Pittsburgh opportunities.

NAME RECEIVER FOR MORLEY

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Samuel Besson, Hoboken lawyer, was named receiver in equity for Christopher Morley's theatrical ventures in that city. The receivership was petitioned by Morley, playwright and author, and granted by Vice Chancellor John J. Bentley.

In his petition, Morley blames insolvency upon a former treasurer of the company, without naming him.

About three years ago Morley opened the Rialto theater with a production of "After Dark." He later leased the Lyric theater which he also ran with a revival of "The Black Crook." Both had long runs. The Lyric was closed about a year ago. Morley still operates the Rialto, where he opened a new revue a few weeks ago.

NO JOBS NOW AT BOULDER DAM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Workmen of the nation were warned by Francis I. Jones, director general of the Federal Employment Service, not to go to Boulder Dam Canyon at this time to seek employment on the dam project.

Calling attention to what he said was a general impression that construction was to start at once, Jones asserted it would be several months before any work begins. He also warned against sending money to any private employment agencies that might offer to supply information about the need for workmen at the dam.

METHODIST MEN TO ORGANIZE

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The men's work commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church will concentrate this year, it has decided, on a campaign to organize brotherhood groups in every unit of the denomination. That will mean a total of 18,000, with 5,000 of these already formed. The commission, holding its third annual meeting, decided to hold its 1931 meeting in Chicago and then re-elected all its officers, including President Edgar T. Welch of Westfield, N. J.

Bishop Edward Bake of Indianapolis, Ind., spoke last night at a banquet in honor of Federal Judge Will M. Sparks of Chicago, a former district president.

When you begin to Pay . . . . .

. . . . . You begin to OWN your piano and your family receives Full Life Insurance Protection . . . . . .

Enjoying their new possession . . . which will not be snatched away if anything happens to you. The Life Insurance Clause of this cooperative agreement takes care of that

WHEN you pay your $25 down, you begin right then and there to own one of these beautiful pianos.

When you make your first month's payment, you have taken the second step toward ownership; the second month another step; the third month still another step, and so on, until the first thing you know you will be the proud owner of a fine Aeolian-made Grand Piano for which you will have paid but $435—without having missed it.

This cooperative plan is a mutually helpful one. It is based on the principle of "you help me and I'll help you". It even includes Life Insurance protection for your family. In the event of your death, before the completion of payments on the piano, the remaining payments will be cancelled immediately (it matters not how few payments you have made) and the piano will be turned over to your family, free of any encumbrance whatsoever.

This is just another important safeguard that this cooperative plan affords you.

The value of these pianos as an investment

By purchasing one of these pianos, you are putting your money in a sound investment. All the while you are making your monthly payments — even before your ownership is completed — this investment is constantly paying you back in dividends of enjoyment and the pride you feel in so valuable a possession.

$435 is so much less than the present market price for a piano of this grade, that your investment has really increased in value by the time you have fully paid for it. And within one year you may exchange it for any one of the celebrated makes carried by our house — without taking a single penny's loss — and yet you have had the pleasure of using it for one whole year.

Could there be a more safe, sound and profitable investment?

THE PROPOSITION IN BRIEF

AN AEOLIAN-BUILT PIANO for $435

is the big feature of this cooperative sale. In addition there are the following points to remember

1 . . . THE AEOLIAN COMPANY has never before manufactured a Grand piano to retail at less than $645.

2 . . . $25 IS ALL IT TAKES TO JOIN THIS COOPERATIVE MOVEMENT, and then but $12.50 a month, plus a small carrying charge. Ordinarily you would have to pay from $50 to $100 down, and $20, $30, or $50 a month.

3 . . . A FIVE YEAR GUARANTEE, signed by the manufacturers—The Aeolian Company—and ourselves, is one of the important protective features of the cooperative plan.

4 . . . YOU MAY EXCHANGE THIS PIANO WITHIN ONE YEAR from the date of purchase for any of the celebrated makes carried by our house, without losing a single penny—so great is our confidence in its value.

5 . . . THE LIFE INSURANCE CLAUSE PROTECTS YOUR FAMILY—Under this cooperative plan any payments remaining unpaid in the event of your death are automatically cancelled, and the piano left free of encumbrance to your family—a safeguard which should not be overlooked.

6 . . . YOU CAN STILL FURTHER REDUCE THE COST OF YOUR INSTRUMENT by getting others to join the cooperative plan.

If you have a Piano keep it tuned and use it. Mellor's Corps of Piano Tuners are the Best to be had.

HIGHEST COURT HEARS WOMAN

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Bethune Campbell, wife of a Boston (Mass.) clergyman, yesterday became the first woman appellant to plead in person before the highest court in the British Empire.

Mrs. Campbell is the daughter of the late Lady Elizabeth Howland of Toronto, and the case is an appeal from a judgment of a Canadian court in the matter of trusteeship of her mother's estate.

The clergyman's wife has lived in Boston for 21 years. She has a son in Harvard and a daughter in another school. She has never studied law, but has been in London since August, reading in the British Museum and the Privy Council in preparation for her appeal.

When the case was called the Judges, Lord Blanesburgh, Lord Warrington and Lord Russell, of Killowen, took their seats at the large table in the center of the room.

Mrs. Campbell, a slim figure, neatly attired, appeared calm and self-possessed as she took up the papers which formed her printed pleadings, already laid before the court.

MOTHER!
Doctors Agree On Best Body, Bone and Mentality Builder

FOR FRAIL, SICKLY CHILDREN

There are any number of tonics and health builders in use today, but there's just one which eminent doctors all over the world agree is best to build up rundown, underweight children and to assure them perfect nutrition, sound eyes, teeth, body and bone development—that's Cod Liver Oil.

And now science has discovered a method of putting Cod Liver Oil Vitamins (and it's these Vitamins which are so beneficial to health—the oil without the Vitamins is useless) into sugar-coated tablet form—so pleasant to take!

Two McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets equal one full teaspoon of pure Norwegian, Vitamin tested Cod Liver Oil and are equally as good for every ailment, sickness, rundown or underweight condition for which Cod Liver Oil is prescribed.

Puny, ailing and backward children start to pick right up after taking McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets because they do get just the Vitamins they need. Intellect becomes keener, vital energy to resist disease is added, little nervous traits disappear—they grow robust, active and strong.

An ideal way of giving growing boys and girls the necessary Vitamins A and D of which modern foods and cooking methods are robbing them.

60 tablets, 60c at all drugstores.

McCreery & Company
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dear Sirs:

Referring to the three shirts which you submitted to us, we herewith give you our analysis of them.

The shirt which is marked "Clarement-Kingswear" is made of our Kingswear Broadcloth and is up to the standard quality of Kingswear fabric.

The other two shirts which you submitted to us, and which have the label thereon of Kingswear, in one instance, and "Kingswear Imported" in the other instance, we have carefully analysed and find that neither of these shirts are made of Kingswear Broadcloth, and made of fabrics very much inferior to our quality.

We have asked the manufacturer who sold these shirts, to instruct his customer to withdraw them from sale, providing that the shirts they are offering with the Kingswear label, are not Kingswear quality.

We recognize that you have been using Kingswear quality for a great many years, and we propose to keep this cloth to the same high standard of quality.

If there is any manner in which we can be of further service to you, do not hesitate to call upon us.

Very respectfully yours,
Cohn-Hall-Marx Co.

KOHLER OUSTER AFFIRMED

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The State Supreme Court today ruled the corrupt practices act constitutional in its application to elective officers of the state. It ordered returned to the Circuit Court an action to oust Gov. Walter J. Kohler from office.

Leaders of the Progressive Republican faction in Wisconsin started the action against the Governor contending he violated the corrupt practices act by making excessive expenditures during the campaign in 1928.

In Circuit Court Judge James Wickham, Eau Claire, sustained a demurrer filed by the Governor's attorneys which admitted the charge, but contended the corrupt practices act unconstitutional. The Supreme Court's ruling today reversed Judge Wickham's decision.

ROUGHAGE IN DIET NEEDED IN REDUCING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Eliminates Danger

Are you one of those who are reducing by diet? If so, there is one important thing you should know—diets that do not include roughage cause constipation, often with serious consequences. Guard against it!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains the roughage needed to insure regular elimination. It is guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or your money will be refunded. Two tablespoons daily—in serious cases, with each meal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is not fattening. But it does add valuable iron to the blood which helps prevent anemia (another dieting danger) and bring a glowing, healthy color to the complexion.

You can enjoy Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in many delightful ways. As a ready-to-eat cereal with milk, honey, sprinkled over cereals and salads, in soups and soaked in fruit juices. It is appetizing in cooked food. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

DOT KING QUIZ LINKS BROKER

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The investigations into the death of Mrs. Aurelia Fisher Dreyfuss in Washington a year ago, and the slaying several years ago of Dorothy (Dot) King, New York showgirl, were shunted temporarily, at least, to Chicago today.

James E. Dowd, former head of a Chicago brokerage firm, ostensibly asked to the state's attorney's office to answer questions concerning recent bucket shop raids in which he was a witness, was questioned in the hope that he might be able to supply information that would assist in the Dreyfuss investigation.

Mrs. Dreyfuss died in a fall from the balcony of a Washington yacht club last fall and Edmun J. McBrien, who was held pending an investigation, was exonerated of blame. At the request of relatives of Mrs. Dreyfuss, the case has been reopened.

Arnold H. Harris, counsel for Dowd, said a picture showing his client, McBrien and Mrs. Dreyfuss, taken at a Long Island summer resort, led investigators to question Dowd.

The King slaying entered into the Dreyfuss investigation after it was learned that Mrs. Dreyfuss had established an alibi for a suspect during the King inquiry, Attorney Harris said.

Attorney Harris said Dowd "thought he had information that would startle the public if it became known, but he declined to answer all questions put to him pending advice from me."

Amen Corner Honors Barnett at Feast

Luke Barnett, local entertainer, was honored at a testimonial dinner in the William Penn Hotel, tendered by members of the Amen Corner last night. The speakers were Judges W. H. S. Thomson and Frank Patterson, Senators Frank J. Harris and W. D. Mansfield Coroner William J. McGregor and John F. O'Toole.

President John Murray presided. He introduced Dennis A. Harris, the toastmaster, and in turn Harris introduced the speakers.

CHICAGO GANG KILLS ANOTHER

CHICAGO, Feb. 4. (INS.)—Less than 10 hours after State's Attorney John A. Swanson summoned Commissioner of Police William A. Russell for a "showdown" on conditions of terrorism in Chicago, which in the last four days have brought six gang murders, seven bombings, kidnapings and numerous hold-ups, the underworld roared another defiance to law and order.

William Healey, 37, known as a beer hustler and minor racketeer, was lured to an alley and his body was riddled with bullets. He was rushed to a hospital, where physicians said he could live only a few hours.

Swanson charged flatly that known hoodlums and gunmen are allowed to congregate nightly in downtown hotels to plot acts of violence. He demanded that drastic steps be taken immediately to end the terrorism that has existed in Chicago for the past 10 years.

The latest victim of gunmen, Healey, refused to tell police the names of his assailants. Detectives believe he incurred the enmity of a gang of beer runners.

"Conditions have become positively alarming," said Swanson.

HINSDALE, Ill., Feb. 4. (INS.)—Du Page county officials waged a war today against racketeers following the bombing of a motion picture theater owned by George W. Krueger, former union operator of Minneapolis.

Krueger, who was beaten and shot recently in Chicago, blamed the attack upon a labor union.

Ex-Burgess Asks Fees at Braddock

Former Burgess William L. Callahan, of Braddock, presented a bill for $6,000 to the borough council last night as fees for the discharge of prisoners over a period of six years. He contends that up until April, 1929, he was entitled, under the law, to $2 for each prisoner discharged. The bill was referred to the borough solicitor.

Rail Watchman Hurt When Hit by Auto

Andrew Faulds, 59, of 210 West Hazel way, West Homestead, a railroad watchman, was struck by an automobile and severely injured last night at Eighth and McClure avenues, Homestead. The driver of the car, B. A. Wilkoff, of 320 Evaline street, Pittsburgh, was arrested.

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

HARRY RICHMAN, Mildred Harris Chaplin, Lillian Roth, Jack Oakie, Lew Cody and other movie stars will assist Paul Whiteman and His Band in celebrating the first anniversary of Old Gold Hour, tonight at 9 over WJAS. Richman will sing "With You," a number from his new motion picture.

At the hour when folks have been accustomed to hearing Sacred Songs over KDKA, a new feature, "The Evening Altar," will be introduced at 7:30 by Dr. Carl Wallace Petty. A choir will sing many favorite hymns. This program will continue for 12 weeks while the sponsor of Sacred Songs recuperates in Florida.

Dr. Petty.

Famous French composers will contribute to the Eveready Hour WCAE at 9, while the Blackstone Music at 8 o'clock from WJAS will include the singing of "Casey Jones" by Frank Crumit.

We Now Present

An extra 15 minutes will be added to the Don Bestor program over KDKA Thursday night to broadcast greetings from winners of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Radio Poll. Lloyd C. Thomas, commercial manager of Westinghouse stations, will accept a certificate of award for KDKA, chosen the most popular station.

Through the eyes of a "mike" placed in the Lincoln Museum, the one-time boarding house in which Abraham Lincoln died, the Columbia System and WJAS will take their listeners on a word picture tour of inspection of this national shrine as a part of the Lincoln birthday program, February 12.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 30 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel—just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, safe and pleasant.

Nogriping is the "keynote" of these little sugar coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one dose of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

FRAUD CHARGED TO SOLICITORS

Solicitors who present a letter from Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh authorizing them to solicit advertising for the Law Enforcement Year Book are frauds and should be reported to the authorities at once, the superintendent announced today.

Several complaints from manufacturers and business men have reach Walsh's ears that at least four solicitors have identified themselves with a letter of authorization alleged to have been written by him.

"At no time have I ever issued letters to advertising solicitors," Walsh said. "In order to stop the fraud I suggest that any person who is approached by a solicitor showing a letter supposedly written by me, notify police at once. Immediate action will be taken. The letter is a forgery."

Needless Pain!

Some folks take pain for granted.

They let a cold "run its course."

They wait for their headaches to "wear off."

If suffering from neuralgia or from neuritis, they rely on feeling better in the morning.

Save yourself a lot of pain and discomfort through the many uses of Bayer Aspirin. Protect yourself by buying the genuine. Bayer is safe. Always the same. All drugstores.

DU PONT URGES STATES RULE ON LIQUOR

SIDE WALKS of Pittsburgh

by WILLIAM PFARR

ONE good Shaw story deserves another, which we have stolen somewhere or other. George Bernard was eating in a London cafe. The orchestra's jazz music was offensive to the ear. Mr. Shaw beckoned the waiter.

"Will you have the orchestra play something for me?" Mr. Shaw asked.

"Certainly, certainly, what do you prefer?"

"Solitaire."

One of Pittsburgh's distinguished painters is Milan Petrovits, who has two hobbies. In the summer he turns farmer on his place in Rosedale and in the winter he feeds the birds. Petrovits tills his own soil and as he tills he rakes. The fruit and vegetables which decorate the Petrovits table are, so to speak, Petrovits-grown and if you enthusiastically reach for another radish, the painter boasts pardonably, "I grew that myself."

Between 4 and 5 o'clock in the winter afternoon Petrovits tosses corn and crumbs to hundreds of sparrows and redbirds which swarm to his little farm. He inherited this ritual from his father-in-law, Capt. Fuehrer, a scientist and hunter of note. When the captain departed for their ancestral city, Vienna, recently, Petrovits succeeded him as the bread-winner for the birds.

Petrovits' step-brother, Olie Narray, is one of Hungary's greatest painters. Narray tried living in America a few years ago, but returned to his first home when he discovered that we stared unashamedly at his beard.

MR. HARRY DAVIS, one of Pittsburgh's pioneer and most successful showmen, spends these days looking out over the Pitt campus from his rooms in the Schenley. Since he was stricken with a partial paralysis three years ago, he has not left his rooms. However, if he has been robbed of some of his physical motions, he remains mentally alert. He spends most of his time playing casino for penny stakes and having the newspapers read to him.

Mr. Davis entered the show business when moving picture theaters were far removed from the era of de luxe houses. Progressing with the pictures, he became one of the country's best showmen. Men who worked under him will tell you that he was a stickler for cleanliness and appropriateness in his theaters. A hundred young men who were trained in the ways of the theater by him today are able to appreciate the soundness of that training.

In a dictionary intended for distribution among high school students we discovered what various names are supposed to signify. Zaccheus, for instance, indicates innocence, but Ignatius is fiery; Amelia energetic and Clara bright; Isaac laughter and Leopold bold for the people; Constance means firm and, surprisingly enough, Mary signifies bitterness. Sophronia spells sound mind, and if you asked us why we went to the bother of copying this stuff out of a book and printing it in the paper we couldn't answer.

Will Rogers Says:

S. S. ILE DE FRANCE, Feb. 4.

RAIN spoiled it. Sunday H. L. Mencken and I were going to Hyde Park, London, where if you have anything against the government or king or even any one as low down as a Sir, why jump up on a box and get it out of your system. They sink the navy, impeach the crown, and cancel the debts and when they finish they are just as happy as if it had been done.

It's real democracy. Over home you have to be elected to the Senate before you can do it. I was going to enter Mencken. He says the system is still in vogue in Maryland, the only civilized state left.

Yours,

WILL.

LOVEJOY

Explaining Man's Visit Perplexes Lovejoy

CHAPTER XXIV.

SAM OLIVER made Lovejoy think of the ancient Greek athletes who used to rub their bodies with oil before a race.

Not that there was anything athletic-looking about him, . . . For there wasn't. He was small and slender and pale. But everything about him was sleek and smooth and oily-looking, somehow, from the black hair of his head to his shiny black patent leather shoes.

"Lovejoy, this is my very good friend, Sam Oliver," Aline said, introducing him, and Lovejoy felt his palm pressed hard against hers as they shook hands. It felt smooth and it clung to hers too long.

"I asked you to pick me up here at Lovejoy's house because I didn't want anyone to see you over at my house again," Aline told him. "Love's blind, but the neighbors aren't, you know."

She laughed at her own joke as she began to mix him a highball in one of the tall new green tumblers that Lovejoy had bought for the new house.

"Don't make a drink for me," Lovejoy said to her. "This is Hilda's day off, and I've got to take care of the baby, remember."

As if he had heard what she said the baby suddenly began to wail from his little room at the back of the house.

She hurried out to him, and by the time she had put him to sleep once more Aline and Sam Oliver were ready to leave the house.

Great Risk

Decides to Stop Getting Aline's Letters

Aline had gone into Lovejoy's bedroom and had helped herself to Lovejoy's new spring hat—a gray blue straw that happened to match the military-looking cape she was wearing.

"I knew you wouldn't mind if I borrowed this, darling," she said lightly as she kissed Lovejoy goodby and went out into the rain with Sam Oliver.

But Lovejoy did mind. The hat was new. It had cost $15 and she had never worn it herself.

It came to her all at once that she minded having her house used as a meeting-place for Aline and her sweethearts, too.

There was a strong smell of liquor and cigar smoke in the little house, and she threw open the front door for a moment to let in the fresh damp air.

The postman was coming up the steps with two letters in his hand. One was a bill from the furniture store and the other was one of the South Port letters for Aline.

Lovejoy frowned down at it as she took it from him.

When we move into the new house, she said to herself, I'll tell her not to have any more of these things sent to me.

The risk was really too great . . . Suppose Tom opened one of them some time or other? Jealous husbands had been known to do such things—and Tom was certainly jealous.

He'd think I was the worst woman in the world—to help another woman carry on a secret love affair, Lovejoy went on thinking as she turned back into the house.

Steve Phones

Lovejoy Is Glad When He Rings Off

The telephone was ringing.

"Hello," Steve Oglebay's voice came over the wire when she picked up the receiver. "Hello, Lovejoy. I haven't heard from you for so long that I've been worried. Have you been ill?—Is anything wrong?"

"No. I've just been busy," Lovejoy answered. "We're moving into the new house on the corner in a few days and I've been buying furniture for it . . . But I've thought about you often, Steve."

She hadn't, though. He had hardly crossed her mind during these last two or three weeks while she had been so busy and happy, planning for the new house.

It was only when she was bored and unhappy that she thought about Steve Oglebay.

The only times she had ever turned to him were the times when Tom had made her jealous, or when Tom had left her alone and had gone out to play cards with Al Alderson.

But now that she and Tom were friends once again—lovers once again—there was no need in her life for Steve Oglebay.

There wasn't even any room for him, and she was glad when he said goodby and rang off.

When Tom came home at night he always went straight to the corner of the living room where his armchair stood with a reading lamp tilted at just the right angle above it.

On that rainy night in May he went out to his bedroom first to take off his wet shoes and put on his house slippers.

A moment later Lovejoy, heating the baby's milk in the kitchen, heard him walk into the livingroom. She heard the rustle of his newspaper, the creaking of his chair as he sat down in it, the click of the lamp as he turned the light on. . . . Pleasant familiar cozy sounds.

She smiled softly to herself as she took the bottle out of the hot water, wiped it off on a clean tea-towel and started into the diningroom.

But as she opened the door the smile faded from her face and a look of horror took its place.

Tom was coming towards her from the livingroom, and in his hand was the butt of a cigar. A cigar with a red and gold band around it.

The last time Lovejoy had seen it, it had been held between the wet red lips of Aline's friend, Sam Oliver.

"What's that thing?" she asked, and her own lips felt stiff and numb as she spoke.

"Well, inasmuch as I can see and feel and smell, I'd say that it was the stub of a 50-cent cigar," Tom replied.

There was no sarcasm in his voice. And in his face was nothing but grave questioning.

"Whose was it? How did it get into this house?" he asked. "I found it in my ash-tray just now—away over in the corner."

His wife widened her blue-

SOLUTION NEAR IN GLASSPORT SQUABBLE

Judge Suggests New Keys To Office for Burgess; Ordered to File Briefs

From the bench of Common Pleas Court Judge Richard W. Martin today made a suggestion that apparently settled one phase of the Glassport political squabble involving the alleged efforts of Council to bar Burgess Seward J. Gross from the municipal building.

Attorney C. A. Davis, for Council, was arguing that Burgess Gross had made no demand on Council for admittance.

"Why were the locks changed?" asked Judge Martin.

NEW KEYS SUGGESTED

"Because a revolver and other property had been stolen and there were too many keys," replied Davis.

Judge Martin conferred a moment with Judges Thomas J. Ford and Joseph M. Swearingen.

"Why not give the burgess a set of new keys?" said Judge Martin.

"That is agreeable to us," replied Attorney Davis.

Attorney David L. Starr for Burgess Gross made no objection.

Argument was then made on proceedings brought by Burgess Gross against the eight policemen to require them to show by what authority they are serving. The burgess suspended the force recently, but Council reinstated them.

MUST FILE BRIEFS

"The burgess was simply trying to get rid of the police force without due cause," asserted Attorney Davis. "Why, he assigned one policeman to motorcycle duty and he couldn't ride a motorcycle."

The court asked counsel to file briefs late today, with a view to making a prompt decision in the case.

Estate Placed in Trust for Widow

Cassie L. Winkler, of Aylesboro avenue, widow of Leo Winkler, was made sole beneficiary of a $35,000 estate placed in trust. At the time of her death, the will stipulates, Mrs. Winkler may dispose of the estate in any manner she may see fit. Should she die intestate the money will revert to her daughter, Betty Wrinkler. The Union National Bank of Pittsburgh is named trustee and executor.

LAW CHANGE ASKED IN TALK HERE

Voice on Prohibition Termed Right of People in Speech At Engineers' Dinner

A change in the Eighteenth Amendment giving states the right to permit the sale of liquor was proposed by Pierre Samuel du Pont, chairman of the board of directors of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company, at the fiftieth anniversary dinner of the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania in the William Penn Hotel last night.

Charging that the liquor problem never had been approached from an engineering standpoint, that instead of trying to correct intemperance the nation has tried to stop all drinking, that the public attitude on the question before the passage of the amendment has been misrepresented, du Pont suggested a plan by which the burden of prohibition will be transferred from the national government to the individual states.

KEEPS SALOON BAN

His plan would continue the abolition of the saloon, but would permit an expression of the public attitude towards prohibition by making it iposible for states to enact legislation reducing the stringency of prohibition.

In summarizing the plan he said:

"Let Congress propose an amendment to the Eighteenth Amendment which, if ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the states, will permit any state to submit an amendment to its constitution or to propose an initiative or referendum for taking over complete or partial control of the liquor traffic, to insure the right to import liquor for state consumption and to insure the protection of other states from the liquor traffic that might be established among neighboring states.

"If prohibition has been proved successful, as claimed, and if the people of the United States are overwhelmingly prohibitionists, no state would take over control of its liquor traffic and the Eighteenth Amendment would remain in force strengthened and supported by the fact that the people of no state would undertake to change its provisions. At one stroke the opposition would be deprived of the strongest argument against prohibition, namely that it was forced upon an unwilling people in a manner that even a majority cannot alter in the least degree.

CHOICE UP TO PEOPLE

"However if the claims of ill success are true, if the people do not want national prohibition of any kind, the opportunity to express themselves is their due.

"It will be observed that this plan is a mere broadening of the Eighteenth Amendment. The Supreme Court has held that

AGED CHINESE HIT BY AUTO

Yee Gin, 79, one of Chinatown's oldest residents, was in Mercy Hospital today with a fractured left arm suffered last night when he was struck by an automobile at Seventh avenue and Bigelow boulevard.

Police instituted a search for the motorist who was said to have failed to stop after hitting the aged man.

Gin emigrated from his native land to San Francisco 60 years ago and for the last 10 years had resided in Pittsburgh's Chinese colony. Gin was returning to his home, 523 Third avenue, when he was struck.

Hurler of Brick, Garbage Can Arrested

After tossing a garbage can through the window of a jewelry store at 427 Water street, and hurling a brick through the windshield of an automobile, Simon Robertson, 134 Boggs avenue, took to his heels, early today, police testified in Central Police Court. He was captured after a chase across the Smithfield Street Bridge.

He was held over by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. The auto belonged to Leo Maskey, of McKeesport, a clerk in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station.

SCHOOL ON FIRE BANS READY

Janitors, watchmen, guards and building superintendents of Allegheny County, will attend the opening of the fire prevention school, the first of its kind in this district, at 7:30 p. m., today in the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. Fire Chief Richard Smith, will be the principal speaker, discussing causes of fire and best means to prevent accumulation of combustible material for the sake of safety.

Charles Donley, chairman of the Life and Property Protection Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the school, will act as chairman. Sessions of the school will be held each Tuesday night during the month, and nationally-known experts on fire prevention will be present to give talks.

McKees Rocks Man Charged With Fraud

Charged with fraudulent conversion, Paul Preshlak, of 308 Helen street, McKees Rocks, was held for court in $2,000 bond by Justice of the Peace Mrs. Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, last night. Eugene Stefanoviteh, 23, a nephew, of 1060 Beaver road, Ambridge, testified his mother, at her death, in 1913, had intrusted Preshlak's wife with $800 until her son became of age, but that Preshlak, who had possession of the money since 1923, refused to turn it over to him.

Agnes Demchak, a witness, testified Preshlak admitted possession of the money when he proposed marriage to her.

Boy Auto Victim Injured Seriously

Suffering a probable fracture of the skull when struck by an automobile in Warrington avenue, Anthony Blace, 9, of 827 Estella street, was taken to the South Side Hospital last night. Police arrested Owen Kelly, 38, of 52 Beltzhoover avenue, as the driver of the machine, they said.

Beer and Whisky Seized in Dry Raid

Confiscation of four half-barrels of beer and a pint of whisky was reported by prohibition agents in a raid last night on a saloon at 3322 Smallman street. The raiders said they arrested D. F. McCarroll, 36.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Does the weather affect your disposition?

MARGARET ABBOTT, South Hills, clerk: "Did you ever notice how the birds sing on a perfect day in June? Humans are affected similarly in my opinion. No matter how cheerful a person may be he is always a bit 'off stride' when the wind blows gusts of rain up the street. Even though I'm fairly good natured the weather has a bearing on my disposition."

Miss Abbott

ESTHER AUTH, Elliott, clerk: "Old man rain or sunshine can't entirely control my humors although they might play some part. Everybody knows that a bright day in spring lifts a person's spirits; while a dark dreary one has a depressing effect. The best solution is to attempt to forget the bad weather and look forward to the time when the sun will once more toss a smile."

Miss Auth

PEARL KAMINSKY, McKeesport, clerk: "Good or bad weather makes little difference to me. If I had to work outside maybe it would, but my working hours are spent within four walls where the light is good and the surroundings pleasant. People with naturally bad dispositions blame the weather and what not. 'Singing In The Rain' is a piece I like and try to live up to."

Miss Kaminsky

BETTY VISLAY, Hazelwood, bookkeeper: "Yes, it does sometimes. I'm the type of girl that never has much to say and my co-workers may think that I have a mean disposition, but I haven't. Almost anyone may be excused for carrying a grouch when, on a rainy day, some motorist splashes dirty water all over your stockings and skirt. That is one example of what a bad day may bring."

Miss Vislay

ANNA MACKS, Carrick, bookkeeper: "I hate to boast, but I'm a girl who always wears a great big smile no matter what happens. When the weather is bad I forget about it. When it's good I have another reason for smiling. When the day was dreary in Pittsburgh the old timers used to say that some Dutchman on the North Side would commit suicide. That was silly."

Miss Macks

KATHRYN McQUAID, Mount Lebanon, file clerk: "Not the least bit. You can't order the weather to suit your tastes so why worry about it. Weather plays so little part these days in the average life of a city dweller that it has become important. If we lived on farms and were more or less exposed to inclement conditions I suppose it would be different. I don't, so why worry."

Miss McQuaid

Eddie Cantor Rises to Say:

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—

HERE in Chicago there were 40 holdups in 10 hours. Of course, that was on Sunday. Now a good day, one thing you can be sure of in this town, no employe of the city will be held up — they haven't been paid since January 1.

From the internal revenue department in Washington we learn that the year 1928 saw 496 people pay tax on incomes of $1,000,000 or over. There would have been 497 if I had listened to my wife instead of my broker.

In New York City while you are reading this, 45,000 dressmakers are scheduled to go out on strike for the elimination of sweat shops. As one who was brought up in a sweat job district, my sympathies are all with the strikers. Some 3,000 shops, doing an annual business of $350,000,000 will be affected. This should make the employers "sweat" a little, and maybe they will realize what the strike is about.

The Stout air lines have started a seventeen and a half hour service from Chicago to New York. That's fine, if you are in a hurry. As for little Eddie, I'll stick to the Twentieth Century. Say, if John D. Rockefeller won't fly at 91, why should I start "fooling around" with parachutes at 37?

Tech Asks Traffic Light Run by Pedestrians

Carnegie Tech officials have asked Council to order a traffic control light placed on Forbes street at Morewood avenue as a protection for students using the campus entrance.

They explained the light had been recommended by Peter J. Stupka, maintenance supervisor of the City Traffic Planning Bureau.

The request specified a vehicle actuated device whereby the light may be changed by a pedestrian by pushing a button on a telegraph pole.

E. Clinton has invited Council to Kaufmann's auditorium Friday to view motion pictures of garbage disposal activities in Vienna.

Potomac avenue, between Banksville road and the Dormont borough line, is in need of repairs, according to a letter from J. J. Brady, of 1785 Potomac avenue.

Officers of the Soho Community House, 2358 Fifth avenue, have asked Council to authorize the city to pay a bill of $2,244 for extra work in building a gymnasium and auditorium.

States Rule on Liquor Urged by Du Pont

'concurrent power' of enforcement now remaining with the states, enables any state to make the prohibitions and enforcement of the law more strict than prescribed by the national enforcement laws. This plan of amendment would return to states the right to liberalize as well as to restrict, even to the extent of trusting the people to regulate their own personal conduct.

"In order that the plan may be made more definite the following wording of an amendment to the Eighteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States is proposed:

"'Section IV:

"'The states or any of them may, by amendment to State Constitution or by initiative or referendum law, provide for the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation therof into, or the exportation thereof from such states for beverage purposes, provided that all such liquors sold shall be in packages not to be opened and consumed on the premises where sold.

"'Congress shall offer, by means of initiative or referendum law, to provide for the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from any territory or political sub-division of the United States other than a State, for beverage purposes, provided that all such liquors sold shall be in packages not to be opened and consumed on the premises where sold.

"'Congress shall provide, by appropriate legislation, for transportation in inter-state, inter-territorial and foreign commerce and for importation and exportation of intoxicating liquors, for beverage purposes, into and from any state or territory or political sub-division of the United States that shall authorize such transportation, importation and exportation, by amendment of State Constitution or by law submitted for approval to the people of such state, territory or political subdivision.'"

DENIES DRY CLAIMS

In answering the claim of prohibitionists that 32 states and 65 per cent of the people had prohibition before the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment du Pont stated that this did not represent complete prohibition and in most cases that it only curtailed the operation of saloons.

He stated that the right to have liquor in the home was not curtailed by these individual laws and that, while 65 per cent of the population had forbidden saloons, only 10 per cent actually had prohibition as it is understood today. He also charged that the Eighteenth Amendment had been foisted on the country during an abnormal war period when the public mind was occupied with other questions and when a large proportion of the male population was out of the country.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, acted as toastmaster and reviewed the rise of the du Pont family to its present position in American business.

Music Hall Rent Raised to $5,200

A resolution authorizing the city to accept $5,200 a year from Louis Alpern as rent on the Music Hall of the Old Exposition Building has been received by Council. Alpern had submitted a previous offer of $3,000. About a week ago Council requested Public Works Director Edward O. Lang to issue a lease for the space to the Ready Mixed Concrete Company for $5,000 a year.

'CHICKIE' THEME SONG SUCCESS FORECAST

Entertainers to Present Ballad At Theaters Here; Serial To Start Tomorrow

Jay Mills and Dick Powell, masters of ceremony at the Enright and Stanley theaters, have demonstrated their song writing ability in a new song, written especially for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The ballad, "Chickie, I Can't Forget," is the theme song of the serial story "Chickie," which starts tomorrow in the Sun-Telegraph.

The song will have its premier Friday at the Enright and Stanley Theaters when both Powell and Mills will weave their stage shows about the presentation of their newest song hit. At the Enright, Mills will present "Topsy-Turvy," a dashing stage show featuring "Chickie, I Can't Forget." "Bombay" will be Powell's vehicle for the new song.

HEARD AT THEATERS

Powell, the "crooning troubadour," will sing the number and will direct his Stanley stage band in both fox-trot and waltz renditions. Mills will sing the number and solo it on various musical instruments of which he is the master.

Mills is the composer of "When My Sugar Walks Down the Street," "Nothing Else Matters Anymore," "Weary Feet," "No More Worryin'," "Oh, What a Night For Love," "Every Day Away From You," and "Your Love Is the Theme Song of My Heart." He predicts that "Chickie, I Can't Forget You're Still My Sweetheart" will be the biggest hit of them all.

This is his second year with Warner Brothers. He has been master of ceremonies at the Enright for four months.

SUCCESS PREDICTED

Powell, the Stanley songster was born in Mountain View, Ark., and started his musical career as a choirist in Western churches. He learned to play the cornet, banjo and clarinet when a boy and soon left Mountain View for Louisville, Ky., where he doubled his talents, singing with a concert orchestra and playing wind instruments for a jazz orchestra.

His first theatrical job was in the Indiana Theater, Indianapolis. Warner Brothers brought him to the Enright in Pittsburgh early last year. Four months ago he was transferred to the Stanley.

Powell takes great pride in his collaboration on "Chickie, I Can't Forget You're Still My Sweetheart" and predicts its immediate popularity.

ARSON SUSPECT TAKES STAND

Samuel Benjamin, a butcher, of 5170 Butler street, was the principal witness in his own defense today in the arson case brought against him by the state, charging that he had hired an unknown man, killed in the explosion, to set off a blast of powder and gasoline which wrecked the four-story store and dwelling at the Butler street address March 27. The trial was started last June, when a juror took ill, causing the case to be continued.

Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson, for the commonwealth, called many witnesses, who testified to the wreckage and indications of alleged arson which had been found. It was brought out by police officers that the body of a man, who never has been identified, was found lying in the hall, and in his pocket was a check drawn to "Cash" for $300. The check was offered in evidence.

Benjamin took the stand late in the day and testified he and his family were away when the blast occurred. He said he had received a threat over the telephone that his store would be bombed if he persisted in his contemplated opening of a fruit stand in the store.

WOMAN TO WIN PENSION THROUGH DATA ASKED BY RADIO

BIRTH RECORD SENT WEST BY AIR

Former Pittsburgh Residence Long Balked of Bounty by Lack of Needed Records

Out in Long Beach, Cal., Mrs. Bella Davis, 78, a former Pittsburgher, today awaits the arrival of a certain mail plane from the East, which is bearing to her a document proving the time and place of her birth. It will help her to obtain the old-age pension which she seeks from California. So far this pension has been denied her, because she could not prove where and when she was born.

More than a month ago Frederick Marshall, manager of the government affairs division of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, received a letter from Mrs. Davis, in which she said she was born about January 6, 1852, and asked if he could find a record of her birth. A search through many legal files failed to reveal any record of her. Last Thursday he broadcast the appeal over KDKA.

Mrs. Sue E. Glancy Kegel, of 8966 Eastwood road, Wilkinsburg, heard the appeal, and at once got in communication with him.

Sunday afternoon Mr. Marshall called at Mrs. Kegel's home, and learned that Mrs. Davis was born on a farm back of Sewickley. Her family at one time lived on old Chartiers avenue, Allegheny. Other facts concerning the family were learned, to which Mrs. Kegel made affidavit. Yesterday the affidavit was placed in the air mail, which should reach Mrs. Davis tomorrow.

Duquesne Council Favors Hollow Fill

Permission to the Carnegie Steel Company to fill in Thompson Run Hollow, Duquesne, is granted in a bill given its first reading at a meeting of Duquesne Council last night. The company has acquired considerable property in connection with the project.

Councilmen expressed the opinion that should the fill be made, an eye-sore of years' standing would be obliterated; that a section of the city known as Polish Hill would be brought in direct communication with the town proper, and that a road could be built connecting the two sections. Councilman Frank McWilliams presided in the absence of Mayor James Crawford, who is in Cuba.

AUTOIST HELD IN BOY'S INJURY

Joseph Gillespie, 33, 401 Craft avenue, is under $1,000 bond today to appear for hearing in Traffic Court tomorrow, on a charge of violating the automobile laws.

The accident occurred at Sarah street and Uxor way, around the corner from the South Side Police Station, where Patrolman Thomas J. Clark, the boy's father, reports.

The boy was taken, police say, to St. Joseph's Hospital by Gillespie. Upon their arrival at the door of the hospital, Gillespie let the boy walk in while he drove away, it is said. Gillespie later gave himself up.

Young Clark is still in the hospital, with two badly injured arms and possible internal hurts.

ARREST 2 MEN ON FORGERY CHARGES

Suspects Wanted in Five Counties Overtaken Along Freeport Road by Patrol

Wanted in five counties of Pennsylvania for alleged forging and cashing of checks, Canfield Sutton, 45, of near Butler, and Samuel Scott, 24, of 1802 Morningside avenue, Pittsburgh, were arrested yesterday by Privates Robert Clark and J. M. Burnsworth of the Parnassus detail the State Highway Patrol. Business men of Etna, Sewickley, Blawnox, Aspinwall and Butler last night identified Sutton and Scott as the men for whom they had cashed checks, police said.

A check forging machine and blank checks from banks located in all parts of the state were found in the pair's automobile, arresting officers said, when they placed Sutton and Scott under arrest in the Freeport road, O'Hara township, near Saunders Inn, yesterday afternoon. After identification by dealers, the pair were turned over to the Butler patrol.

Warrants for the men's arrest have been sworn in Allegheny, Westmoreland, Armstrong, Butler and Venango Counties, highway patrolmen said. Sutton and Scott represented themselves as produce salesmen to the dealers to whom they presented checks, according to police.

Arrest of the two followed complaint of an alleged victim to the Parnassus detail.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Seen In New Mode At Theater

TODAY I've so much news to talk about that I feel the season has just begun instead of being over, according to social custom. There are theaters to discuss and theater audiences and weddings and more weddings.

First of all, I want to remark on the brilliant scene the orchestra rows of the Nixon presented last night with even so many society folks dressed in the luxurious mode of the day. It has much more glamour, don't you agree, than that of a year ago?

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Jones, III, who are faithful first nighters, were talking over Otis Skinner's consummate art in that charming play "Papa Juan," at the Nixon. And Mrs. Jones wore one of the new interesting dinner gowns, fashioned of black chiffon with a very long full skirt and with long sleeves, an interesting note. The sleeves were cut very full and banded with a tight fitting cuff embroidered with rhinestones.

One of the buds of the early winter, Frances Forsyth, daughter of the James M. Magees, I saw chatting in the foyer. Her gown was of black velvet with a quaint square decolletage, and her wrap was of black velvet furred in white fox.

And I caught a glimpse of Helen Leovy in a turquoise blue satin gown in the popular princess mode with a wrap of lustrous black velvet with a collar of ermine. In the group of friends chatting with her was Mrs. William Blair in dahlia crepe.

And I noticed the William A. Duckhams and Mrs. Duckham was wearing American beauty velvet. Her coat was of black velvet with a deep collar of ermine framing her face.

I caught a glimpse of Mrs. William Frew in brocaded black velvet talking animatedly with Mrs. Edgar Reed, who wore black crepe and a black velvet coat, richly furred.

And Caroline Hess was one of the younger folks there, wearing an interesting gown of black taffeta, and I caught a glimpse of Jewel Jarvis as she was leaving the theater.

Very interesting, yet simple was a gown of black chiffon worn by Ruth Friday. Deep flounces of black lace gave the modish below-the-hip fullness and bands of rhinestones enhanced the low decolletage.

Ruth Drake, one of the buds of the winter, I saw with her mother, Mrs. J. F. Drake, waiting for their car. Ruth wore black lace, and her mother black velvet with a small print motif of flowers.

And there were ever so many more there, including Mrs. William Penn Snyder, Mrs. George C. Burgwin, Mrs. John Crosan Hays and Mrs. Lawrence Blair, who were smoking in the foyer and talking with a group of friends. And particularly interesting was a short coat of white ermine, worn by Mrs. Snyder, with shirring making the back distinctive. Her gown was of dahlia lace, with a brief train. And her slippers were of dahlia satin. Mrs. Burgwin wore dahlia chiffon, and Mrs. Crosan Hays, blue and gold lame. Mrs. Blair's gown was of beige lace.

And as I was leaving the theater I saw Mrs. Gordon King in an American beauty velvet gown fashioned with a train.

LAST evening a social gathering was to be found at the Alvin, delighting in the lines of Shakespeare's "Richard III," with Fritz Leiber in the leading role.

In the foyer during intermissions I noticed an array of new and fashionable gowns in fascinating colors and new intricate designs.

TODAY in New York a wedding of note is taking place and in the bridal party are several members of the Pittsburgh smart set. Mildred Frances Thomas, daughter of the Harry Schaeffer Thomases, is becoming the bride of Henry Forsythe Robinson, son of Mrs. Harry Hunt Robinson, of Kew Gardens, L. I., and the late Harry H. Robinson, in the Italian garden of the Ambassador Hotel with the Rev. Robert W. Trenbath, of St. James Episcopal Church, Montclair, N. J., officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is wearing a princess wedding gown of deep ivory satin with a court train and veil of tulle arranged in the madonna style. Her bouquet is of gardenias. Margaret Forrester, of Pittsburgh, is a bridesmaid, and the matron of honor is Mrs. Lincoln R. Goward, sister of the bride. Other bridesmaids are Mrs. Ralph H. Fenton, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Philip M. Vandeventer and Betty Allen, all of New York. They are wearing gowns of aquamarine blue chiffon in princess style with Chantilly lace capes and a flounce of the same lace at the bottom of the skirts. Their flowers are Talisman roses tied with ribbons matching their gowns.

Charles D. Davidson, of Pittsburgh, is the best man, and a Sewickley man, Charles A. Cooper, II, is one of the ushers. Other ushers are Douglas T. Hopkins, Theodore H. Wickwire, Horace U. Durston, Lincoln R. Goward and Ralph H. Fenton.

The youthful Henry Robinsons will go south for their honeymoon and later will live in East Orange, N. J.

AND then there's the Stage and Play Society performance scheduled for the eighteenth of the month in Carnegie Music Hall. James Verner Scaife, Jr., will make his initial appearance with the society in "By Their Words You Shall Know Them," by Seraphin and Joaquin Alvarez Quintero. Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby and Alan Donnelly are cast for the same play.

Appearing in Carroll Fitzhugh's "May and December" will be Mrs. William Singer Moorhead, Mrs. Bennett Oliver, George Pomeroy Bassett, III, and Harold Geoghegan.

And in "The Giant Stair," by Wilbur Daniel Steele, will be Mrs. Clarence B. Watkins, Mrs. George Pearson, Chester B. Story and C. F. C. Arensburg.

And in charge of the three plays will be Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, Jr.

THERE are going to be a number of informal dinners before the roller skating party the Junior Auxiliary of the Allegheny General Hospital will give tomorrow evening in Motor Square Garden, I hear. The Gordon Kings, of Forbes street, will be among the hosts.

Young 'Groomed' for 1936 Race, Meyers Tells 20th Century Club

THE Democrats are "grooming" Owen D. Young for the presidential campaign of 1936, Dr. William Starr Meyers, of Princeton, told the Twentieth Century Club yesterday in his talk on political current events. The audience, by the way, was the largest of the season, for Dr. Meyers is a favorite of many years' standing with Twentieth Century members.

He gave what he termed "something of the background connected with the present London conference" and began with the MacDonald visit to the United States, quoting J. L. Garvin, the noted English editor: "The Berengaria (on which the Prime Minister sailed) was a ship of destiny as none since the Mayflower." All government is divided into the dignified and the efficient, Dr. Meyers said, and one reason for the English government's great success is because the distinction is so marked, the King representing the one side and the Prime Minister the other.

"Dr. Meyers believes the conference is accomplishing something "because the newspapers are not full of authentic information." Diplomacy, like business and proposals of marriage, is not done in public, he stated. The present conference is not the last one and it will not bring about peace. Neither will it abolish navies, Dr. Meyers declared, saying that he would be opposed to it if that were possible and reiterating a statement made here before that he does not believe in disarmament, but in proportional limitation of arms. While two-thirds of the population of the world (Russia, China and India) are so close to anarchy, it would be folly to disarm, he added.

The American people are beginning to think, Dr. Meyers said farther on in his talk, as he went on to state that government has not developed to meet changing conditions. Simplification in government is what is needed. He would like to see the reform begin in Congress and to see congressmen vote as they drink and drink as they vote, he said.

THE Outlook Alliance, which originated "American Music Day" several years ago, will have its annual program in observance of the day Thursday in the Congress of Clubs. Mrs. James H. Den Hartog, Mrs. Guido Stemple and Hazel Harris Harnish.

THE NEWEST VOGUE IN CHARMING STRAW HATS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—There is one spring tonic that can be taken through a straw—a straw hat, to be precise. There is surely nothing that can give such a feeling of exhilaration and well-being as a new hat, especially a new spring hat. It whispers the story of sunshinny days and care free hours of play, a respite from dull routine. Green and various shades of yellow, ranging from bread to butter will contribute color to the scene. The exotic straws, too, will find much favor, lacquered panama weaves in black and red will be especially attractive contrasted with the pastel shades that seem destined for popularity. Thus our hats will run the whole gamut of color, so, line up for the millinery parade. The brim, by now, begins to cast its shadow over the mode, for which many of us will give thanks. The tricorne that made a timorous appearance earlier in the season, returns with more assurance since it is aided by the return of the brim and so is a logical contender for millinery honors, that is if there can be any logic in such an ethereal creation of sunbeams and azure skies as the spring hat.

WE show you today sketches of four hats soon to make their debut in sunny climes. The first two are from Suzy whose hats are always smart as well as interesting. There is much old world grace in the lines of the tricorne which is of light green straw bordered in canary yellow and ornamented by a bird motif in yellow feathers at the side. The other model is of black bakou with a border of black felt along the edge of the brim and an appliqued band of the felt across the top of the crown slightly at one side. A small bow is posed at the front of the turned-back brim of charming hats. Marguerite Gisler made the third of this quartet. It is of fancy crocheted straw in bright red, simply trimmed with a narrow grosgrain ribbon and a small steel buckle. The fourth hat is from Marie-Alphonsine, and is of supple panama-lacquered black. The wide brim is interestingly cut to form two loops at one side and a deep point at the other. All of these hats are eminently wearable, besides being the last word in chic and correct interpretation of the millinery mode.

SO enjoyable was the "Gay Nineties" tea given yesterday by the Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg that the president, Mrs. O. G. Leichliter, called for a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. A. J. Dawson and the members of her program committee. The gowns and hats worn by the women were especially beautiful and to nearly every one was attached an interesting history. Mrs. H. C. Loudenbeck had on a maroon velvet and satin (made with a basque), which had been worn by an aunt at a reception given for President Grover Cleveland. Mrs. A. W. Duff's hat was one which she had bought in Paris in 1883, and Mrs. S. H. McKee, who gave recollections of the old gay days, also wore a Paris-bought hat which had been seen at those early club functions. Mrs. W. J. Martin, who was the club's first treasurer, wore the gown in which she was inducted as president in 1911. Another bit of atmosphere was contributed by Frances Whitacre Morton, of Wellsville, who sang a group of old-fashioned songs as solos, and the club choral, which also gave old songs.

A modern note was introduced by the cartoon talk which Cy Hungerford gave and which was the chief program feature.

MISS MARY L. HAY, secretary, presided yesterday at the meeting of the Women's Press Club in the absence of the president, Miss Marie McSwigan, and the vice presidents. There was a short business session, and during the tea hour El Comancho, former Indian scout and trapper, related his experiences in the West in the days of buffalo, grasshopper plagues, Indians, homesteading and no railroads. He described the building of sod and willow houses and told of having bought land at 4, 5 and 6 cents an acre. His recollections of famous western characters was especially interesting. El Comancho, author of many volumes and articles, has a rich fund of anecdotes with which he dresses his entertaining talks. The club will celebrate its thirty-ninth anniversary with a dinner in the Woman's City Club the night of February 15.

THE one hundred and eighteenth anniversary of Charles Dickens' birth was appropriately celebrated last night by the Dickens Fellowship with a dinner and program meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel. The decorations were particularly effective, consisting of 18 graded tapers down the length of the officers' table, with a large taper in the center to typify the century. Two sketches were given, the first an excerpt from "Bleak House," under the direction of Mrs. T. C. Clifford and enacted by Lester Myers, Jr., and Mrs. E. W. Willis Whited. Sydney K. Eastwood directed the second, which was from "Our Mutual Friend," the cast including Mr. Eastwood, Mrs. J. V. D. Reeve, Clifford Claney, Mrs. D. G. F. Fowler, Miss Betty Wilson and Brabazon H. Rutherfoord.

Lost Much Sleep on Account of Eczema. Healed by Cuticura.

"My trouble began with an itching of my hand, which got worse day by day. Eczema broke out in a rash and later spread to my other hand and face. I could not do my regular work on account of it. When I put my hands in water they itched and burned, and when I scratched it caused eruptions. I lost much sleep at night on account of it.

Stage and Screen Attractions Feature Stars Who Are Popular

Otis Skinner's 'Papa Juan' Is a Rich Character Study In the New Spanish Style

By GEORGE SEIBEL

A NEW sort of play has been discovered by those Spaniards and another play of that sort was presented last night at the Nixon by Otis Skinner. "Papa Juan" is like "The Kingdom of God" and like "The Cradle Song" quiet, idyllic, pastoral. We have hardly anything like it in English literature except perhaps "The Vicar of Wakefield" or "The Newcomes." It reminds you of the canvases of the old Flemish and old Spanish masters, and of the poetry of Robbie Burns, and of the forest when the leaves of autumn are changing into the frost of winter.

George Seibel

Serafin and Joaquin Alvarez Quintero have written this drama, and the Granville Barkers have Englished it. It has the rich juiciness of ripe fruit, and is as pleasant to the taste. No climaxes, no plot, no big scene, no tricks of the theater—nothing artificial or theatric!

Otis Skinner as "Papa Juan" celebrates his hundredth birthday.

That is the whole drama. Full her the grand old man of our of years, full of wisdom ful. of stage he who has walked with love, the patriarch of the house- Booth and with Barrett, playing hold has determined that none of this role with perfect finish one his far-flung family shall be is inclined to echo two lines from missing. the dialogue:

The poor ones and the erring "Isn't he a wonder?"

one, even the nagging scold who "He is."

makes everybody's existence a burden—all are included in his invitation—all must come and sit at his table.

He is 100 years old.

And as one watches Otis Skin-

Wisdom Not Wisecracks

Into this character study, so different from the one John Galsworthy and George Arliss gave us in "Old English," the authors have put much wisdom of life—wisdom, not wisecracks.

"You die once, but you're born every morning when you open your eyes to the sunlight."

Sometimes a bit of malice creeps in at the expense of the fair sex as personified in the nagging Filomena.

"There may some day be a universal brotherhood, but never universal sisterhood."

And always a glad optimism as when Papa Juan sees his hope of a new generation may be fulfilled as he sees the first dawn of love between his great-grandson and Currita.

"If this isn't God's work it's good enough."

In other words, we are given a glimpse of family life in an old Spanish household, with all the many types that have sprung from the same mold suffused with the humanity and humor that have warmed Spanish literature.

Spanish

Mary Arbenz supports Otis Skinner in "Papa Juan," Spanish comedy which is the bill in the Nixon.

One Of Our Boys

Honors of the evening were shared by Otis Skinner with Hardie Albright, who is one of our Pittsburgh boys, a credit to the Drama School at Tech.

As the young hero and lover Hardie Albright had grace of movement and perfect diction—a suave urbanity such as we are accustomed to associate with the old Spanish tradition as the politest nation of Europe (apologies to Andre Tardieu).

The entire cast is well-balanced and well-grounded. The girlish naturalness of Florence McGee's Eulalia and the shrewish venom of Octavia Kenmore's Filomena were specially commendable. Mary Arbenz lent the illusion of romantic youth to Currita.

And all this was bathed in a perfect Spanish atmosphere—for the one setting designed by James Whale is a masterpiece of architectural and decorative detail.

Otis Skinner has a right to feel proud of the reception which his audience accorded him, and that audience had a right to feel grateful to him for his artistic courage in presenting a play so rich in the golden ore of the human heart, so free from the tawdry dross of mere theater.

NEW FACES LOOM BIG IN MR. SHARP'S THEATER

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Henry Wadsworth, youthful and good-looking, makes his debut as a juvenile with the George Sharp Players this week in "Jonesy," a three-act comedy of family life. He comes bounding down a pair of stairs in the first act all dressed up in a pair of blue pajamas. And he isn't present more than two minutes before you get the impression that here's a juvenile who has some acting ability as well as "appearance." And by the time the final act ends, with the blue color scheme being carried out further by a pair of overalls, you are ready to give him an encouraging hand. A clean-cut, likeable fellow, this Wadsworth is sure to please the ladies—and the men.

The play, "Jonesy," by Anne Morrison and John Peter Toohey, is delightful and light entertainment. In fewer words, it is almost a laugh riot. It all starts off with the efforts of a Mr. and Mrs. Jones to prevent their son from eloping with one of those actresses. And the fun gets started in a big way when it develops that the boy was only planning a luncheon engagement and not a run-away marriage.

The New And The Old

Another new face debuts and looms big in the scheme of things in Mr. Sharp's playhouse. He is Francis Fraunie, a character man, who "does" Mr. Jones. He "does" him in great style, too. In fact, he's a scream.

But the "oldtimers" of the company suffer none by the intrusion of the new talent. Alice Ann Baker makes an amusing study of Mrs. Jones. And when she swishes up the stairs and hysterically wants to know who gets up those "jokes" about the glory of motherhood, you may ha-ha right out loud. But you're moved just the same. There is something so pathetic about her. Edith King, as usual, registers well—this time as the actress-heroine. Then there is Harland Tucker, more in the background than heretofore, but creating interest as a fraternity brother of the son of the Joneses, who of course, is portrayed by the young Mr. Wadsworth.

Well, There's Mabel

And say, Mabel Kroman is back, as lively as ever and creating a lot of laughs as the girl-next-door. A number of others are in the cast, too, including Lucette Parker, who hides behind a pair of horn-rimmed spectacles as the daughter of the Joneses. And she lets out a laugh in the first act that is quite startling, coming from such a little girl. But it is a well done laugh just the same. Robert Fiske, William Schwartz, Margaret A. Keller and Norman Porter have more or less minor parts. On second thought, Miss Keller should get kind mention for the manner she handles the maid of the Joneses.

Well, all to be said in closing is that the Jones family is guaranteed to show Pitt patrons a big time in the laugh way. Though the play is rather lengthy, it "clicks" almost all of the way and the chuckles and guffaws are loosed almost every time the players open their mouths.

WESLEY EDDY WELCOME RINGS OLD WELKIN IN PENN SHOW

Wild whirlpools of applause greeted Wesley Eddy yesterday in the Penn Theater when he stepped before the footlights, and only his own Fascist Salute could stop the demonstration when he was through any of his numbers.

He is the most popular of all masters of ceremonies with that audience—and there's a reason, several reasons. He has personality without ego and can be funny without being cheap. And he also has a fine voice with dramatic power in it.

This is Wesley Eddy's show—though it would be a great show even without Wesley Eddy.

Perfumes in Color

The Chester Hale Girls represent perfumes this week, and it is by gorgeous costuming and colors they furnish the fragrance of the bill.

In this bill there also is a remarkable dancing team, Adler and Bradford—and Miss Adler must have taken dancing lessons from Lindbergh, for she comes very near to flying.

Charlotte Woodruff has a vibrant and rich voice to sing "Toujours Moi," and those dancing humorists or acrobats, Mills and Shea, have awkwardness down to a fine art.

Bessie Love Charming

The talking film feature is "Chasing Rainbows," which gives Bessie Love a chance to be as charming as always, and Marie Dressler a chance to be as funny as always.

It is a back-stage story and one that is very well put together. It does not offend by improbabilities nor get too sticky with sentiment.

Charles King is the hero and comes up to the mark, and Polly Moran assists la Dressler in ladling out the laughs. There are captivating ensemble numbers, some high dramatic moments, good character drawing—in fact, everything that a talking picture could have.

And not the least of these things is the charming Bessie Love.

BARRYMORE, SOLDIER, STAYS ON IN WARNER

John Barrymore continues as the photoplay feature in the Warner, where he is starred in "General Crack," in which the star appears as a soldier of fortune. Marian Nixon and Lowell Sherman are prominent in the cast.

Thick, wavy hair!

You, too, can have long, soft, abundant hair. It's simply a matter of using this easy method; approved by hair specialists; endorsed by stars of stage and screen; used by millions who haven't time for the more laborious treatments.

Tonight when you arrange your hair, just put a little Danderine on your brush. Then as you draw the bristles through your hair, see how the scalp is toned and soothed. See how the hair becomes softer, easier to manage; how its natural color is brought out; how it takes on new brilliance and lustre!

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff, helps stop falling hair; keeps hair and scalp healthy; encourages the growth of long, silky, abundant hair. Five million bottles used a year. That proves Danderine's effectiveness!

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Winner

Bessie Love is an actress in "Chasing Rainbows," film in the Penn, and she wins her man in the finale.

HEROINE IN OLYMPIC WANTS WEDDING RING

Mae Murray, one-time big star of the silent drama, is back on the screen again doing a talk act in a Tiffany film, titled "Peacock Alley," which opened yesterday in the Olympic. In the picture Miss Murray appears in the role of an actress—a heroine, who to all outward appearances is very sophisticated and worldly, but who down in her heart—is still an old-fashioned girl who wants a wedding ring.

Most of the action takes place in a ritzy New York hotel, with the heroine being in love with a rich fellow, who, in turn, loves her. But all he offers her is "propositions," because he won't be tied down by conventional vows. So she, who wants marriage, sends out to Texas for her old sweetheart. He comes and they get married. Then enters the "menace," in the person of a great big house detective, who has a mistaken idea about the heroine. He causes a general rumpus when he has her and the bridegroom chased out of their rooms.

Then come some tearful close-ups of Miss Murray, followed by a song and dance act, which is injected without any special reason, and so to a happy ending.

Neither Miss Murray nor the picture arouse enthusiasm. There are times when the talk fades into silence which, perhaps, is due to the static of censorship. Jason Robards, George Barraud and W. L. Thorne, prominent in the supporting cast, do well enough what they have to do. There is a sequence in color.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture.

Joicey Williams (the well-known American actress recently) made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture.

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

Villainies of Richard Make Good Show for Leiber's Debut in Alvin

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

HISTORY paints Richard, who was third in the line of English kings of that name, as a ferocious, ambitious member of the house of York, who scrupled at nothing to reach the throne. Shakespeare, in his play, "Richard III," neglected nothing that would intensify the sinister character of the man who dominated the final scenes of the War of Roses. Fritz Leiber, heading the Chicago Civic Shakespeare Society's company of players, who appeared as the sanguinary Richard in the opening play of the company's Shakespearean repertoire in the Alvin last night, gave the character all of the blackness—and its all black—that the Bard of Avon painted in his picture.

Richard perhaps is the most popular villain of the stage. That, no doubt, is because he is an honest villain—that is a true villain. He makes no pretension of being anything else. Right at the beginning, he announces that, since nature had made him such an uncomely man, unfitted to be an athlete or a lover, he is resolved to be a villain. And villain, he is, self-advertised menace to the peace that has settled momentarily on the land, with the Yorkists in the saddle and the Lancastrians in hiding or in subjection.

Shades In Blackness

To witness the play, as Leiber portrays the character, is to learn that there may be shades of blackness and foulness. To visualize that is a rare accomplishment since villainy is a quality of a single mood—determination to reach a set goal at whatever cost. With Richard that is the throne occupied by his own brother, with another brother, Clarence, and the sons of his brother, the king, in line of succession preceding him. In disposing of them Richard reveals many moods, being a hypocritical, fawning wheedler one minute and ordering a murder or two the next.

The text Mr. Leiber employs is the Colley Cibber version of the play, either complete or a variation. This introduces the actual Shakespeare text with the final scenes of "Henry VI" and presents that king as one of the characters, although he is not in the Shakespearean manuscript. It is a warranted convenience, making the historic angle more understandable and giving Richard an early opportunity to display his skill as a murderer, for Henry's life is short in "Richard III." And it makes a very good show, as was indicated by the hearty reception given a most excellent performance by last night's audience.

Leiber's Art Pliable

Mr. Leiber's art is extremely pliable, hence we have a Richard of some human quality despite all his villainy. There is a sort of grim humor associated with the character and this is developed skillfully, but not obtrusively by Mr. Leiber. His reading throughout is excellent, his voice being vibrant, clear and mostly even in tone, dramatic effect being achieved with no strain, emphasis being effected in carefully modulated, but powerful inflection. Working thus he is able to carry heavy scenes easily but impressively.

Next to Mr. Leiber the Clarence of Lawrence H. Cecil is much to be admired. The Richmond of Hart Jenks is a pretty example of heroic nobility well voiced. In fact, the company is a highly excellent one throughout, in which Robert Allen, of Tech, as Catesby, gives good account of himself. Virginia Bronson convinces that the unhappy Queen Elizabeth is true to life and Kathryn Collier is a stately Duchess of York. All play their parts well and necessity for brevity must serve as the reason for merely giving honorable mention to such genuine truth to Shakespearean tradition as is imparted by John Burke, as Henry VI; Louis Leon Hall, as Buckingham; Philip Quin, as Stanley; Vera Allen, as Lady Anne, and Marie Carroll and Virginia Stevens, as the young princes.

The six acts are excellently staged.

SOME REAL JUNGLES ON DISPLAY IN GAYETY

African jungle life—to the accompaniment of some poor photography—discloses some of its secrets in "Jango," the motion picture which is being presented at two-a-day performances in the Gayety. In a certain manner, this "poor photography" is in the picture's favor. It demonstrates conclusively that the film is the real thing.

Moreover, if the three white doctors, who headed the scientific expedition into the Trader Horn country which resulted in the picture, lacked some technical and "trick" methods of photography, they didn't lack courage. The production, which is really just a collection of episodes, shows this. And there is further and tragic proof in the fact that two of them never came back. Fever claimed one. A rhinoceros claimed the other.

This latter tragedy happened within the camera's eye. And part of it is in the film. One rhino is felled; another charges. But here the Pennsylvania censors said "cut." So the death scene is out—a scene that was caused by one moment of forgetfulness. The doctor—explorer had neglected to reload his gun.

At least such is the explanation given by Dr. Daniel Davenport, the lone white survivor of the expedition, who is appearing in person in conjunction with the film, explaining its various pictorial episodes.

The picture gives many glimpses of African game in its natural surroundings. It shows many beasts being slain at close range. In fact, so many are killed that you realize the appropriateness of the title—that is, after Dr. Davenport explains "Jango" is a Doula word meaning "jungle hunt."

African insect life and human life also is depicted. There is a closeup of a horde of Driver Ants in action. And a little later comes a view of some cannibals all dressed up for a war—and, 'tis presumed, a feast.

No doubt "Jango" is of educational value. If it were able to boast of better photography it would be much better entertainment. But remember, wild animals wait for no exacting cameraman. And there are no kleig lights in Africa.

How a Family Doctor made Millions of Friends

FIFTEEN years after his graduation, Dr. Caldwell became one of the best-known members of his profession. A single prescription made him famous. And for forty years it has continued to make friends.

As fast as people could tell others about the marvelous way this prescription corrects constipation and relieves other troubles caused by sluggish bowels, demand for it spread until Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it filled in quantities; bottled and distributed through drug stores.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. Millions of people would never think of using anything else when they're headachy, bilious, feverish, or weak; when breath is bad, tongue is coated or they are suffering from nausea, from gas, or lack of appetite, etc.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as you buy it from your drug store is made in accordance with the original formula from only herbs and other pure ingredients. It is pleasant tasting; its action is thorough in the most obstinate cases; gently effective for women and children. Above all, it represents a doctor's choice of what is safe for the bowels.

RESCUED AT THE EDGE OF THE GRAVE

Liver and Kidney Trouble Had Brought This Man Near to Death.

Mr. E. Yonkovitch, of Washington, Pa., tells how he was apparently rescued from the jaws of death by valuable new medicine. Here is his story in his own words:

"For two years I had been so low in health that I had given up hope of ever recovering. In pain and misery I waited for death. Low blood pressure, with poor circulation, was, so the doctors said, the basis for my troubles. My arms and legs were numb. I often had bad dizzy spells. Kidney and liver trouble poisoned my system, and constant getting up at night kept me from getting my rest. I was tortured by sharp pains across the small of my back, and through it all, I was so drowsy and dull that I could hardly think clearly. My face was bloated and discolored with dark liver spots. The whites of my eyes turned yellowish, almost brown, and the flesh under my eyeballs became swollen and puffy.

"I am a Russian, and no American medicines seemed to do me any good. However, when I heard that World's Tonic is made from plants and herbs grown in the natural state, and brought from different parts of the world, I realized that a European like myself, as well as Americans, could count on getting help from this famous new remedy. The first bottle brought me good results, and now after using three more bottles, I am a well man—truly like one rescued at the edge of the grave. I have gained twenty pounds. My skin is clear, I am free from pain, and do not have to be careful of everything I eat, nor do I have to take pills every night like I used to. I sleep fine, enjoy a splendid appetite, and everything I eat builds muscle and strength. Best of all, my mind is clear as a bell. I give all credit to World's Tonic."

World's Tonic is on sale at Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, and all other modern drug stores. (A-73)

When the "Alarm Clock" Sounds Amoco Motor Oil* is READY

THE oil in your crank case hasn't the privilege of turning over for a last few minutes' delightful doze. It's cold, cold as you'd be if you'd been sleeping out with only a sheet of steel over you. But one last doze on the part of your oil, even for a half-a-minute, would mean serious damage to the vital, moving parts of your motor and an expensive repair bill for you.

So AMOCO Motor Oil doesn't doze. When you step on the starter and "turn on the alarm", AMOCO Motor Oil gets on the job without delay, alert, flowing freely, ready for a hard day's work. And, later on, when the temperature of your motor has risen to a point several times hotter than a summer's day on the Equator, AMOCO Motor Oil is still on its toes, never breaking down, giving your motor complete lubrication regardless of conditions.

When it's 'way below freezing a motor oil really has to be good and that's when AMOCO Motor Oil really proves its worth. Summer or winter, morning or night, you can depend on AMOCO Motor Oil for better lubrication.

Gordon Fears That Dulcy Is Going to Spoil His Big Chance

From Marion Davies' forthcoming All-Talking Picture by Wanda Tuchok and Edwin Justus Mayer, based on the play, "Dulcy," by Marc Connelly and George Kaufman.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Dulcy is an adorable blonde, always helping people—but usually into trouble. A serious quarrel with Gordon, her fiance, results from her determination to help him put over a business deal. Over his protests she goes to the train with him to meet Forbes, a financier, and invites him and his family to her house for a week-end.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER II.

"GETTING ready for a funeral?" demanded Dulcy's brother, as she rushed briskly about the living room, arranging flowers.

"If you'd put on your clean flannels, instead of trying to be funny—" she began, but broke off to go on humming gaily to herself, as she jammed one more rose into a bowl already full.

Bill promptly began to play the Dead March from Saul. Dulcy bustled about, followed by the butler carrying more flowers. Gramma Parker looked in on her grand daughter grimly.

"Company," she demanded sadly.

"Dulcy's party for that man Forbes; she's going to make a million for Gordon over the week end," explained Bill, changing to Chopin's funeral march.

"Guess I'll stay in my room till they've gone," Gramma contributed, looting a humidor of Russian cigarets. "And if you get to playing forfeits you needn't think you can have my false teeth this time!"

Dulcy nodded sweetly, letting that it might be just as well to have Gramma out of the way. Gramma had real genius when it came to saying the wrong thing to the right person at the time when it would do most damage.

"Now, let's see—" she stood off to admire the flowers. Not a nook or cranny of the spacious room was [illegible] quiet.

"It'll be a tough break for you if Forbes has hay fever," Bill remarked, but Dulcy didn't hear him. She had flown to the wide hall, where she was rehearsing the new butler in the lines he was to say as the guests arrived. She did not even hear Gordon as he wandered wearily in and threw his suitcase into a corner.

"What's the matter with you now?" demanded Bill as Gordon slumped into a chair and buried his face in his hands.

Gordon Complains

"Good Lord, panty! I tell you, Bill, I'm scared to death. Dulcy was bound to have the Forbes down here, and you know what she is when she gets to fixing things. Everything depends on my making this deal with Forbes, but let her talk to him two minutes and I'll have as much chance as a bow-legged girl trying to get into the Follies."

"Then why don't you make Dulcy lay off," asked Bill, changing to the wedding march.

"Have you ever stopped her from doing anything?"

"Nope. I know a steam roller when I see one. You're a brave boy, me lad, wanting to marry Dulcy. I'll meet you at the altar with a medal. Gosh, listen to that."

From the hall came the sound of the butler's voice solemnly repeating "Good evening, may I take your hat and coat?" in a voice better attuned to "You big stiff, say that again and I'll knock your block off!"

"He's an escaped convict," explained Bill with gusto. "I mean, he's on probation."

"A convict! The Forbes coming here, and Dulcy has a convict for a butler! Why, why!" Gordon turned pale with apprehension.

Bill tried to look sympathetic, and failed. He never could understand why trouble couldn't stand back and [illegible] Dulcy's whims without [illegible]. Of course she might bring out the family skeleton for a toe dance at any minute, and if there was one sleeping dog that should be left sleeping she was certain to insist on its doing tricks, but at least life was never dull with her around.

Additional Guest

"He had a little misunderstanding with the police—their fault, of course," Bill explained. "Dulcy went to see his wife and family. She felt pretty badly about it, and talked the judge into letting her bring the chap here and straighten him out. She says he deserves a square deal."

"She deserves—" but Gordon did not finish the sentence. For Dulcy had come rushing in, to throw herself into his arms and press her delightfully soft lips against his own.

"Listen, dear—yes, I'm delighted to see you—how could you have a convict on the place when the Forbes are coming? They're so conventional—yes, I know how kind hearted you are, and I love you for it, but to have this man around when—"

"He didn't really do anything; what money just got into his pocket by mistake; he told me so himself!" cried Dulcy. "I always say every cloud has a silver lining, and so has Perkins."

"That's all right if he has his own, but he's likely to spill soup or something when he's serving dinner," protested the anguished Gordon. "Things have just got to go as they should, don't you see that?"

"Oh, they will," Dulcy assured him brightly. "Doesn't this room look lovely with all the flowers?" she went on hurriedly changing the subject.

"Maybe Forbes doesn't like flowers," Gordon replied grimly.

"Nonsense, he'll love them, and so will—"

Dulcy stopped abruptly; she hadn't intended to let out the secret that anyone else was coming. She tried to pass the remark off lightly, took a sudden interest in the evening paper, tried desperately to engage Gordon in a discussion of the current murder trial. He [illegible] watching her fixed-[illegible] frown ominously together.

Mr. Van Dyke

"Dulcy! Who else is coming?" he demanded when at last she [illegible]

[illegible] she prattled on brightly, secure in the confidence of work well done.

"I don't want to guess, I want to know."

"It'll be worse than you think," Bill warned him, softly. "It's sure to be."

Dulcy glanced out of the window, then turned again to him, radiant.

"Look, there he is now," she exclaimed.

Gordon followed her glance apprehensively, as she called, "Yoo-hoo. Oh, Mr. Van Dyke. Come right in!"

A tall loosely hung man was [illegible] on the lawn. He acted as if he owned the place and everything in it, and for a moment Gordon wished fervently that he did. He couldn't trust himself to stay in the room, and the porch seemed a beckoning haven of peace.

He had calmed down somewhat by the time Dulcy's effusive greetings were over. He even managed to be fairly cordial when he was introduced. But he couldn't escape the conviction that the noose was tightening around his neck, as he heard Dulcy prattling on about what was in store for everybody.

This queer looking man—the butler who'd been a convict—Dulcy with her talent for making things turn out in the worst possible way; oh, why had he let her carry out this plan for asking Forbes down for the week end?

High Hopes Totter

"This is only a shack, Mr. Van Dyke, but it's Liberty Hall, and I want everyone to enter into the spirit of fun and play games and really enjoy themselves."

"Games!" Van Dyke's face brightened at the word. He and Dulcy began to confer about plans to have each guest take a spoonful of flour and a glass of water, and be blindfolded, and Gordon, with a low moan, resigned himself to the worst. If only Forbes could have an accident, break an ankle or something, and fail to arrive.

"Remember the night the minister came to call, just after his wife died," reminisced Bill in his ear. "And Dulcy thought of all those nice games to cheer him up? This reminds me of that."

"Van Dyke's going to make everything perfect," retorted Gordon, grimly.

"Ring for Perkins, Willie," Dulcy urged, at that moment, ignoring Bill's near-profane reply. "Maybe Mr. Van Dyke would like to go to his room. The ocean-blue, Perkins," she directed.

"Hope he drowns," muttered Bill.

"Mine ought to be called the execution chamber," commented Gordon.

"Darling, I don't believe you're happy," cooed Dulcy, catching sight of his downcast face.

Gordon thought of hot-tempered conventional Forbes. Then he thought of Van Dyke. And of the convict, Perkins. And of his own high hopes where his business affairs were concerned. Might as well give them up right now.

"I'm fairly jibbering with joy," he told her, glumly. "When I think of what's going to happen I can hardly stand it!"

TODAY is my mother's birthday.

During a long career of writing a journalist grows enthusiastic over many different persons and events.

Today I wish to devote my space in paying tribute to the finest character, and one of the most remarkable women I have ever met—my mother.

No foundation in life is as important as a good mother.

Whatever I have accomplished in life I owe to her alone.

From her I inherited a talent for drawing and writing. What I know of it she taught me.

The more I have seen of the world, the more I have come to appreciate that individual, whose innate charm and wisdom is neither magnified nor diminished in my estimation because she happens to be my mother!

The Zero Hour Approaches for the 'Tiger-Trap'

HARRY UNDERWOOD met Dickey's ultimatum as to my going to the roof alone with a grim little smile and a retort that I guessed was intended more for the ears of Prince Georges than as a rebuke to his oldest friend.

"She'd go alone if it were necessary that she should," he said. "Make no mistake about that, my bucko lad. But, as it happens, the note doesn't specify that she should be unaccompanied, so you can trot along with her if you want. But Heaven help you if you turn your face toward the hotel while you're standing there."

"I'm not quite a moron," Dicky retorted with hauteur. "And you know very well that Madge and I always obey your orders implicitly when you're on a stunt of this kind."

Dickey had taken his cue, I saw that, and Mr. Underwood replied in kind.

"Keep the collar buttoned, friend," he admonished, "while we go on with our plans. Georges as you're to be the bait we're taking no chances of those lads doing the double cross. I do not believe they know of our plans except possibly the guard on duty outside this corridor. They won't risk a shot. I don't believe, but they're the quick lads with a knife, so I've taken the liberty of getting something for you which some of the rival gangsters wear. It's a very light but effective shirt of chain mail, with a throat piece which you'll have to hide under a bandage, pretending your throat is injured. I know, lad," as Prince Georges moved uneasily. "You don't cotton to the idea, and I don't blame you, but there's no use playing directly into the hands of those fellows. It's a piece of good insurance, if it does sound like tomfoolery."

There was a long second of silence, then Prince Georges spoke.

"I have said I am in your hands, sir. I shall not quibble over details. But are you and Mr. Graham, and Mr. Noel Veritzen—going to wear these things also?"

Did Harry Underwood hesitate? I could not be sure, but his reply was glib.

"Of course. I've got a whole armor room downstairs."

But I was not convinced, and the next morning, when, with Dicky close beside me, I started for the roof to carry out the directions given in the note, I put the thing to him squarely.

"Was Harry telling the truth about those shirts of chain mail?" I asked. "Are the rest of you going to wear them?"

He looked at me oddly.

"We shall all be armed and armored," he said with an intonation that I have learned means a distinct no thoroughfare as far as answering questions is concerned.

"What's the matter?" Dicky queried.

"Nothing," I said dully, then swiftly contradicted myself.

"Oh, Dicky, please be careful tonight, won't you?" I said, clutching at his arm.

Swiftly he caught up my hands in his.

"Now perhaps you can guess how I feel about those stunts Harry's giving you," he said. "It's a crime. But from now you don't move a step on any of his dangerous errands unless I'm with you."

There was no time for anything more, for we had come to the roof, and it was one minute of 8, the hour named in the arrow note. We made our way directly to the parapet, and for five minutes stood there, Dicky talking, I meticulously holding to my hat, changing my hands at the minute intervals specified. And then, without a glance around, we went down to the apartment again. For a fleeting moment I had believed Dicky to be on the verge of adding something to the ultimatum he had given me—something which would have put his prohibition upon a different plane from the one he might as easily have given a mother or a sister. But the moment had passed, and I found myself vaguely unsatisfied, though thrilling to the knowledge of his protective concern.

The day of waiting was a most trying thing for all of us. We tried to sleep, for we knew no one of use could close our eyes during the time when the "tiger trap" was being sprung. But sleep was impossible, and when the morning hour of 4 o'clock drew near every one of our group was as tense as the traditional fiddle string.

"It's the loneliest hour of the twenty-four," Mr. Underwood said, as we gathered in his apartment for some black coffee, which was all any one of us could swallow. "They chose it on purpose, of course. It's before the scrubwomen and the early porters come on and while the cops are changing their beats. But there's no need for worry. The Dicky Bird and I, with a couple of my best fellows, will be in that room next to the one where Georges is going to wait. The paneling has been cut and put on revolving hinges, so that we can be inside the room in a second when we're needed. Georges will let the man in who asks for admittance, and when we're sure he—or they—are well inside we'll steal in and stick 'em up with appropriate gestures."

"Phil and Noel, you're to stay in this apartment and take care of the women," he went on in so authoritative a manner that any protest Noel wished to make died on his lips. "There will be a couple of guards just outside the door, but I don't think you'll need 'em. Nothing will happen down here. There's only one thing bothers me. Where did that arrow come from? Madge eliminated anybody from that old woman's bungalow, however, which sure helps some. I wouldn't be quite so happy if I thought one of the gang was hiding out up there. Well, so long, folks. The Dicky Bird and I'll be stepping. Georges, in half an hour go up to that room, go in, lock the door and wait. Don't attempt to speak to us from the other side of the wall, and don't switch on the light. They didn't stipulate as to that, fortunately, and it's an advantage for you."

He and Dicky went out of the room, while I dug my fingers into my palms to keep from calling my husband back. I think Lillian was undergoing the same struggle, although she gave no sign of it. But after Prince Georges had left, my anxiety shifted to another quarter. Insistently something deep in my consciousness tried to give me a message concerning the old woman I had interviewed, but for a long interval, while I went over and over every detail of the woman's appearance, I could not get it. Then all at once it flashed upon me, and with a cry I turned to Lillian.

"That woman in the bungalow," I gasped. "She is an impostor. She is not the real tenant I saw first."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Overcoming Diffidence

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a young man brings a girl home from a party, dance or other social occasion, and he would obviously like to call, but perhaps is shy, should she invite him to come to her home, or should he ask? And should he or should she suggest a date for this and if there is an objection upon the part of either one, who should suggest another date? M. F.

IT is quite proper, and thoroughly hospitable, for the girl to invite the young gentleman to come to see her. She is, in this way, "extending the hospitality of her home," and she can easily do this with a grace and charm that will indicate that she is a perfect hostess, and not just trying to urge a man to come to call on her. It's easy to tell the difference.

After she has graciously extended her invitation, I think that it would be well for her to leave to the gentleman the suggesting of more definite details. That is, he will, if he wishes to come to see her, ask her when he may come, or he may wait until later and telephone her for a definite engagement. Don't worry, M. F., a man will find the way to come to see a girl, if he wants to, and if he sees that his coming is not unwelcome to her—even if he is shy!

women or the fashion arbiters who will render the final decision and settle the matter, once and for all time.

Don't delude yourself! He who utters the "last word" in the battle of the fashions has not yet spoken.

I refer to the artists who draw the COMIC STRIPS! And the GIRL-STRIPS!

Not until the ladies of the funnies appear with hour-glass figures and their diverting legs swathed in long, frumpy petticoats will woman's hope for the survival of beauty, sanity and salubrity in feminine clothes breathe its last! Then, and then only, shall we order the immortelles!

There is no appeal from the edict of the comic-strip artist. He is the world's greatest style-expert. He knows his women—and he knows his public.

Yes, dear heart, DAD, sitting there, chuckling over his favorite comic strip, is the Great

Fashion Dictator of the world! And the comic-strip artist is his mouthpiece. It is Dad whom the comic-strip artist must please—Dad and all the other men who are comic-strip fans!

But don't despair. Thus far most of the comic-strip artists are clinging bravely and desperately to the short skirts and the right side of the fence.

Each morning and evening I open my newspaper tremblingly—and then breathe a sigh of relief as my eyes fall on the same saucy, snappy girls.

The darlings are still defiant in cute, knee-length skirts.

To be sure, some of the comic-strip ladies are being carefully cut off at the knees these days—which shows the terrific struggle still going on in the artist's mind. He knows that his "girl" will never be the same if he ties her up in corsets, swathes her like a mummy and robs her of all her snap. Yet he hasn't quite the courage to flaunt her in flapper frivolities. So he shows you only the upper half of her—and leaves the rest to your imagination. He is waiting for a sign from the men!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, February 5

WHILE the stellar operations for this day are promising for "big business," with financial prospects fairly encouraging, yet there is also forecast of turmoil, excitement and friction. Rash and impulsive acts may defeat excellent prospects.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of splendid opportunity, with growth, progress and contacts with large interests, but these may be negatived by impetuous, rash and quarrelsome conduct.

A child born on this day may have splendid endowments for reaching place and power in life, but it should be disciplined early in self-control, amiability and good nature.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Dreamwood Tree

SOME may think that "slaveys" are only to be found in fiction and drama.

If you had gone to Mrs. Lalley's lodging-house over on the East Side a few years ago, you would have found a sure-enough slavey.

Her name was Shelia Monahan.

When her mother died in Ireland her father brought Shelia to America and he hadn't been over long enough to get well established when he was killed.

There were some Monahan relatives in America, an uncle, but Shelia knew that America was quite a large place. It cost money to travel. It cost money to eat. Shelia had to eat, so she found work with Mrs. Lalley. It was work in every sense of the word. Shelia drudged from early morning until late at night.

There were little breathing spells of an afternoon.

When summer came Shelia might get a half-hour's rest if Mrs. Lalley was uptown.

In the fenced-in dingy backyard was a tree, a lonesome scraggly little tree of that peculiar variety that seems to grow in city backyards when other trees die.

Shelia was romantic. She used to sit under the tree and dream dreams—based largely on fairy stories she knew about gallant knights or princes who rode white chargers and rescued maidens in distress.

Shelia had been rescued, in her day-dreams, a score of times while sitting under that tree.

Shelia called it her "Dreamwood Tree."

Chick's 'Moll' Friends

On Monday, with the washing, she had no time to sit under the tree, or on Tuesdays, with the ironing.

Other days she might get a few minutes there. If Mrs. Lalley caught her, however, some work was always found to do.

Mrs. Lalley had a son. She called him Charlie. Down by the river, in his gang, he was known as "Chick."

Chick Lalley didn't work.

His mother knew well enough that he didn't work. He said he had "political connections" and did work for politicians. Sometimes he made his mother fork over spending money. At other times he was decidedly flush.

Chick had a lot of girl friends. The sort of "Molls" a gangster is likely to know.

But Chick had eyes in his head, and a certain amount of brains—mostly misdirected. He realized that his "Molls" were no more like this little Shelia Monahan than a skunk cabbage is like a tea rose.

Now and then Chick tried to get friendly with Shelia.

Shelia possessed that protective intuition of most good girls. She sensed genuine friendliness from the other sort.

Shelia didn't get her money regularly.

After a lot of complaint, Mrs. Lalley paid up.

Shelia wanted to save her money because when she got a whole hundred dollars together she was just going to disappear from the Lalley lodging house. She knew that she could find easier and more congenial work before her hundred would be gone.

Dreams Come True

It was September when Shelia had her $100.

She didn't trust anyone, but wore it sewed inside her clothes.

Just as soon as she could manage it she intended to go away from there and stay away.

She was sitting under her dreamwood tree, dreaming dreams of the future in which the work would be normally easy and no hideous Chick Lalleys about to torment and frighten her.

Mrs. Lalley appeared suddenly.

"So there you are—wasting my time loafing!"

"There wasn't anything to be done for the moment, Mrs. Lalley," she said.

"There's always something to be done," that woman yelped at her.

"We have an extra wash, fresh curtains for all over the house and a dozen blankets to get ready for cold weather. Do those today so you can do the regular wash Monday," she said.

Shelia said, "Yis, ma'am," but she didn't intend to do this extra wash if it could be helped.

The time had come for her to depart.

She got out the tubs in the backyard. Mrs. Lalley tossed down curtains and blankets. Shelia toted water.

The things to be washed lay in a big heap beside the tub.

"I'll expect to see them all washed and on the line when I get back," Mrs. Lalley said.

"Yis, Mrs. Lalley," Shelia agreed. But her heart was singing. Mrs. Lalley was going out—it would give her the chance to get away.

Shelia watched until Mrs. Lalley set forth in her Avenue A finery.

Shelia went up to the stuffy little room, took off her work dress, put on her best, which was poor enough, packed the few things she owned—clothes, some old photographs, prayer book and so on—in the black leather suitcase, which was about the only thing of value that her unfortunate father had left.

Just as she was leaving she saw Chick coming in from the backyard. He looked pale and sick—he looked frightened, too.

He saw her and scowled.

"Lissen, kid," he snarled, "you know I been here all day—I never left th' house since I come home last night—understand?"

"Your mother, was that worried—she said you didn't come home last night—"

Chick cursed horribly.

"Get it through your thick skull, will you? I'm in a little jam, see?"

"Jam? It is trouble you mean?"

"Yes, so if anybody asks you, you say I never left the house—see?"

He suddenly thrust a ten dollar bill in her hand.

"Take that and let it wise you up. Remember, I been here all day. Where's Ma? I gotter fix her up, too."

"She went out—and I wouldn't take money from you," said Shelia, trying to hand back the money.

Chick wouldn't take back the money, but started for the stairs.

"I'm gonna go to bed. You swear I been sick all day. If you don't, you'll be sorry."

Chick ran up the stairs.

Shelia went out, after she tucked the bill in her shabby handbag, fumbled around under the heap of blankets, got her black suitcase from its hiding place, went down through the cellar and out to the street.

Shelia walked a long distance and then sat down in a park and picked up a discarded paper.

The papers were full of a sensational robbery and killing.

A messenger down in the financial district had been robbed of a fortune in Liberty Bonds. It was the third robbery of this sort within a few months. The messenger, trying to save the bonds, had been blackjacked by the over-zealous thug, with the result that he was killed.

Shelia sighed.

It was a wicked world. Surely no man could get good out of even $200,000 worth of bonds if he had the sin of murder on his soul.

She began looking for advertisements in the help wanted columns and cut out a number of the little slips. Next morning she would go out and find herself a job.

She had forgotten to wear her good shoes in her excitement to get away.

Shelia hauled out the black suitcase and opened it.

She stared into the suitcase and muttered a little phrase supposed to help those who are surprised, shocked or distressed, for the suitcase contained none of her poor little effects.

Before her were packets of Liberty bonds!

"Saints preserve me," she muttered. "If anyone sees this they'll say I stole them!" She ran and got one of the evening papers.

The robbery had occurred around noon.

Chick Lalley had come home, pale and frightened, begging for her to make an alibi for him, around two.

What had happened?

Had Chick heard her coming and hidden this bag under those blankets? Had she taken this bag and left her own there? What should she do?

If she told they'd hang Chick for murder.

If she kept it she'd be a thief!

She took the bag over to the police station.

"'Tis full of them stolen Liberty bonds. I want to tell how I got it," she said to the man at the desk.

He looked in the bag, closed it and pushed a button.

"Monahan," he said, "get her story. She's got them Liberty bonds here."

Monahan took her into a room.

"You are Irish," he said.

"And my name is Monahan, like yours," Shelia answered.

Then she told the whole story.

Detective Monahan asked her about herself, her people. She told him that.

"You wait here," he said.

Chick was arrested, everything checked up all right.

"Now, Shelia Monahan, come home to my old man. He's your uncle, I'm your cousin," said Detective Monahan.

When Shelia woke up in her uncle's three-story home next morning and looked out the window into a neat back yard, there was another "Dreamwood" tree!

It was under this tree the next Summer, that one of her cousin's brother officers courted and won Shelia.

LOVEJOY

:: By BEATRICE BURTON

gray eyes. They were like twin mirrors of puzzlement and wonder. . . . But behind them her brain was busy as she figured out an answer.

"Oh—yes—," she said at last, "I know, Tom! It must have belonged to the man who brought some curtain samples for me to look at this afternoon! He sat in your chair, and I remember that he had a cigar in his mouth when he came in."

As she spoke she heard the door of Hilda's room close very quietly. It was a tiny sound, and Lovejoy probably would not have noticed it if she had not been uneasy about Hilda all afternoon.

She remembered what Aline had said—she's hanging around here just to spy on us.

After she had given the baby his bottle and left him sound asleep in his room, she knocked on Hilda's door.

Hilda opened it. She was dressed now to go out, her face thickly covered with powder and a little red felt hat pulled down over her eyes.

"Hilda," she said, stepping into the bedroom and closing the door behind her. "Hilda, that man who came here this afternoon brought me the samples for those curtains for the new house. So please remember to measure the windows first thing tomorrow morning."

Hilda smiled. "You can't lie to me—I know all about you," said that slow smile as it slid across her broad face.

"Listen, Missis," said Hilda aloud, "you don't have to worry about Hilda telling on you. . . . You treat Hilda right and she'll treat you right."

Under her knowing eyes Lovejoy went white. But there wasn't a quiver in her voice when she spoke again.

"How dare you speak to me like that?" she asked. "What do you mean by saying that you won't tell on me?—What is there that you could tell about me?"

Once more that slow smile oozed out across Hilda's face.

"I could tell about the gentleman who left his cigar here this afternoon," she said. "He no bring curtain samples. He come to see Missis and he drink here with Missis, too. I know. I see!"

Breathless with anger and panic, Lovejoy went out and slammed the door of the room as she went.

PILOT LAUDED, SAVES PLANE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Maj. Gen. Wendell C. Neville, commandant of the marine corps, today sent a letter of commendation to First Lieutenant Clayton C. Jerome, who risked his life to land a plane with a broken control stick.

While practicing aerial acrobatics at the naval air station, San Diego, Cal., the control stick of Lieut. Jerome's plane broke off at the socket. Rather than abandon the plane via parachute, Jerome repaired the broken stick with his belt, necktie and handkerchief, landing the plane without damage.

Jerome, who is 29 years old, was born at Hutchinson, Kan. Following graduation from the Naval Academy, he was appointed second lieutenant in the marine corps, June 3, 1922. He received air instruction at the naval air station, Pensacola, Fla. He served with marine corps forces in China for more than a year before being sent to duty in San Diego. He was appointed first lieutenant April 8, 1927. His home is at Burrton, Kan.

National Hunt on for Vanished Financier

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Inauguration of a nation-wide search for John E. Dimond, said by postal inspectors to have invested approximately $10,000,000 for Pacific coast clients in speculative stocks, and who disappeared after leaving Seattle for New York, was announced today by County Prosecutor Ewing D. Colvin and postal authorities. Private detectives in New York, it was said, had found no evidence that Dimond had made any attempt to liquidate the holdings.

"WARN HER ere her bloom is past"
(William Cullen Bryant, 1794-1878)

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper figure, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

SEVERAL CUBS GET TWO-YEAR PACTS

THE owners of the Chicago Cubs appear to have learned from Barney Dreyfuss the secret of signing up a pennant winning baseball club for a new season without being troubled with a flock of holdouts, a woe that generally besets a magnate whose club has come home in front the preceding season. The closest approach ever made to the record-breaking speed and smoothness with which the Pittsburgh mogul rounded up his Pirates for the 1926 and 1928 races after their flag victories of 1925 and 1927 is found in the present success of President William L. Veeck, of the Bruins, in getting the National League champions of last year under contract again for 1930.

William L. Veeck

Veeck has made such rapid progress that all first-string members of the Chicago outfit are signed, following the action of Outfielder Hack Wilson, Pitcher Pat Malone and Outfielder Clifton Heathcote in entering the fold.

WILSON signed his contract only last night following several lengthy conferences with Veeck yesterday. The Bruin official would not say at what figure Hack had signed, but it was generally thought he received a substantial increase over the salary he was paid last year. Wilson's new contract is for one year.

Several weeks ago President Veeck informed Wilson he would be in New York to attend the National League schedule meeting and askd the Martinsburg (W. Va.) citizen to meet him there for a contract conference. Wilson did not immediately sign his 1930 contract yesterday; it was not until late last night an agreement was reached. Wilson plans to leave New York tomorrow night for Pittsburgh, where he will be one of the speakers at the big sports dinner in Pirate Hall, William Penn Hotel, on Thursday evening.

ALL of the other Cubs are in line for 1930, either through newly-signed contracts or holdover agreements made a year ago. And Veeck is not stopping at getting his men enrolled for this year, but is looking ahead to future seasons.

Evidently he figures that if the Bruins win the pennant again he might have some trouble rounding up certain members for 1931, so he is seeking to avert the latter possibility by signing a number of them for two campaigns. The clubs' leading three pitchers—Charley Root, Pat Malone and Guy Bush—are among those who have been signed to two-year agreements.

Hack Wilson

ONE of the most notable instances of a college pitcher's failure to shine in the major leagues after a brilliant career in the collegiate ranks was the case of the late Mike Lynch, with the Pirates a quarter of a century back. Mike had been such a standout for Brown University that a number of major league clubs sought his services, but Pittsburgh outbid all the others and gave him a four-year contract. He joined the Pirates in June, 1904, when the staff included Deacon Phillippe, Sam Leever, Howard Camnitz, Roscoe Miller, Pat Flaherty, Bucky Vail, Lew Moran, Doc Scanlon and others, but though he had all the requisites of a great pitcher an injury to his salary arm eventually ruined his usefulness, with the result that in June, 1907, the Buccaneer management paid him off in full for four years and gave him his release. Lynch then joined the Giants, but was released unconditionally at the end of the season and retired from baseball to practice law in Providence. Before his death several years ago he became prominent in state politics in Rhode Island.

THE great college record that won a Pirate berth for Lynch is recalled by the following letter, received by William Pfarr, conductor of the "Sidewalks of Pittsburgh" column in the Sun-Telegraph from his friend, Patrick Dowling, a Pittsburgh business men, and formerly a star player for Georgetown University. "Dear Bill—Just read an article in the Sun-Tele about Lou Gehrig's striking out 17 William College batters in a game that Lou pitched for Columbia and yet losing the contest, 5-1.

"Here's one I just dug out of my scrap book, a game in which I played. Mike Lynch, later with Pittsburgh, pitched for Brown University against us (Georgetown), on May 30, 1903, and struck out 18 batters, yet he lost, 4-0. Mike gave us six hits and walked nobody. Brown got four hits off our pitcher, Drill. We made all six hits count for runs.

"LYNCH had not lost a game that season until he met Georgetown. It was the final game for both teams in 1903. When I met Mike later while he was pitching for Pittsburgh, he said: 'That was the game that broke my heart.'

"Believe It Or Not Ripley might like this one. Any one to fan 18 Georgetown men in 1903 was some slinger."

Max Schmeling

THE prominence to which Max Schmeling has risen as a contender for the heavyweight fistic title has resulted in a boxing boom in Germany, and the most pretentious ring attractions ever staged in that country are in prospect. Not only will Schmeling himself test his popularity in his homeland by meeting Jimmy Maloney or some other American heavyweight in Berlin, but Billy McCarney plans soon to send Frankie Genaro against a German flyweight in the same city, and several other matches with an international flavor are said to be in the making. Schmeling's Berlin bout, of course, will be only a sort of warm-up for his later meeting with Jack Sharkey, but at that it probably will come as close to being a real fight as will Sharkey's engagement in Miami this month with Phoebe Phil Scott.

THE W. & J. football team of 1930 will lose considerable strength through the dismissal of Hugh Kelly, tackle, from college, and the placing of George Demas guard, on the ineligible list, even if Demas succeeds in removing his conditions before next fall. But, as in the earlier disqualification of Wilson Butler, Rittersbaugh and Schnebly, the first-named two being also basketball players, what is lost in playing power is evened in the cause of clean sport and in the upholding of the college principle that sport must be kept secondary to education.

That the division of coaching authorities in football has been found unnecessary, and that Bill Ammon and Rex Hide will not be on an equal footing next year if one of them does not actually step out, causes not the slightest surprise in gridiron circles. When the system was put into effect last fall the general opinion was that sooner or later it would fall to click smoothly. There must be only one boss in football when important decisions are to be made on players, plays or others items that come up during a season.

TAKING advantage of the one big chance offered in Pittsburgh during the year for a general getting together of the followers of all games, fans of the Pittsburgh district are eagerly awaiting the second annual sports dinner to be given by the local chapter of the Baseball

JADICK, LE CADRE DRAW

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Johnny Jadick, slugging Philadelphia lightweight, and Gaston LeCadre, of France, battled 10 fast rounds to a draw here last night. Paulie Walker, of Newark, N. J., won the decision over Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, in the windup.

BODY ATTACK WINS FOR SERGEANT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The greatest indoor boxing crowd Pittsburgh has boasted since the night Jack Zivic knocked out Lew Tendler in Motor Square Garden in the early part of 1925, last night, in the same arena, saw Sergt. Sammy Baker, of New York, and Joe Trippe, of Rochester, N. Y., fighting a return bout, stage another setto that kept the fans in a furore throughout.

Again Baker won the decision, but this time it was the referee's verdict whereas in their first meeting, in the Garden on January 6, he garnered the votes of the judges as well. At the end of the 10 hectic rounds last night, Judge Frank Brown voted for Trippe, Judge Frank Ferris for a draw and Referee Al Grayber rightly for Baker.

In every respect the battle lived up to the advance expectations of the fans, and it is likely that the pair could be rematched next week and jam the same hall again. Indeed, there was much booing of the official decision last night, so well did Trippe sell himself to the patrons in defeat. As a matter of fact Baker handed him twice the physical drubbing that he did in their first battle, and, barring the possibility of a fluke punch, the issue was not in doubt after the halfway mark was reached.

TRIPPE STARTS FAST

Trippe, as in their first meeting, got off to a flashy start and won the first two rounds by his forcing and swarming about Baker. However, the Sergeant was not so slow to warm up to his work this time as he was in their initial clash, and he began to get the range of the younger man's body and head in the third round and then walked off with the honors in each of the last eight sessions. Cool and collected and always boring in toward Trippe, he forced Joe to carry the fight to him on the fly and countered with terrific straight body smashes from both fists. At close quarters he battered Trippe's body in murderous fashion, and every so often took potshots at Trippe's chin with his right, forcing the latter to hold on.

To Trippe's credit, however, it must be said that he never ceased trying. If anything, he tried too much, and the harder he tried the worse beating he took. His vaunted knockout punch held no terrors for Baker, who rode rights and lefts and kept ever pressing forward to take the play away from his foe with those straight steaming punches from either fist. Any one of the veteran's best blows was as good as a dozen of Trippe's best, and, on a basis of effectiveness, the bout was nowhere near close. Only the fact that Trippe was ever on the move and winging from the outside, generally ineffectively, and taking his body beating like a soldier kept him in the fight, and to the fans sitting at a distance from the ring it may have appeared that he was doing more damage than he did, while at the same time they hardly could have appreciated the havoc wrought by Baker's solid punches at close quarters.

NO KNOCKDOWNS IN BOUT

There were no knockdowns in the bout. The only time either man was on the floor was in the tenth round, when Baker landed a right to the jaw and rebounded off balance and went down, but got up without a count. Sammy finished the fight in good shape, as he did the first one with Trippe, but Joe again was well spent and glad to hear the final bell. He also left the ring with a bad-looking cut under his right eye, suffered in the ninth round and messed up in the tenth.

Baker made only one real attempt to end the bout with a knockout, as he had promised. That was in the eighth round, when he tore out of his corner and sent three successive hard rights to the jaw and then shifted his attack to the body as Trippe held on. Joe weathered the storm and thereafter Baker was content to outfight him for the decision. Trippe rallied from time to time, but always was beaten into submission by the harder punching of Baker. He forced Baker to break ground early in the ninth round as he threw a storm of gloves, but the sortie was short-lived and

PITT QUINTET TOPS FORDHAM FIVE, 31-27

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The University of Pittsburgh's great basketball five returned to its winning ways with a 31-to-27 victory over Fordam in a nip and tuck overtime battle here last night. The Panthers dropped their first game in 20 starts to Syracuse at Syracuse Saturday night, but showed no ill effects from that reversal.

With three minutes of regular playing time remaining, Fordam led by 25 to 23, but Les Cohen tied it up with a field goal and the contest went into overtime. Behfuss put the Panthers ahead with a field goal, but Weiss tied it up for Fordham at 27-all. Baker then tossed in a field goal and Charley Hyatt another to give Pitt a four-point lead and the victory. Pittsburgh led at half time, 17 to 16. The lineup:

Between Rounds

Harry Foster, of Niagara Falls, has run out on his bout with Indian Tiger West, one of the preliminaries to the Jimmy Slattery-Lou Brouse bout for the world light-heavyweight championship at Buffalo next Monday night, and the matchmaker now is seeking a new opponent for West who stopped Nick Mastro, of Cleveland, in six rounds at Eighth at the Moose Temple here last Friday night.

A double-window show, featuring two eight-round battles, is listed for next Monday night at Washington, Pa., as John Patrick Dougherty and Harry Spencer, middleweights, will clash in one of the battles and Young Joe Wolcott and Hans Roberts in the other.

Tommy Crowley, South Side lightweight, is in New York, where he likely will hook up with Len Brown. Brown has handed Sandy Sabbert and other Pittsburgh boxers.

Phil Goldstein, local lightweight, left New York last Saturday night for Miami, Fla., where he will remain until after the Sharkey-Scott fight.

The Mickey Walker-Leo Lomski bout in Detroit originally scheduled for next Friday night and postponed one week, now is off until February 21 because of an injury to one of Walker's hands. Earl Mastro and Roger Bernard will box at Detroit Friday night of next week.

Promoter Francis Flynn, of the Moose Temple, last night signed the first two preliminaries to his Harry Wallace Tiger Flynn Ringside show, Friday night. He has Billy Flanagan, of Crafton, Pa., in with George Chambers, of the East End, in the second bout and Johnny Montabano, of Braddock, amateur star and brother of Chief Montabano, meeting Paul Bailey, of the North Side in the opener. Danny Russell, of Braddock, and formerly of Baltimore, meets the best opponent obtainable in the semi-final.

Jackie Murray, local Negro welterweight, has been matched with Joey Coll, also of Buffalo, for one of the two 10-round bouts on the boxing wrestling card at Eighth Friday night. Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, will be one of the principals in the top number.

SUSCE SIGNS; A. L. TO OPEN APRIL 15

By CHARLES J. DAYLE

This is contract time for many baseball players, although most of the Buccaneers signed their documents long before the customary period. The local management, nevertheless, has a task in hand in signing Burleigh Grimes and perhaps one or two others.

George Susce, Schenley High School graduate, who is now a member of Burt Shotton's Philly crew, yesterday sent his signed contract in to the Philadelphia offices.

Susce may be farmed out this year, but Manager Shotton would like to place him with a fast club and with one where he would be sure of Susce's getting plenty to do. The sturdy Oaklander is the sort of a boy who would like to catch every day.

SCHEDULE CHANGED

The American League schedule, published today, discloses that the season will close a whole week sooner than the end of last year's race. The two major leagues agreed to this arrangement after a rather unsatisfactory draft of last year.

The official opening of the two circuits is set for April 15, the curtain to drop on September 28 but in the American League there will be a game in Washington one day ahead of the customary starting time, out of respect to President Hoover. The Senators and Red Sox will mix in this event. This is not a new departure.

LAWLESS VICTOR

GAME TONIGHT IS LAST HERE FOR VISITORS

By CARL W. SHATTO

Like March weather, the Pittsburgh Hockey Club either comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb, or comes in like a lamb and goes out like a lion.

When Benny Leonard took over the Bucs at the start of the 1928-29 campaign, they got away with a roar equal to the best effort of a king of beasts. They were very meek and docile at the finish.

Indications now are that the situation is to be reversed in this 1929-30 race. The Pirates of present vintage started like so many lambs, and only at rare intervals has their bleat grown into the proportions of a roar. Last Saturday, however, the local puckmen's roaring was very full-throated as they downed the Detroit Cougars by 3-2, and Manager Frank Frederickson is convinced that he now has his stalwarts in the proper mood and condition to roar out of the picture in the best lion fashion.

BIG CHANCE TONIGHT

The Pirates will get an excellent opportunity to test their roaring apparatus tonight when they meet the Ottawa Senators at Duquesne Garden. The game will mark the last appearance of Newsy Lalonde's warriors here this season, and, because of some schedule juggling, it will mark the last appearance of the locals before a home crowd until February 20. In the event that the March 18 game with Detroit is transferred to the Michigan city, as is planned, only four more games will remain on the Pittsburgh home slate after tonight's game is erased.

One of these games is with Les Canadiens, to be played here on March 1 as a result of a double shift. About two months ago the tilt with the Flying Frenchmen was transferred to Atlantic City, but within the last week it was transferred back to Pittsburgh, and indications are that Pittsburgh will keep it.

The Bucs won by a 3-1 score in a thrilling battle on the occasion of the Ottawas' last appearance here, and if the locals are able to duplicate their fine showing against Detroit on Saturday, the invaders are not going to have any of the best of the milling.

The Senators handed the powerful Montreal Canadians a 4-1 jolt Saturday by way of tuning up for their appearance here, so it is not likely that they are suffering from any lack of confidence.

LINEUP TO STAND

No changes are to be made in the local lineup, Milks, at defense, and Fraser, at center, appear to be right at home in their new notches in the starting lineup, and the deal which was to have resulted in Tex White's going to Duluth is off, so the elongated wingman will be available for spare line duty.

Jess Spring, veteran defenseman out for the last two weeks with a leg injury, is in fairly good condition again and will do his stuff in the event that his able-bodied mates are not able to hold the Ottawans at bay.

Hec Kilrea, King Clancy, Finnigan, Lamb, Gagne and Cox are a few of the more worthy Senators who probably will figure plenty of subduing.

In the event that the spirited, rapid action attending the last Pittsburgh-Ottawa meeting has not been forgotten, the crowd will be no small gathering. The probable lineup:

Pirates	Pos.	Senators
Miller	D	Cleghorn
Milks	D	Clancy
MacKinnon	D	A. Smith
Fraser	C	Lamb
Lowrey	W	Finnigan
Darragh	W	H. Kilrea

Subs: Pirates, Drury, White, Jarvis. Ottawas, Masters, E. Smith, Spring, Gagne, Cox, W. Kilrea, Gagne, Shields, Cox, Trudeau, Starr, Howe, Connor.

SCHENLEY, FIFTH AVE. FIVES BATTLE TODAY

BELLEFIELDERS MAY CLINCH SEC. I TITLE

In a game which may decide once and for all the championship in Section I of the City Senior League, Schenley and Fifth Avenue High schools, will battle on the Uptowners' floor this afternoon. The contest heads the day's card in the league, and with all sections of the W. P. I. A. L. taking a day off, ranks as the leading scholastic contest of the day.

Schenley holds one decision over the defending league champions, scored during the first half of the race. The Bellefielders, leading the procession in the first division, with seven games won and none lost, including triumphs over both Fifth and South, are far and away the favorites, not only for the sectional title, but for the league crown as well.

A victory today for Schenley will all but put the Grossmen "in." If they win, then South, second placers, must win all remaining games and beat Schenley to effect even a tie. This is going to be difficult to accomplish. If Fifth wins, then Briggs' team will have an outside chance to get into the titular running.

There are three games to be run off in the two City League sections this afternoon. Supporting the Fifth-Schenley battle, in division one, South will tackle Ralston on the Ralston floor, and Westinghouse will take on John Irwin's Allderdice High passers at Allderdice.

In Section II the Oliver-South Hills contest appears to be the leading attraction. Langley meets Allegheny Vocational on that school's court and Allegheny invades the South Hills for a setto with Carrick.

BAKER DEFEATS TRIPPE AGAIN

Baker was jolting him around with a great deal of vim as the round ended.

Baker weighed 146½ pounds and Trippe 142 at 3 p. m.

YOUNG WHIPS HARGRAVES

A sensational return to Pittsburgh boxing circles by Bobby Young, chunky lightweight, of Duquesne, who has been campaigning around Detroit for a few years, took the crowd by surprise in the semi-final. Bobby handed Ken Hargraves, Negro, of New Kensington, a beating all the way over the eight-round route and came close to spilling Ken for a knockout in the first two rounds and had him back-pedaling and pulling away from punches over the remainder of the distance. Young, who was just a mauler when he was around here before, has developed a punch in both fists and he had no trouble hitting the rangier and better boxing Hargraves at will.

Young started out with a rush and soon hurt Hargraves with a left hook. Then a right to the jaw sent him reeling slowly to the floor for a count of five. When he arose two more rights sent him spinning again and he was in a bad way as the first round ended.

Hargraves had a lot of respect for Young after that. He held at every opportunity as the second round opened. Finally a right to the jaw stopped him in his tracks and he hesitated for a moment and then pitched head first into the ropes. He bounded back and was reeling as he ran into a right to the jaw that floored him for a count of nine. He was arm and leg-weary as he arose, but threw a right to the jaw and then missed another and fell down, taking another count of nine and complaining that he had injured one of his knees in falling. He fought off Young for the remainder of the round.

By boxing cautiously and opening a cut on Young's right eye, Hargraves gained a shade in the third round, despite the fact that he went down off balance for no count during one of Bobby's rushes. Thereafter, Ken was taking no chances, and, while he bloodied Young's nose and mouth, in addition to his eye, he always had one foot in the water bucket and kept moving out of the danger zone to finish the battle standing up, losing each of the last five rounds. He weighed 134 pounds against 134½ for Young, who should get some work around here on the strength of this showing against a consistent winner.

PROFIO STOPS POLO

Dominick Profio, of Cecil, knocked out Eddie Polo, North Side southpaw, with a right to the jaw in 1 minute 49 seconds of the opening round in the second bout. It was a mauling slugfest while it lasted with Polo forcing Profio about the ring when the latter put over the finishing punch. Profio weighed 144½ pounds and Polo 139.

Tommy Ward, of the South Side, outclassed Sammy Goldstein, of the Hill, all the way in the six-round opener, winning as he pleased. He weighed 145½ pounds and Goldstein 145.

Al Grather and Joe Keally alternated as referees. Charlie Couch was the timer and Joe Slumbo the decision announcer, with Bill Schuster making the introductions and other announcements over the loud speaker apparatus used for the first time at a boxing show in the Garden. It was announced that Jack Wells and Harry Williams, heavyweights, have been matched to box the eight-round semi-final to the Benny Schwartz-Jackie Rodgers bout next Monday night.

SOCCER STORM LOOMS

By TOM BIRKS.

Apparently there is going to be a storm in a tea-cup regarding Referee Jock Simpson's decision to call off the Glendale-Gallatin National amateur cup tie game at Gallatin last Sunday, which terminated with 15 minutes to go and the West Penn champion leading, 3 to 0. Simpson's humane act was caused when Glendale found it physically impossible to continue. Now we hear that Secretary John McEwan, of Cleveland, is indignant at the action of the referee for calling the game "at players request." It is also stated that McEwan thinks the referee had no right to call off the game for any such reason. And, according to a local soccer official, there is some doubt regarding what action the National amateur cup committee will take.

In all fairness to Secretary McEwan, who is many miles away from the scene of action, we doubt if he committed himself in any way until he received Referee Simpson's report. When Simpson was called by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph last evening, he had not mailed the report to Cleveland, and without that report, McEwan, who is a smart soccer man, would hardly commit himself.

What stand can the committee take? Gallatin was leading, 3 to 0, when Glendale asked Simpson to call the game. At that time the players were all in. Gallatin surely cannot be penalized because Glendale found it impossible to finish the remaining 15 minutes. In other sports the players are taken out, but in soccer, this condition is rare.

By JULIUS LEVIN

Two high-class attractions are offered the followers of the Allegheny County League tonight, the J. J. Veronas making their home debut at Duquesne University against the Charleroi Lions, while Dad Rogers takes his Allentown Club to Duquesne to meet the champion Duquesne Lafayettes.

Interest in the home inaugural of the Veronas is high and preparations have been made to accommodate a large turnout of fans on the Bluff court. The Veronas made a fine impression in their opening game at Elizabeth, winning with points to spare, and they are rated one of the favorites to win the second-half crown.

The Veronas will present an all-star lineup augmented by the appearance of Johnny Serbin and Bill Miller, former Fintex stars, and Ski Twyman and Artie Hoffman, ex-Allentown players.

The Duquesne Lafayettes will have to take the floor against Allentown without the services of their veteran coach, Ed Minnick. Minnick has been ailing for some time and was taken to the McKeesport Hospital yesterday when his condition took a turn for the worse.

Allentown, boasting one victory in two starts, has made a fine showing in its first two games of the second round and prove a tough nut to crack for the Lafayettes. The Homestead Ackermans had to show their best form to win from Allentown last Saturday, barely winning by a one-point margin.

FINTEX BEATEN

The Homestead Ackermans set down Fintex, 39 to 33, in their important County League battle last night, pushing the Veronas and the Duquesne Lafayettes into a tie for first place.

The Knickerbockers trounced the South Side Falcons, 39 to 30, in the West Penn, and Equitable won over Trinity Cathedral, 39 to 32, in the Central League.

Sales and Service toppled Philadelphia Co., 44 to 34, and Pittsburgh Railways won from Equitable Gas, 39 to 29, in the Philadelphia Company League, while the Riecks tripped Carnegie Steel, 32 to 31, and P. & L. E., copped from Dravo, 30 to 27, in the C. & I. The County League lineup:

Fintex—33.		Homestead—39.
Klateman	F	C. Klausing
Lippe	F	Littell
Loshman	C	Dober
White	G	O. Klausing
Faris	G	McGill

Substitution—Reilly for Loshman, Field goals—Klateman 4, Lippe, Loshman, Faris, White 3, Moon Klausing 5, Little 2, Dober 2, Boots Klausing 2. Fouls—Fintex, 13 out of 34; Ackermans, 17 out of 41. Referee—Al Speer.

Dribbles

W. C. Kennedy's Knickers are all set to take a fall out of the Young Men's Hebrew Association at Forresters Hall tonight. This is the only game scheduled in the West Penn League. The Bellefielders, due mainly to the fine work of Lou Alman, defeated the Knickers on the same floor earlier in the season and the Knickers feel confident they will turn the tables tonight.

Both teams representing St. Joseph's on the floor this winter face tough opponents tonight. The St. Joseph's Lyceum team, champion of the Catholic Lyceum League, meets the Holy City Five of Wilkinsburg, while the Colts oppose the Brunswassers in the preliminary tilt. Both games are carded for the St. Joseph's floor in Mt. Oliver.

St. John's plays at St. Henry's in the only Catholic Lyceum League game scheduled tonight.

Canevin Club is at Equitable Life tonight in the only Central Pittsburgh League battle on the program.

One game is scheduled in the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League Westinghouse Club opposing the Homewood-Brushton Y. at Homewood.

The two new members of the Commercial-Industrial League, Westinghouse and Pressed Steel Car, make their bows tonight. Westinghouse plays Dravo while Pressed Steel Car entertains Fuller Title & Trust.

Two old rivals meet in a Greater Pittsburgh League game tonight when the North Side Buicks travel to Sharpsburg to engage the Sharpsburg Y quintet. Both are battling for second place. Friday the Buicks meet the South Side Falcons of the West Penn League in Javor Hall.

WESTMINSTER TAKES LEAD IN CONFERENCE

COVENANTERS PLAY DUKES TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

Kenny Loeffler and his Geneva College basketballers certainly can raise a rumpus in the old Tri-State Conference tonight. The Covenanters meet the Dukes at Beaver Falls and if they win they'll throw the title race into such a mix-up that it will take from now until the Fourth of July to get it untangled.

Ken Loeffler

Here is the situation: Westminster beat Bethany, 34-20, at New Wilmington last night, thereby slipping into first place ahead of the Dukes, who are tied for second place, Geneva trailing by half a game, will be right up in there if it can take the Red and Blue this evening. In that event, Ken's team will be in second place, the Dukes will be third and Bethany will be fourth. Waynesburg and Thiel are as far out of the running as Debs was for the presidency.

Duquesne lost its first Conference tilt of the year Saturday night to this same Bethany club. Monsieur Davies is very much up in the air over that lickin', for any time one of his teams takes one on the chin by a 14-point margin, it reflects on his ability. And Chick hates like sin to have anything reflect on that.

The Dukes take the floor tonight without the services of Paul Abele, star forward. Abele was taken to the Mercy Hospital yesterday suffering from an infected leg. He will be lost for 10 days or more.

SCHEDULE LIGHT

The program as far as the institutions of learning in this particular neck of the woods are concerned is none too full. West Virginia plays the second game of its eastern trip, meeting Temple University in Philadelphia. Waynesburg moves into Grove City for a game with Bob Thorn's Crimsons and Bethany engages in its third game in four nights by playing Thiel in a Conference tussle at Greenville.

To return to the Dukes for a line or two. Chick Davies has a pretty sweet appearing combination worked out but it is my humble opinion that he will not win a championship with it this year. Next year, however, no one will stop him.

M'GEEVER A COMER

There is just enough inexperience in the Duke lineup at present to make it a risky bet. Bunk McGeever, when he picks up half a pint or so more experience, ought to be the best center developed in this section since the days of Jerry Fay. But now he's not quite ready. Parry is a good guard, but he draws too many personals. There is such a thing as technique in giving a guy the hip or the foot.

If the Dukes beat Geneva tonight, they'll be well set, for two of their three hard road games will be out of the way. A defeat, however, will go hard with the Ruff cause.

Despite one defeat to date, Westminster looks to be as good a bet as any for the championship. Geneva is the real dark horse of the race, with Bethany always a threat. It will not come as a surprise at all to see Ken Loeffler take down the title which will be very gratifying to the ambitious Kenneth.

The Tipoff

Another Waitland pulled. Too much whiskey Sunday at Bill Brown's. Kitty Hawse off a bleak score. Beggs Snyder should have been there.

Did you ever hear this one? About the sub Tech tackle who was out in the U. S. C. game, pitted against Anthony Southern Cal's husky star.

On the first play the substitute sub smacked Anthony a pip and upset the veteran. He got up smiled, and said:

"Say you, what's your name?"

"Aw, Horsefeathers," came back the youngster, determined not to let his opponent get his goat.

"Stop the game, Mr. Referee!" yelled Anthony. "Stop the game. There's a guy in here playing under an assumed name."

BOXING fans in this district will be privileged to see only one more glove show at Motor Square Garden before the big East End arena is given over to other exhibits for a period of six weeks. After the usual weekly show next Monday night, the Garden will be without boxing until March 24, the longest lay-off of a fistic season that has been the most successful in the history of the big auditorium. Manager John L. Hernon has booked an attractive card for the final number before the temporary shut-down. Jackie Rodgers and Benny Schwartz are to meet in the 10-round feature bout next Monday night, and the remainder of the program will be uniformly strong. Manager Hernon also has a series of good matches in the making, to be staged when the Garden reopens for boxing on March 24, and will continue his shows until the weather becomes too warm for indoor fighting.

All modern, popular-priced cigars—like modern cigarettes—are made by scientific machinery, in clean and sanitary factories . . . The old way of sealing cigars by human saliva has not been used by reputable cigar manufacturers for twenty years . . . Dividend Gains in Last Month Break Records

By B. C. FORBES

JANUARY'S dividend record has proved both favorable and unfavorable. First, because the number of companies announcing improved payments broke all January records; second, unfavorable action was taken by a record-breaking number of companies.

However, the cheerful announcements outnumber the others by more than three to one.

LAST month's encouraging disbursements were made by 172 corporations, which compares with only 120 a year ago and 111 two years ago.

Industrial companies lead. Under this category, in which is included investment trusts, 151 enlarged disbursements, against 106 in the previous January. Only one railroad figured in the list 12 months ago, whereas no fewer than eight meted out greater generosity to their stockholders last month. Utility corporations show no change, 13 each month.

AS HAS been the case since the Wall Street trouble, many corporations continue to declare extra payments rather than to increase their regular rates. The directors know that 1929 profits warranted additional payments, but not being able to foretell what 1930 might bring forth, they did not care to commit themselves to paying a higher rate regularly.

Initial dividends rank next. Investment trusts are responsible in large part. No fewer than 41 companies made their debut as dividend payers last month, against 27 a year ago.

The form taken by January's improved dividends is shown in this table, which also gives comparisons with January a year ago:

	1930	1929
Extra	71	40
Initial	41	27
Increased	28	20
Stock	24	26
Resumed	5	4
Back	3	3
Total	172	120

THERE were 52 unfavorable announcements last month, whereas there were only three a year ago, seven two years ago and 16 three years ago. Twenty-six companies last month omitted payments, 18 deferred payments and eight reduced their rates. This showing emphasizes that the stock panic had severe consequences in many directions. The companies affected cover a wide range of industries. Radio companies were hit particularly hard.

When the writer was issuing warning after warning that the stock market boom was being grossly overdone and that the upshot could not fail to be injurious to prosperity, many letters containing bitter denunciation were received. The idea that the speculative boom could ever come to a catastrophic end was pooh-poohed.

Unfortunately, prosperity did suffer. So did employment. However, there are signs that, although conditions undoubtedly were gravely affected, recovery has begun to set in. At least it is permissable to hope that the revival will be speedy rather than slow, emphatic rather than mild.

DO NOT expect the records established during the last three months to be maintained. Many influential boards of directors have taken cheerful action in order to modify the apprehension precipitated by the stock market collapse. Nevertheless, it is gratifying to know that never before did American corporations as a whole own such fat cash balances or show such generous surpluses.

GAINS IN STOCK MARKET IN MAJORITY

Weak Spots Crop Out Now And Then, Giving Prices Irregular Appearance

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Prices of the main body of stocks moved higher in today's session of the New York Stock Exchange, but weak spots cropped out now and then, giving the market the appearance of irregularity. Trading showed a marked falling off in volume, but this may have been due in part to power trouble which temporarily halted the operation of thousands of tickers in New York and some of the other Eastern cities.

Cutting of the German Reichsbank's rediscount rate from 6½ to 6 per cent, following a cut from 3½ to 3 in the Bank of France rate last week, is believed to have increased the possibility of lower Bank of England and New York Federal Reserve rediscount rates. Call money renewed unchanged at 4½ per cent with the demand for Federal Reserve funds indicating the absence of any large supply of funds available in New York.

Wall street also found encouragement in the decline in stock exchange member borrowings last month, and the sharp drop in securities loans shown in the weekly Federal Reserve condition statement. A number of excellent 1929 earnings reports made their appearance during the day. Pressed Steel Car and Remington Rand making unusually favorable comparisons with the year before.

United States Steel common, the leader of the recent advance, continued to encounter rather strong selling resistance, selling as low as 180½, rallying to 183, and then falling back below 182 again. Heavy buying of Radio, which crossed 38, indicated the partial retreat of an over crowded short interest. General Motors and Chrysler, which are believed to harbor a large short interest, also were in brisk demand.

Rails continued to give a good demonstration of group strength despite the disappointing character of recent traffic and earnings reports, and the request for a withdrawal of merger applications by the Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Wabash and Delaware and Hudson railroads. New York and Harlem, which soared 105 points last week, and dropped 26 yesterday, rallied 20 points again today. Hocking Valley advanced 9 to a new high for the year at 479. Atchison, Chesapeake and Ohio, Great Northern preferred, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, St. Paul preferred, Lehigh Valley and New Haven sold 2 to 3 points higher.

GILLETTE SINKS

Heavy selling of Gillette Safety Razor, which broke 5 points to 97⅜, the lowest price in more than a year, featured the early afternoon trading. The stock subsequently crossed par. National Cash Register declined 2 points.

Columbia Gas was heavily bought, advancing nearly 5 points, while Columbia Carbon, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Houston Oil and Worthington Pump sold 3 to 4 points higher.

Silver Bullion Drops at London

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Bar silver dropped to the lowest price for all time on the London market today, being quoted at 19½ pence per standard ounce. Cable advices from London gave no definite reason for the drop, other than there appeared to be far more selling than buying. China was reported as having both bought and sold. Up until nearly noon no sales were reported in the New York market, but dealers expected that a new record low price would be established.

Ferro Manganese Prices Reduced

Domestic makers have reduced the price of ferro manganese from the $100 level established a short while ago in a scale proportionate to amount taken by users. Users of 100 and 500 tons a year will pay $99 a ton, from 500 to 1,000 tons $98, from 1,000 to 2,000 tons $97, and all users taking more than 2,000 tons annually will pay $94 a ton. English makers are following suit. Prices will be retroactive to January 1 of this year.

German Bank Rate Cut to 6 Per Cent

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The Reichsbank has reduced its rate of discount ½ of 1 per cent to 6 per cent, according to a cable from Berlin. The 6½ per cent rate had been in effect since January 13.

Copper Figures Expected To Show Another Gain In Stocks on Hand

COPPER statistics for January should be available early next week and are expected to show another increase of somewhere around 30,000 tons in stocks of the metal on hand. It is expected, however, that as the curtailment program of leading producers is made more effective output will strike a balance much closer to the rate of consumption. Anaconda's properties are now estimated to be operating about 50 per cent under a year ago, but it is believed that the industry will get its production down to a basis of about 50 per cent of the 1929 average output as the conservation program progresses. Exports of copper are now estimated to be moving at about 75 per cent of the 1929 rate. Curtailment of domestic output, however, is expected to be reflected in rapid diminution of surplus stocks once spring gets under way.

Those who keep in close touch with the situation in the petroleum field are convinced that the real basis for the recent cut in crude oil in Texas and Mid-Continent fields is to be found in the increasing competition which domestic gasoline distributors are meeting from South American producers. It is pointed out that few if any of the leading domestic gasoline producers distributing along the Atlantic seaboard have any substantial production in South America, while such companies as the Gulf Refining, Pan-American, Royal Dutch and Mexican Eagle Oil are all in a position to benefit from the sharp differentials which prevail between gasoline made from cheap South American crude and that made from higher cost domestic crude.

COLUMBIA GAS AND ELECTRIC pushed ahead steadily today, in spite of the irregularity that prevailed in the utility group as a whole reaching new high ground for the recovery. The buying here was impressive to say the least and was reported largely for the account of traders who are aware of the fact that the 25 per cent stock dividend declared some months ago will soon come off the stock. The stock dividend is payable on March 31 to shareholders of record February 28 next. Thus in order to participate in this distribution one must be a holder of record on the company's books as of February 28 next when it will be quoted ex-stock dividend in the market.

Much higher prices are being talked of for Johns-Manville. During 1929 building activity in some sections of the country was handicapped to a certain extent, but nevertheless the annual dividend requirement of $3 a share was earned about three times over. Announced construction plans for many lines of industry are expected to result in larger earnings during the current year and for this reason it is believed in some quarters that directors might increase the dividend payment. There are only 750,000 shars of the stock outstandng and according to one leading commission house the supply for trading purposes is probably around 25,000 shares.

AWHILE ago it was stated that an objective of 40 had been set for Chrysler. This level was crossed yesterday. Now it is said that higher ground will be reached. Last year about this time the stock was selling about 90 points higher on the prospect of the development of large earning power. In the opinion of E. F. Hutton & Co. these prospects are actually better today than they were at that time. They also point out that profits per unit could decline over 25 per cent from the $63 per car shown in the first nine months of 1929, and production could decline 40 per cent from the probable figure achieved in 1929 before it would be necessary to dip into surplus to cover dividends.

Bonds Slow to Regain Public Appeal

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

PUBLIC interest in the bond market still is light even though January was marked by the greatest total of new offerings since April, 1928. Prices for bonds last month did not respond to easing money rates to any marked extent. This was partially explained by the fact that such a large amount of new issues had to be absorbed.

New offerings of bonds advertised in New York City totaled $626,000,000 in January. This was within striking distance of the record since the war reached in October when the total was $766,062,000.

Due to two exceptionally large offerings, public utility financing accounted for 62 per cent of the total. The $150,000,000 issue of American Telephone and Telegraph 5s and the $50,000,000 issue of International Telephone and Telegraph 5s were the outstanding offerings.

Big Issues in Demand

SOME of the particularly strong issues were sold without any difficulty last month but bond houses found that it was not so easy to place the average issue. The exceptionally attractive prices offered in some cases were strong factors in stimulating public demand. In particular the American Telephone 5s moved rapidly, due to the low offering price.

Large insurance companies which had difficulty in finding suitable ways to employ their funds during the period when bonds were neglected have been the biggest market for new bond issues which come up to the proper requirements. But buying from individual sources is still unsatisfactory from the standpoint of underwriting houses.

Competition Keen

KEEN competition has been one contributing factor to the unsteadiness of prices. In order to stimulate sales many houses brought out new offerings at yields which were higher than market conditions would ordinarily justify. The bond trade in general welcomed these efforts to swing the public back into the market but it is generally believed that less generosity will be shown on coming issues since the trade is unwilling to retard a possible advance in the market.

One explanation for the continued apathy towards bonds in the face of declining money rates is that the general investment public is not altogether over the effects of the stock market break. A very large share of the bond buyers were weaned away by stocks. Sooner or later these buyers will recover from the situation following the break and will support the bond market.

Stock Offerings Small

WHILE the total of new bond offerings last month was large, the amount of all types of financing was not particularly impressive due to the small number of new stock offerings. These reached only $32,000,000 for the month so that the total of new financing fell far below that of the active periods of last year when the total in a single month was $1,306,600,000.

Within the next few months an attempt will undoubtedly be made to strengthen the market for foreign bonds in preparation for the financing of the new Bank of International Settlements. Some of the international banking houses are also laying plans for the underwriting of a large number of new foreign industrial issues as soon as market conditions are satisfactory.

What Made This Doctor Famous?

ONE'S HEALTH is the most important thing in life. When you suffer from any annoying symptom, feel rundown and discouraged, why don't you write for free medical advice—no matter what your ailment may be—to Dr. Pierce's Clinic in Buffalo, N. Y.? Dr. R. V. Pierce organized this clinic in Buffalo, in the 70's, and built the Invalids Hotel and Surgical Institute, which is so well known all over the United States.

One tonic which Dr. Pierce used over and over was a prescription which he found was so successful in rebuilding and strengthening women that he later put it up in ready-to-use form. It is called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and has brought health and strength to hundreds of women right here in town and everywhere. It can be had in tablet or liquid form, at all good drug stores. Send 10c for trial package of the tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids Hotel, 665 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

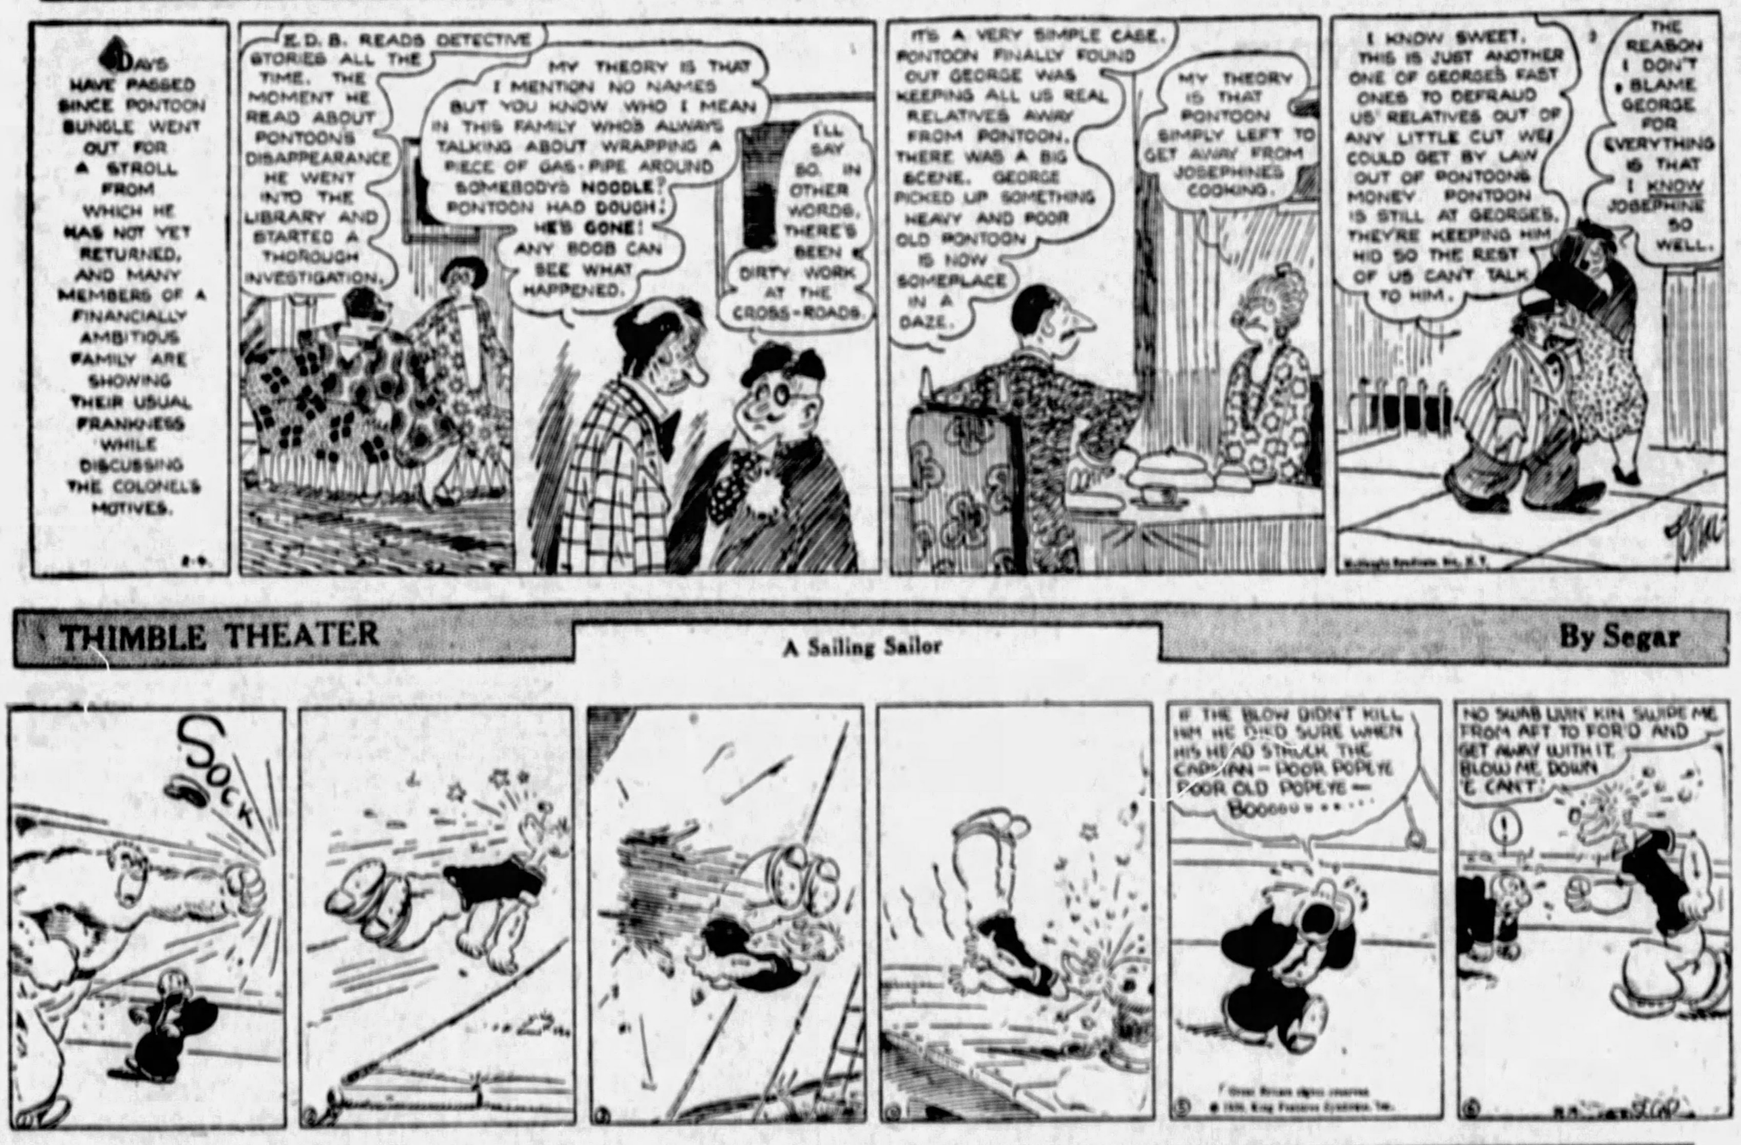
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Clues

By Tuthill



4 DAYS HAVE PASSED SINCE PONTOON BUNGLE WENT OUT FOR A STROLL FROM WHICH HE HAS NOT YET RETURNED, AND MANY MEMBERS OF A FINANCIALLY AMBITIOUS FAMILY ARE SHOWING THEIR USUAL FRANKNESS WHILE DISCUSSING THE COLONEL'S MOTIVES.
E. D. B. READS DETECTIVE STORIES ALL THE TIME. THE MOMENT HE READ ABOUT PONTOON'S DISAPPEARANCE HE WENT INTO THE LIBRARY AND STARTED A THOROUGH INVESTIGATION.
MY THEORY IS THAT I MENTION NO NAMES BUT YOU KNOW WHO I MEAN IN THIS FAMILY WHO'S ALWAYS TALKING ABOUT WRAPPING A PIECE OF GAS-PIPE AROUND SOMEBODY'S NOODLE? PONTOON HAD DOUGH! HE'S GONE! ANY BOOB CAN SEE WHAT HAPPENED.
I'LL SAY SO. IN OTHER WORDS, THERE'S BEEN DIRTY WORK AT THE CROSS-ROADS.
IT'S A VERY SIMPLE CASE. PONTOON FINALLY FOUND OUT GEORGE WAS KEEPING ALL US REAL RELATIVES AWAY FROM PONTOON. THERE WAS A BIG SCENE. GEORGE PICKED UP SOMETHING HEAVY AND POOR OLD PONTOON IS NOW SOMEPLACE IN A DAZE.
MY THEORY IS THAT PONTOON SIMPLY LEFT TO GET AWAY FROM JOSEPHINE'S COOKING.
I KNOW SWEET, THIS IS JUST ANOTHER ONE OF GEORGE'S FAST ONES TO DEFRAUD US RELATIVES OUT OF ANY LITTLE CUT WE COULD GET BY LAW OUT OF PONTOON'S MONEY. PONTOON IS STILL AT GEORGES, THEY'RE KEEPING HIM HID SO THE REST OF US CAN'T TALK TO HIM.
THE REASON I DON'T BLAME GEORGE FOR EVERYTHING IS THAT I KNOW JOSEPHINE SO WELL.

Canal Project Hearing Important to Pittsburgh

The community will await with interest the outcome of the hearing held today in Washington, which will decide the fate of the long-proposed Ohio River-Lake Erie canal. This, men long associated with the project say, is the last stand. Surveys made long ago show the construction of the proposed waterway to be feasible from an engineering standpoint, but official opposition has been based on the assumption that it would be an nomic failure.

o confute that assumption delegations from Pittsburgh, ern Pennsylvania and Ohio are in Washington today, ed with figures as to tonnage that might be expected, and other arguments, to persuade the river and harbors board of the United States Army Engineers that the canal is a necessity in line with President Hoover's national waterways ideas.

That they may be successful is the hope of large industrial districts in two states.

Great Brute, Careless, Kills 180 in Traffic

If a huge motor truck, driven by a great brute—Careless, we will call him—ran into a schoolhouse and killed 41 children, there would sweep over the community a wave of horror and protest.

Yet Careless killed 41 children in traffic in Pittsburgh in 1929. This compares to 24 in 1928 and 39 in 1927. Because they were not all killed at one time there is no wave of horror, but the loss of life valuable to the community is just as great. That economic view does not take into consideration the grief and the tears caused by Careless.

All told there were 180 adults and children sacrificed to carelessness last year, an increase of 10.6 per cent over 1928.

Careless indeed is a great brute. Let's kill him instead of the kiddies and their parents.

Justice Brings Guilt To Slayers of Miners

Justice in Pennsylvania merely is blind, not deaf and dumb, as a local court intimated it was in discharging the jury that freed accused coal and iron policemen of the charge of having brutally murdered John Borkowski, miner. Another jury, in Venango County, proved not deaf to the plea for justice, not dumb in bringing in a verdict of guilty against two of the three men, tried there under change of venue on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

While the verdict will be satisfactory, it does not remove from Allegheny County the shame that is associated with the court's condemnation of the jury in the original trial here after its shocking verdict of acquittal.

Alcohol Deaths

Up SIX HUNDRED Per Cent.

The imbecilities of prohibition have ceased to be news. It takes a case of super-imbecility to get into the papers these days.

One such example of how the law works is contained in the official statement of the great Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, just made public.

The company finds that the alcoholic death rate among its policy-holders has risen SIX HUNDRED PER CENT since 1920.

As you know, life insurance companies are interested in EXTENDING the lives of their policy-holders as long as possible. They examine you carefully before accepting you as a risk. They carry on vast advertising campaigns for health. They co-operate with medical organizations everywhere. Prolonging life is part of their job. That is how they pay dividends.

The most fanatical prohibitionist cannot charge them with distorting vital statistics, which are part and parcel of their business.

The Metropolitan company finds that the death rate from acute and chronic alcoholism among industrial policy-holders in 1929 "was APPROXIMATELY DOUBLE that of 1918, and nearly two and one-half times as high as in 1919, the 'war time' prohibition year.

"The mortality from alcoholism since national prohibition has not been quite as high as for any of the years between 1911 and 1917.

"However, if the deaths from wood and denatured alcohol poisoning were added to the totals for years beginning with 1920, and if the comparison were limited to policy-holders in the United States alone, the death rates now prevailing would equal or very closely approach those for certain pre-war years.

"In the wage earning population, at least, the alcoholism death rate during the past eight years has been SIX TIMES as high in the United States as in Canada."

There are the facts—draw your own conclusions.

This newspaper will not insult the intelligence of its readers by presuming to comment.

We Are All Human

A Comforting Thought.

Mrs. Thomas A. Edison reveals in the American Magazine that her distinguished husband wears night shirts, likes Lyonnaise potatoes, won't take medicine, seldom answers letters, shaves with an old-fashioned razor, and kisses her every morning before he goes to work.

He also forgets his wedding anniversary.

These facts, none of which is of the slightest importance, interest MORE men and women than Mr. Edison's latest experiments in producing rubber in the United States, which is of the highest importance.

The same facts about John Smith, ordinary man, would interest nobody outside his immediate circle of friends, and probably not even them.

We like to hear about the personal habits and peculiarities of the great. It flatters our secret feeling of inferiority. "They're just as human as we are," we reflect, and take comfort in that thought for our own lack of genius.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Class B Stockholders

AFTER some very expert and contagious investigation we are enabled to outline the position of Class B stockholders.

"Bugs" Baer

A Class B stockholder is alphabetically inferior to the boys in Row A. He is entitled to purchase all the stock the company cannot sell.

When the directors meet each other's elbows in executive session a Class B man can call an indignation assembly of kindred morons and demand to be ignored by proxy.

When the profits are eating up the surplus and the company is using a blow-out patch for a safety valve, the Class B investor is entitled to all the comforts attainable by shaving without soap.

When the corporation votes to increase the president's salary and expends sixteen million dollars for floral tributes the minority bag-holders may issue a circular letter and chase it around the track.

When the committee reports progress in every direction except forward, the B boys can claim that the executives have defaulted in their clauses and may demand prettier certificates on fancier paper.

When the wolf is broadcasting a panicky solo in the vestibule and the welcome on the doormat is in parenthesis, the B squad can stand upon its vested rights, which is something like eating at the second table with the Jack Spratts.

There is more than one way to skin a cat and a thousand names for the fur after it is skinned. We have been a Class B stockholder in the Vestless Pocket Company for a year and we would be wealthy if the decimal point were not so far to the left.

The directors all wear perpendicular silk hats, carry canes and dress in the furthest north of fashion with protruding spats. We have always claimed that Rudy Vallee would learn more if he put that megaphone to his ear once in a while.

Investigation by the exhausted B clique indicates that the certificates of good-will have all the trade-in value of a bitten cruller. People who live in revolving doors shouldn't swim against the tide.

The next time we catapult our financial resources into Wall street we are either going to be a Class A victim of environment or we are going in for some chiropractic reprisals with a baseball bat.

A Class B passenger has all the social standing of a mouse in the sugar bowl. If you ain't on the board of directors you might as well be on a bicycle.

You can ask for a receivership. But when the boys start dipping into the dividends you discover that it has been a long time since anybody has had a dinosaurus egg for breakfast.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE

By Herbert Kaufman

IF Conan Doyle is correct in his belief that there ARE established channels of communication between this world and the next, some medium imbued with a sense of humor might dial in on Commodore Vanderbilt's wave length, and inform the old grouch that he not only enjoys the dubious distinction of ordering George Westinghouse from his door, but also of snubbing a Cabinet officer and Presidential candidate as well.

The incident has doubtless slipped the Commodore's post-mortem memory. And besides, he was so busy, at the time, opportunizing the LATE SIXTIES that a certain letter, written in sprawly boyhood script, may never have reached his eye.

The envelope was postmarked from a little Georgia town. The Civil War had utterly impoverished its folk.

Stores had no stocks and customers had no cash. Lawyers and doctors, unable to collect fees, were reduced to patch-pants extremity. Even the community's leading attorney mainly depended upon the earnings of a gangly lad, who picked up a few occasional pennies selling Cincinnati Inquirers at the depot.

BETWEEN trains, the youngster read of the prodigious fortunes which A. T. Stewart and John Jacob Astor and Jay Gould were accumulating from real estate, railway building and gold speculation.

But above all, his imagination followed the spectacular career of Vanderbilt, to whom Fortune had been a personal hand-maiden, showering millions and mansions and added might upon her sudden favorite.

And gradually a bold and daring plan grew in the child's mind.

For months, the "gang" had sought to collect the price of a baseball outfit, but their combined scrapings remained insufficient.

NOW all other resource failing, they gravely drew a promissory note, signed it in common, and appealed to the great Vanderbilt for a loan of $2.50 on that ingenuous pledge. They solemnly swore to repay the debt at the rate of ten cents per month at current interest.

They knew of no one ELSE with $2.50 to spare, and reluctantly explained the necessity of floating the loan abroad.

But Mr. Vanderbilt was evidently conserving his capital for prior investments and couldn't take on any extra fiscal burdens at the moment.

They never heard from him. But another generation of Vanderbilts was fated to hear from the boy.

The South tore free from carpet-bag exploitation. Defeated, but unconquerable, she slowly resumed her place as an economic factor and a producer of genius.

THE boy, on whom Vanderbilt wouldn't waste a thought, came North to bat in the Big League, and the first ball he slammed was a FOUR-BAGGER. He built the Hudson tunnels. He became Woodrow Wilson's campaign manager and landed the Princetonian in the White House. He served two terms as Secretary of the Treasury.

He couldn't negotiate a $2.50 loan, but he succeeded in floating Liberty Loans by the billions, and history saw his decision control foreign obligations, compared with which Vanderbilt and Astor wealths are small change.

And if all this weren't enough to tickle the Olympian gods, the hour arrived when, as Director-General of all American railroads, the New York Central and allied lines were compelled to accept whatever rules and regulations his dictatorial authority empowered William G. McAdoo to issue.

A lion can never foretell when a MOUSE will come in handy.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD! ∴

By Elsie Robinson

FEELING sore at the way people treat you? Don't think they appreciate you enough? Keep remembering all you've done for them in the past . . . how much they valued you, once upon a time? Want to know the answer? Then look at things straight—

MAYBE YOU WERE WORTH A LOT TO THEM ONCE—

BUT HOW MUCH ARE YOU WORTH NOW?

Take your case, Mary. You were worth plenty the day you married Jim. You put over a Big Performance during those first years . . . building a home . . . starting a family—

But have you kept up that performance?

Have you grown with the years?

You're still a young woman . . . only 36. And your face and body are pretty and fresh enough.

BUT HOW YOUNG IS YOUR MIND?

How much do you DREAM nowadays . . . how much do you DARE?

How much healthy discontent is left in you . . . how much restlessness and ambition and hunger for knowledge?

Are you as rarin' to go as you were on your wedding day? Or have you settled back into a rut and decided that you're entitled to Jim's life-long love and respect because of your past performance?

IF YOU HAVE, YOU'RE OUT OF LUCK!

LOVE DOESN'T FLOURISH ON WHAT WE DID LAST YEAR OR 10 YEARS AGO . . . IT'S FED BY WHAT WE'RE DOING TODAY. LOVE'S EITHER A GOING BUSINESS . . . OR A BANKRUPT ONE.

What are you worth to Jim and the youngsters TODAY. Mary . . . not as a wife . . . not as a mother . . . BUT AS A GROWING HUMAN BEING?

And how about you, Bill?

You're still in the running, as far as your years go . . .

Got a nice business . . . kind of sitting back and taking things easy after the long struggle, aren't you? Not bothering to check up on yourself as often as you did. Like to boast to the fellows what you've been worth to the firm, all these years—

BUT WHAT ARE YOU WORTH TODAY?

You were a live wire 15 years ago . . . full of pep . . . always tackling something and coming out on top—

Plenty valuable then, Bill, but how much are you worth now? How long since you had a new set of ideas? How long since you took a chance? Suppose you had to step out now, without name or reputation or job . . . WHAT HAVE YOU TO SELL? How attractive would you seem as a husband? How powerful as a man?

WHAT ARE YOU WORTH NOW?

Face that question every day of your life. Take a check on yourself every night—

FOR BELIEVE ME, FRIEND, IF YOU AREN'T CHECKING UP ON YOURSELF, EVERYONE ELSE IS.

Your wife and your children are . . . your boss is . . . society is . . . AND SO IS LIFE.

You may audit all right in your own estimation, BUT LIFE'S GOT YOUR NUMBER. LIFE KNOWS WHAT YOU'RE REALLY WORTH. AND, IN SPITE OF YOUR OWN GOOD OPINION, IF YOU REALLY BELONG ON THE "MARKED DOWN" COUNTER, THE OLD GIRL WILL PUT YOU THERE!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THE view is not unanimously held among biologists. Some point out that amoeba is more like a whole human body than one of our constituent cells, for it can do a number of things that our own cells cannot do.

It can, for example, live in a pond, finding and securing its own nourishment. No single human cell could do that, nor could a cell from any of the higher animals or plants. Tissue-cultures have to be carefully nursed and grown in elaborately standardized and sterilized fluids containing appropriate foods.

H. G. Wells.

Moreover, the life-history of amoeba is more complicated than that of a cell in a tissue-culture, for besides simply tearing itself into two halves, it has other methods of reproduction, which we shall describe later. Amoeba, in short, is a whole and independent organism, while the tissue-cell is only a subordinated organism.

Yet it is an attractive comparison. Our white blood cells creep about our bodies and consume things very much as amoebae creep about and feed. And if our own cells lack the self-completeness of amoeba, that is closely approached by the cells of many lower invertebrate forms.

We have already noted what happens when Obelia or a sponge is passed through gauze. We can see the cells that originally belonged to a many-celled creature wandering about by themselves, lost and disorganized like a routed army.

They creep about in the manner of amoebae, and they can be seen to clump together gregariously in enormous flocks; they arrange and specialize and organize themselves so that the clumps, at first formless, gradually shape into individuals of a higher order, into tiny polyps or sponges.

Moreover, we can trace a series of animals leading up by gradual stages from these feebly organized cell-communities to our own strictly disciplined bodies.

These are facts, and basing ourselves upon them we make the statement that amoeba is an unicellular organism—unicellular because it is like a single cell, organism because it is a complete living thing in itself—a statement which implies that a man is a great number of amoeba-like creatures, their independence sacrificed to the common good.

We may most clearly understand this statement by comparing amoeba to a naked and solitary savage on a desert island, and a human tissue-cell to a trim, bowler-hatted clerk, trotting with umbrella and attache (case) to his appointed desk in the city. Both are built in much the same way, and their corresponding parts work in much the same way.

They are homologues. But one is without the versatility of the other. The clerk is a specialist in his own particular job, but in specializing himself he has lost touch with many of the basal activities of men.

Remove him from the civilization to which he belongs, isolate him on a desert island, and although he can write and calculate more efficiently than the savage, you will have to take the most elaborate care of him, providing him with shelter and clothing and cooked food, or he will surely perish.

The savage, on the other hand, can build a hut and scrape together a meal, and his tough skin can survive exposure to the elements. He is a jack-of-all-trades, albeit doing nothing very efficiently, and it is precisely because he is unspecialized that he is independent.

One can trace just the same distinction between a free, unspecialized amoeba and an efficient but limited muscle-fiber or nerve-cell or gland-cell: the latter three, like the clerk, are accustomed to a division of labor, and have come to depend on other units for the satisfaction of many of their needs.

Extend the parallel one degree farther; contrast the day-to-day routine of that one-man community the savage, with the enormously complicated and varied activities of a whole civilized nation, and you get a valid parallel to the difference between amoeba and your own highly organized body.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Song birds are flying high these days. No longer do they nest in the hall bedrooms of fading brown stone fronts. Tin Pan Alley is transferred to the clouds and high in their pent house aeries they chirp of moon and spoon, huddle and cuddle.

With theme song profits they have flown back from Hollywood—this is getting a bit thick. But the idea is successful composers and lyricists now occupy sky scraper roof mansions. Here they may strike chords and hit high notes without bothering a soul.

Most song writers work at night. In apartment houses and hotels they faced restrictions that cramped their style. Neighbors complained and in many instances leases were broken. Irving Berlin started the fad by building a pent house overlooking the East River.

Sigmund Romberg, who began as a piano pounder at old Bustanoby's and wound up fashioning operettas, has a terraced cottage with an old-fashioned well and everything on the roof of an apartment house on the upper West Side. Nearby is the sky salon of Buddy De Sylva.

De Sylva's income tops all the lyricists. He came into prominence writing several songs for Al Jolson, including "April Showers," and followed this with smashing musical comedy and talkie successes. His income is reported a half million a year.

Vincent Youmans has a home on the roof above his office on West 44th street. George Gershwin, the composer, and brother Ira, a lyricist, have a joint pent house at 75th and Riverside Drive, a 12-room domicile, done in modernistic style.

Lorenz Hart, of the hit making duo of Rodgers and Hart, is enthroned in a cloud castle at 101st street and Central Park West while Richard Rodgers is atop a 19 storied building on Park avenue at 56th street. Composers still live in attics. But how!

The S. P. C. A. is fighting to unmuzzle dogs in New York, believing that only a leash four feet long, is necessary. They have offered statistics to show that only those bitten by dogs with rabies were those attacked by roaming stray canines.

There are in greater New York 300,000 dogs. So long as affection exists in the human heart people will own dogs. No purchasable possession to my notion offers so much happiness at such little cost. Many owners, however, are inconsiderate of those who do not care particularly for dogs. This inconsideration is responsible for the muzzle. The police dog owner is the greatest offender.

* * *

Sensible advice is given by a dog expert, who says: "Never permit a stranger to pat your dog along the street." It is his theory that a dog frequently mistakes a friendly reach of the hand for the signal of an attack on his master. He adds: "This results in 98 per cent of the dog bites."

They are telling of the chorus girl who, when asked if she filed her nails, replied she just cut them off and threw them away.

The latest in colored nails, incidentally, is a bright green, supplanting the brilliant purple and flaming red, but the high spot was offered by a lady whose nails were smeared with a preparation that shed a phosphorescent glow when the lights dimmed in a night club the other evening.

* * *

A father of 71, as the fore, and his son of 50, as the aft section of a burlesque horse, completely "ran away" with a recent English revue imported to Broadway by Arch Selwyn. The antics were so uproariously funny that the performers were forced to step out of the horse and take six curtain bows on the opening night.

* * *

"Frankly, why do you write a newspaper column?" asks F. D. S., of Pittsburgh. I just do it for the experience—my people are wealthy.

Karl Edwin Harriman was so frightened when he landed his first job as an editor on the Red Book Magazine that he could not talk. Louis Eckstein, the owner, thought he was holding out for more money—and before Harriman could find his voice the offer was raised 20 per cent.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

NOW and then, for short periods, you give thoughts to your future.

You consider the course you are traveling and what the end may be.

You don't feel pleased with the picture, so you don't look at it long.

You see about you older persons who have passed their years about as you are doing.

You see their precarious position, but think it won't happen to you.

This is doubtless what they thought at your age.

But, like you, perhaps, they were unwilling to exercise self-control and adopt a plan of sacrifice and self-denial which might have altered the matter.

Following the policy of letting the future take care of itself is not a safe plan and it generally brings suffering and regrets. There must be preparation ahead if you wish to be happy in old age. It is childish to think that in some way you will be cared for. Later you will realize the folly of such an assumption.

Some folks, a very few, are in penury at old age through no fault of their own, but through unforeseen and unpreventable circumstances.

But in most cases it may be traced to unwillingness to look the future in the face with determination to provide intelligently and with sacrifice of self, if need be, to make old age comfortable and happy.
